HUGE PROGRAM OF U. S. RELIEF IS AGREED UPON

Conferees Work Out Plan for Bill Embodying $2,100,000,000.

$300,000,000 IS FIXED TO AID PUBLIC WORKS

Group Hopeful Measure May Win Hoover's Sanction; Draft Under Way.

(Associated Press.)

A tremendous relief program, designed not only to feed and provide work for the unemployed, but to pump credit into private industry, was completed last night by House and Senate conferees for presentation to Congress next week.

The compromise bill, which emerged from a week of give and take negotiations between the two Houses, carried $2,100,000,000, instead of the $2,300,000,000 it formerly provided.

Sponsors of the measure were hopeful that they had worked out a program which would receive the approval of President Hoover, despite his objections to the public works feature.

Jubilant Over Agreement.

The agreement was announced triumphantly by the conferees as they emerged last night from the new conference room, where they had spent the day working in their shirt sleeves.

Chairman Norbeck, of the Senate conferees, said the bill would be drafted over the week-end, the conferees meeting again Tuesday morning to give it final approval before reporting it back to their respective bodies.

The final obstacle was overcome when the conferees agreed to grant the Reconstruction Corporation broad powers to loan to private industry and governmental agencies.

As approved, the bill carries a public works program of $300,000,000 and extends the borrowing power of the Reconstruction Corporation for loans by $1,800,000,000.

$300,000,000 for Loans.

Of this latter fund, $300,000,000 would be used for emergency relief loans to States to prevent destitution, and the remainder to provide employment by starting the wheels of industry.

The public works section of the bill was cut to $300,000,000 when the conferees earlier in the day agreed to an administration plan to eliminate the authorization for a bond issue.

This was proposed by Ogden Mills, Secretary of the Treasury, who joined the conferees. After his suggestion had been adopted, however, he refused to say whether President Hoover would sign the bill.

The Garner bill, which passed the House, provided for a public works program of $1,200,000,000. The Wagner bill, which received Senate approval, authorized a bond issue of $500,000,000 for public works, of

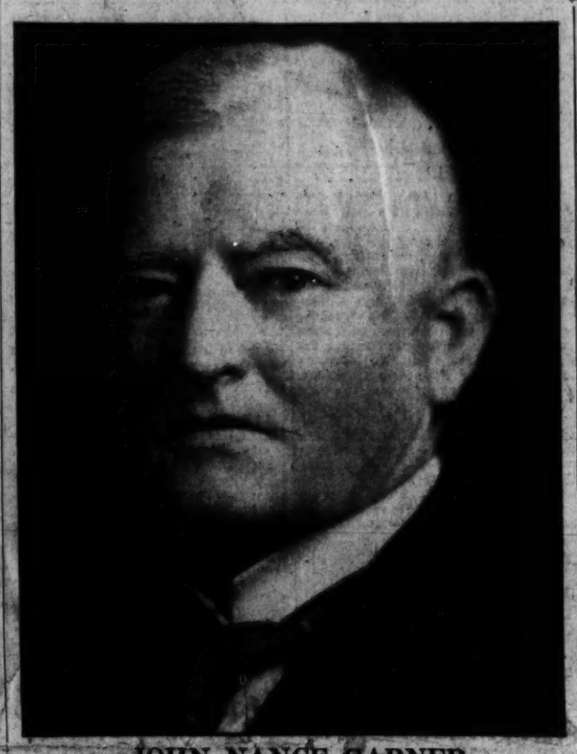
FRANKLIN DELANO ROOSEVELT



JOHN NANCE GARNER

DELEGATES CHEER M'ADOO WHEN HE ANNOUNCES SHIFT

Chicago Stadium, July 1 (A.P.).—Franklin D. Roosevelt, Governor of New York, was chosen overwhelmingly tonight as the Democratic nominee for the Presidency.

With the force of a real stampede, he swept through the convention as the favorite sons announced one after another their withdrawal from the race, and turned their votes into the swelling Roosevelt column. He was declared the nominee on the fourth ballot, the first taken tonight.

Tomorrow the convention will meet to nominate Speaker John N. Garner, of Texas, for Vice President. When he released his State delegation just before tonight's session met, that started the stampede that swept across the excited stadium.

Official Count Gives Roosevelt 945.

Total votes—1148½; necessary to choice, 766.
Roosevelt, 945.
Smith, 190½.
Baker, 5½.
Ritchie, 3½.
White, 3.
Cox, 1.

When Chairman Walsh formally pronounced Roosevelt "the nominee of this convention," a last brief spasm of enthusiasm swept the convention floor. But no attempt was made for a long demonstration, and time was given over for former Senator James A. Reed to rally the party stalwarts.

Alfred E. Smith was the only one of the nine original candidates who stayed in to the end. The eastern block of States with him steered clear of the stampede, too, sticking with Smith in the face of the sweep.

Governor Will Fly to the Convention Today.

Gov. Roosevelt sent a message to the convention announcing he plans to fly here and appear before the delegates tomorrow.

Setting off the tension of the evening, William Gibbs McAdoo at the very outset announced the shift of the California vote—declaring, "We did not come here to deadlock this convention."

Taunted with boos from the galleries, he was cheered to many a resounding echo by the hundreds of Roosevelt supporters who from the start here have given ovation after ovation to the New York Governor. For minutes another and almost the last of the wild succession of processions twisted in confusion past the speaker's stand.

At 10:24 p. m., hardly more than an hour after the session had begun, Chairman Walsh read the result of the ballot, and to the accompaniment of the deafening thunderclap of applause pronounced Gov. Roosevelt the nominee.

Reed Calls for United Support of Ticket.

The Roosevelt celebrators started another parade around the hall, but Walsh gaveled them down and presented former Senator Reed.

The silver-haired Missourian told the convention, "Our cheers here can not elect a candidate in November."

"It requires something else," he said. "It requires earnest, patriotic work from this hour to the moment when the last ballot is cast and counted.

"At a time like this, every man who claims to be a Democrat should banish from his heart all feeling of disappointment and chagrin and, like a good soldier, salute the colors and face the enemy.

"I want to thank my friends for their support, but above everything now I summon the Democracy of Missouri to the standard.

"We need not mistake the fact that the Republican army marches behind any leader that is selected; that they can eat more crow and swallow more bad government than any aggregation ever assembled beneath God's blue heaven.

"There is, however, an army of the unemployed, of those who have realized the effects of bad government, and that army will join this party if it properly conducts the campaign; and we will plant the banner of good government above the Capitol at Washington."

New National Committee.

At length he assailed the economic policies of the Coolidge and Hoover administrations, and counseled the Democrats "to get back to the old policies" as enunciated by Washington and Jefferson.

Chairman Walsh presented Gov. Roosevelt's telegram thanking the convention and announcing his intention to come to Chicago. The convention cheered as the clerk read the message.

J. Bruce Kremer, of Montana, one of the Roosevelt floor managers, presented a resolution authorizing the chair to send a reply saying the convention would welcome the proposed address by the nominee tomorrow. When the motion for adoption was put, a loud chorus of "ayes" and a few scattered but emphatic "noes" responded. Walsh pronounced the resolution adopted.

On motion of Senator Clarence Dill, of Washington State, the convention adopted the formal resolution providing for appointment of the new national committee.

Then at 10:57 the convention adjourned until 1 p. m. tomorrow.

Reputation as Farmer Is Pride of Roosevelt

Albany, N. Y., July 1 (U.P.).—Franklin D. Roosevelt likes to refer to himself as a "dirt farmer."

With a record of accomplishment in public life and diplomacy, he was supremely proud several years ago because an experimental crop of squash he raised at Hyde Park, was sold at a profit in the New York market.

Roosevelt was born on his father's farm at Hyde Park in 1882. The glamor of the Roosevelt name hung about the household. Theodore Roosevelt, a distant cousin, already was active in politics. Later when "T. R.," as the governor always refers to his distinguished kinsman, was President, young Franklin was a frequent visitor at the White House.

His acquaintance with Washington is more than academic. As he went back to Albany as governor in the familiar surroundings of the executive mansion, where he played with his cousins during Theodore Roosevelt's term as governor, the governor went to Washington as Assistant Secretary of the Navy in the Wilson Cabinet.

Characteristically a Roosevelt and devoted to a vigorous life, he lived the life of a seaman and became acquainted from the ground up with naval problems and morale. One of his most prized possessions is a collection of marine prints.

During the World War he made several crossings, his first in a destroyer, although his rank would have provided him with a cruiser at least.

Earlier in his career Roosevelt was elected to the State Senate from his native county—Dutchess. Exerting the independence of action which characterized his later career, he immediately came to grips with Tammany Hall, which then ruled State

Roosevelt to Abandon Notification Ceremony

Chicago Stadium, July 1 (A.P.).—The text of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt's message to the Democratic convention expressing his gratitude for the presidential nomination follows:

"It is with a deep sense of my responsibility to meet your high estimate of my qualifications that I thank you for my selection as your candidate.

"It is customary to hold formal notification ceremonies some weeks after the convention. This involves great expense, and in these times I would prefer that this be not followed. Instead, may I ask the convention to remain in session after the selection of the vice presidential candidate tomorrow, that I may appear before you and be notified at that time.

I want very much to express my thanks to you all personally and face to face.

"Will you let me know the wishes of the convention? I can arrive between 2 and 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon."

Al Smith May Refuse To Support Nominee

Obviously Disappointed, He Declines to Comment After Discounting Rumors of Switch Until Actual Vote.

Chicago, July 1 (A.P.).—Alfred E. Smith, sitting in his hotel headquarters facing a radio and a poster of "Smith for President," heard tonight without formal comment the nomination of Franklin D. Roosevelt.

"Do you intend to support the nominee?" he was asked.

"I have no comment to make," Smith replied, chewing vigorously at a cigar. Then he turned back to the radio and resumed his grim silence. Smith's associates and political backers said they did not believe he would support the Democratic ticket in November.

An expression of bitter sadness came to the face of the "Happy Warrior of 1928" as soon as William Gibbs McAdoo began to announce the switch of California's votes. There was a change in that expression only once during the rest of the evening, when Connecticut's votes for Smith launched an outburst of cheering. He smiled slightly for the moment.

The outcome of the convention was not a complete surprise to the former New York Governor, for the report of the switch had filtered through crowded hotel corridors into Smith's office more than an hour before the convention convened. Smith, however, still did not seem to believe it and refused to discuss it until he had heard with his own ears over the radio.

As the hour of the convention drew near he had a radio moved into his private office at his hotel headquarters. There, surrounded by a small group of friends and associates, he heard of his own defeat and his fellow New Yorker's victory.

When it was evident that the standard he himself bore four years ago would be placed in the hands of

Robber Takes $5,158; Locks Cashier in Vault

Gate City, Va., July 1 (A.P.).—A lone robber today held up the First National Bank and escaped with $5,158, after locking the assistant cashier inside the bank vault.

Charles C. Pendleton, the assistant cashier, said the robber came into the bank between 6:30 and 7 o'clock, waited several minutes for the time lock to open the safe, then locked him up and escaped. Pendleton was released about ten minutes afterward.

Kidnaping Made Capital Crime by Louisiana Act

Baton Rouge, La., July 1 (A.P.).—The Louisiana Legislature passed a bill today to make kidnaping a capital crime, with hanging as the penalty.

Bohn's Abductors May Accept $5,000

Boy's Uncle Is in Contact With Gang; Police Stand Off.

St. Paul, Minn., July 1 (A.P.).—Relatives of Haskel Bohn, wealthy youth who was kidnaped yesterday, tonight were negotiating for his return at $5,000 ransom.

William B. Bohn, of Los Angeles, an uncle, announced he had been in contact with the abductors, who appeared satisfied with an offer of $5,000.

Police announced they would not interfere with private negotiations. The father, G. C. Bohn, refrigerator manufacturer, had previously expressed willingness to pay the $35,000 demanded in a note given the family chauffeur when young Bohn was kidnaped by two men.

Senate Shelves Philippines Bill

(Associated Press.)

The Philippines independence question was laid aside yesterday by the Senate until the next session of Congress. The step came after nearly a week of debate on the Hawes-Cutting bill to free the islands, with a vote nowhere in sight.

At the request of Democratic Leader Robinson further consideration of the bill was postponed to December 8, at 2 p. m.

Robinson told the Senate he felt confident the vote would be 3 to 1 in favor of the Hawes-Cutting bill when action could be taken.

U. S. Infantry Regiment To Quit Shanghai Today

Shanghai, July 1 (A.P.).—The Thirty-first U. S. Infantry, which was sent here last February to assist in the protection of the International Settlement, boarded the transport Republic this evening and will sail for Manila early tomorrow.

Thousands cheered them as they marched through the city to the pier.

German Political Riots Take Big Toll

Armored Cars Fight Reds in Berlin; Two Slain in Ruhr Basin.

Berlin (Saturday), July 2 (U.P.).—Police in armored cars battled Communist rioters in the workers' district of Moabite early today after a series of street clashes. The Communists fired on the police from ambush and offered strong resistance.

The fighting began about midnight when police attempted to disperse a crowd of Communists. The crowd fought back, knocked out street lamps and then fired on the police. Communists hid on roofs and in darkened windows and shot at the police cars, which used strong searchlights in an effort to locate the snipers.

Berlin, July 1 (A.P.).—Political riots in many German cities resulted today in three deaths and injuries to at least 42 persons. There were many outbursts in the Ruhr Basin, one of the worst being at Hattingen, where Communists and Hitlerites battled, causing a casualty list of two dead and 30 injured. A Nazi in Shoeneberg, Berlin suburb, shot two men who tried to take a party emblem off his cap. In Cologne a Nazi shot three men, killing one of them.

Dry Bureau Drops 75 in Saving Move

Agents Are Indefinitely Furloughed to Meet Reduced Budget.

(Associated Press.)

Prohibition Director Amos W. W. Woodcock said last night 75 prohibition agents were indefinitely furloughed, effective yesterday, as a result of economies made necessary by cuts in the Prohibition Bureau's funds for the current fiscal year.

The prohibition director said it is necessary for the bureau to save $1,168,000 during the new fiscal year, as compared with $300,000 last year. He said about $350,000 of the savings was expected to be effected by dropping personnel.

Hitlerites Raid Dance And Attack Diplomats

Vienna, July 1 (A.P.).—A crowd of National Socialists, shouting "Germany Awake!" invaded a dance at the International Country Club near here today, demolishing the furniture and attacking the guests, among whom were the Roumanian and Argentine ministers and the Italian military attache.

Tammany Willing To Follow Leader

Chicago Stadium, July 1 (A.P.).—Tammany swung behind the presidential candidacy of Gov. Roosevelt when the fourth ballot gave him the Democratic nomination, Leader John F. Curry remarking: "The convention has decided. We are good Democrats."

Similiar sentiments of loyalty were voiced by John H. McCooey, the Brooklyn leader, who said: "We will abide by the convention."

Tammany's lines, however, held steadfast for former Gov. Smith on the roll call, despite repeated entreaties of leaders from other delegations, particularly Kansas, neighbors in the convention hall.

Ritchie Says Maryland Will Follow Candidate

Chicago, July 1 (A.P.).—Gov. Ritchie of Maryland tonight said:

"We Democrats in Maryland believe in the principles of Democracy and we always follow the candidate. We are especially glad that the delegates from Maryland aided in getting the wet plank in the platform."

COMMENT IN CAPITAL ON DEMOCRATIC CHOICE

PARTY CHIEFTAINS HOLD VICTORY SURE

(Associated Press.)

The triumphant march of Franklin D. Roosevelt to the Democratic Presidential nomination last night found a spontaneous echo in the Capital among stalwarts of his party and they called back enthusiastic predictions of victory.

Said Representative Rainey, Democratic floor leader:

"That means Garner will be chosen the Vice Presidential nominee by acclamation.

"It will make the strongest possible ticket. It is an ideal ticket. It is the winning ticket."

Others said:

Senator Coolidge, of Massachusetts—"Massachusetts has always been loyal to the party nominee. I think Massachusetts will be glad to vote for the nominee of the Chicago convention."

Many G. O. P. Votes Claimed.

Senator Copeland, of New York—"Gov. Roosevelt had a great victory. Undoubtedly the platform and Gov. Roosevelt's popular appeal will give him many Republican votes."

Senator Hayden, of Arizona—"I am perfectly delighted. He will win. My State has been for him from the start and I am particularly pleased on that account."

Representative Crisp, of Georgia—"I am personally very much delighted. I think they have made the best nomination possible. I feel that he will be elected in November and that he will make a great President."

Other Comment.

Representative Byrns, of Tennessee—"No stronger or more popular candidate could have been nominated. His nomination will undoubtedly be pleasing to the overwhelming majority of Democrats throughout the Nation and there can be little doubt but that he will be triumphantly elected."

Representative Snell, the Republican House leader, said the selection of Roosevelt "is eminently satisfactory to me and I am sure it will be the same to all the Republicans in the country."

"If the switch of California and Texas means, and I understand it does, that Speaker Garner will be the vice presidential candidate," the New Yorker said, "I will be very glad to see Jack get it if he wants it. I can't see, however, why he should want it."

District's Try to Break Unit Rule Is Blocked

Special to The Washington Post.

Chicago, Ill., July 1.—Efforts to break the unit rule which gave all six votes of the District of Columbia delegation to Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, of New York, were set at naught in the Democratic convention here tonight when Senator Thomas P. Walsh, of Montana, convention chairman, ruled the minority of the delegation must go along with the majority.

"The same election which gave the District of Columbia delegates a right to their seats in this convention placed them under the unit rule," Walsh ruled. The fight over the question had been launched in the course of the first ballot and continued determinedly through the second and third ballots and the decisive ruling of Walsh came soon after the convention reconvened in the night session and before the balloting actually was begun.

SUCCESSES FEATURE LIFE OF ROOSEVELT

affairs through a Democratic-controlled Legislature.

He organized a bloc against the election of William J. Sheehan, Tammany's candidate to the United States Senate. He was successful in his fight and compromised on James M. O'Gorman. The long-drawn-out battle was chiefly instrumental in revising the election machinery so as to place the choice of senators directly in the hands of the voters.

He was the unsuccessful running mate of James M. Cox, the presidential candidate in 1920. After the campaign he remained active in politics, but directed his main attention to his private business as an attorney and as director of several insurance and banking institutions.

Afflicted with infantile paralysis, which hindered the use of his lower limbs, he refused to sit quietly back and assume the role of invalid. He placed the name of Alfred E. Smith before the national convention at New York in 1924 and actively worked for Smith. He appeared in the same role in 1928 when Smith was nominated, then quietly retired to Warm Springs, Ga., where he found the baths to be beneficial in treating the malady which had afflicted him.

Elected Governor.

He emerged from private life again, however, to run for governor and was elected, although Smith failed to carry the State as the presidential candidate.

The rift which has occurred since between the two men, friends of Roosevelt say, mystified no one more than the governor himself.

The outstanding accomplishment of his two terms as governor was settlement of the water power development controversy which had torn the State for a decade. He won agreement by the Republican-controlled legislature, which had opposed his plan for public development of the St. Lawrence River hydroelectric resources and the project is under way.

Roosevelt saw in the plan a means of providing cheap power for industry and the home.

Aids Afflicted.

One of his principal private endeavors has been the incorporation of the Warm Springs Foundation, where annually hundreds of sufferers from infantile paralysis undergo treatment.

Mrs. Roosevelt is a first cousin of the late President and a sixth cousin of the governor. They have five children—Franklin D., jr., James, Elliott and John, and one daughter, Mrs. Curtis B. Dall. James and Elliott are married. The former actively campaigned for his father in two States.

PRECEDENT IS NEAR IN GARNER'S CHOICE

Would Be First Speaker to Be Nominated for Vice Presidency.

Chicago Stadium, July 1 (A.P.).—Speaker John N. Garner in all probability will be nominated tomorrow by the Democratic convention as Vice President.

The silver-haired Texan, whose decision today to release his Texas and California presidential delegates broke the deadlock over selection of Gov. Roosevelt for the Presidency, is the choice of the Roosevelt leaders. It will be the first time in history that a Speaker of the House has been nominated for Vice President.

The Garner boom swept the convention as William G. McAdoo, his chief supporter, announced from the platform the decision of California to switch to Gov. Roosevelt.

Disappointed opponents of Roosevelt on the convention floor set up the cry of a "deal," but this was denied by the Rooseveltians. There was no doubt, however, of support for the Texan by the Roosevelt leadership after a hurried round of conferences.

McAdoo First Mentioned.

The name of McAdoo also took root in the vice presidential discussion after his dramatic platform announcement of the break of the California vote for Roosevelt, but the new party leadership which advanced Roosevelt to the nomination was passing the word for Garner.

James A. Farley, the official spokesman for Gov. Roosevelt, declined to comment on the Vice Presidency, asserting that was a decision entirely up to the convention.

Garner is 63 years old and, like the Republican vice presidential nominee, Charles Curtis, of Kansas, he is a veteran of a quarter of a century of activity in Congress.

Whether he would consider the Vice Presidency has been a moot question in Washington, where the rivalry between the Speaker of the House and the presiding officer of the Senate—the Vice President—is century old.

Cannon Refused Offer.

In 1904 a Republican delegation representing every State went to "Uncle Joe" Cannon at the national convention and urged him to take the office. As Speaker, Cannon ruled the House with an iron hand. He declined the offer. But the House rules have been greatly modified since that day and the all-powerful rule of the Speaker has been taken away.

Garner is believed prepared by the Democratic leadership to wage an active campaign. A picturesque figure, the Texan is a forthright speaker and believes in saying what he thinks. As minority leader of the House for years he conducted fiery attacks upon the Harding-Coolidge-Hoover administrations and his popularity was shown by an almost united following at every stage.

He voted against the eighteenth amendment, but he supported all enforcement measures after it became effective. Only recently he issued a formal statement declaring for repeal of the eighteenth amendment.

Democrats Elect Chairman Today

Chicago, July 1 (A.P.).—The Democratic national committee will meet tomorrow and elect a chairman to succeed John J. Raskob.

James A. Farley, the Roosevelt campaign manager, and Robert Jackson, of New Hampshire, secretary to the national committee, and Roosevelt spokesman, are the outstanding possibilities. Both are close to Roosevelt and have contributed much toward obtaining the presidential nomination for the New York Governor.

Farley now is chairman of the New York State committee, as well as chairman of the State Boxing Commission. He is favored in many quarters for the post. Jackson has been considered but he has told friends that because of his business affairs he could not accept. Should Roosevelt insist on his taking the post, however, it is understood that he would.

STICK TO YOUR GUNS, ROOSEVELT ADVISES

"Nation Must Not Be Overridden," His Message to Delegates Says.

Chicago, July 1 (A.P.).—Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt tonight sent a message to his delegates urging them to "stick to your guns" in the battle "to keep our party as a whole free from dictation by a small group representing the interests in the Nation which have no place in our party."

"I am in this fight to stay. Please thank all delegates voting for me.

"This is a battle for principle. A clear majority of the convention understands that it is being waged to keep our party as a whole free from dictation by a small group representing the interests in the Nation and which have no place in our party.

"My friends will not be misled by organized propaganda by telegrams now being sent to delegates.

"Stick to your guns. It is clear that the Nation must not and shall not be overridden. Now is the time to make it clear that we intend to stand fast and win.

"FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT."

Former Convict Seized In Drug Agent Slaying

Convention Crowd Spends Whole Day in Slumber

Fagged-Out Democrats Hurry to Bed After All-Night Session; Farley Changes Mind About Press Talk and Takes Another Nap.

Chicago, July 1 (A.P.).—"Do Not Disturb" signs were plentiful today along the corridors of Chicago hotels. They marked the temporary resting places of fagged-out Democrats deep in sleep, recovering from hours of cheering, shouting and tramping along the milling aisles of the convention hall.

They lost no time, when the convention finally adjourned, shortly after 9 o'clock this morning, in getting to their rooms and into bed, as rapidly as general weariness would permit.

There were, however, some exceptions—the field marshals leading the forces of the various candidates, who through the night had fought grimly to hold their lines intact, stayed up for one more check-up and brief conferences with their lieutenants.

One of these was James A. Farley, chief tactician for Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt whom the last ballot taken this morning gave a vote of 682.79, less than 90 short of the nomination.

But it wasn't long before he, too, retired. Beforehand, however, he left word he would meet newspapermen at 3 o'clock, but that hour passed with word that Mr. Farley wanted another nap and the conference would be postponed.

Members of the Oklahoma delegation said their chief, the famed "Alfalfa Bill" Murray, was worn out by the all-night session. He turned in soon after reaching his hotel and left word that he was not to be disturbed until 5:30. It was the first day since his arrival here that Gov. Murray has not been in his headquarters greeting swarms of visitors with a handshake.

William G. McAdoo, leading the campaign for Speaker Garner, set 5 o'clock as his rising hour and had all telephone calls transferred to another room where sat a bell-boy taking down the phone numbers and messages of callers.

Melvin A. Traylor, Illinois favorite son, stayed at the convention until the gavel banged adjournment. But he was up shortly after noon and at his Chicago bank, busy with its affairs. Later, he talked at length by telephone with Frank Scofield, his campaign manager.

The mezzanine floor of the Congress Hotel, thronged for days past, was virtually deserted. Clerical staffs, only, managed the banner-hung headquarters of candidates preparing with rest, for a renewal of the tense struggle which again might be waged throughout the night.

VIRGINIA DELEGATES RELEASED BY BYRD

Chicago, July 1 (A.P.).—Released by former Gov. Harry Flood Byrd, the Virginia delegation tonight leaped into the big demonstration for Franklin D. Roosevelt before his nomination by the Democratic party as its presidential candidate.

Word that California would cast her 44 Garner-pledged votes for Roosevelt reached the delegation before William G. McAdoo mounted the platform to announce the vote. The demonstration interrupted the Californian's address and Chairman M. B. Booker and T. McCall Frazier clung to the State standard until Byrd could reach over and shout to them that the delegation was released.

Booker held the standard aloft and a resounding cheer echoed from the convention hall. Around the hall it went followed by a throng of cheering Virginians.

Without waiting for the roll of States to be called former Gov. Byrd said he felt assured that the party would win with Roosevelt.

"Under the leadership of Franklin D. Roosevelt I am sure the Democratic party will win a great victory in November," he said. "Every possible effort on my part will be exerted to that end."

The Virginia delegation, pledged to Byrd until a majority should deem it in the best interest of the party to change, came to the convention tonight expecting to cast the vote for Byrd again. But when California started the march Virginia was urged by Byrd to join in the parade.

When Virginia was called on the roll of State's Chairman Booker asked Byrd to take the microphone from the page and he arose and in a clear voice cast the 24 votes for Roosevelt.

Mrs. Norton Urged As Running Mate

Chicago, July 1 (A.P.).—Losing in its attempt to bring about the defeat of Gov. Roosevelt for the Democratic presidential nomination, the New Jersey delegation tomorrow will solace itself with placing in nomination for the Vice Presidency Representative Mary T. Norton.

Mrs. Norton will be nominated by Miss Thelma Parkinson, one-time party candidate for the United States Senate. Despite their disappointment, the delegates, contrary to the convention statements of their leader, Mayor Frank Hague, believe Roosevel will carry the State in November.

Hague himself took his defeat bitterly, but later recovered his composure. When he learned that California and Texas would capitulate to the Roosevelt forces, his ruddy face flushed a darker red, and the few words he had to say were snarled.

SMITH, DEFEATED, DECLINES TO TALK

his former political ally, he turned to William F. Kenny, New York millionaire and close personal friend. There was a brief whispered conversation.

Meanwhile, his associates, campaign aids and friends looked at each other and said nothing, but their expressions disclosed their feelings.

Begin Packing at Once.

Before McAdoo had finished speaking and before the balloting was over the office staff began packing Smith posters, Smith literature and Smith buttons into huge wooden boxes.

The result of the last ballot was just announced when the last case was nailed shut. A political headquarters that for days had swarmed with autograph hunters and button collectors in a few minutes had become a bare hotel suite again.

Smith and his party will leave Chicago tomorrow, probably on the Twentieth Century Limited. The group that sat around the radio with the defeated candidate and which probably will accompany him back East included Kenny, Judge Joseph M. Proskauer, of New York; Robert Moses, former secretary of State; John Godfrey Saxe, New York attorney, and Smith's daughter, Mrs. Emily Smith Warner.

At the stadium, while the landslide was toppling down, Mayor James J. Walker of New York turned to John N. Curry, the Tammany leader, and urged him to change the vote of that organization to Roosevelt "for the sake of our reputation." Tammany stuck to Smith, however.

VOTE SWITCH MADE FOR PARTY HARMONY

McAdoo, in Speech, Asserts Deadlock Would Have Caused Schisms.

Chicago, July 1 (A.P.).—The text of the speech by William Gibbs McAdoo announcing the change in the vote of the California delegation follows:

"Mr. Chairman, Ladies and Gentlemen: I thank you for the privilege accorded to me to say just a word in explaining the vote of the State of California. California came here to nominate a President of the United States. She did not come here to deadlock this convention or to engage in another desolating contest like that of 1924.

"In my great State, where Democracy has increased its registration this year 143 per cent, we believe that the interests of the people of the United States will be best conserved by a change from a Republican administration to a Democratic administration.

Fears Schisms in Party.

"We think that a useless contest on this floor, long prolonged, would only lead to schisms in the party that could not be cured, perhaps, before election. Sometimes in major operations, where skillful surgery is required, the life of the patient may be destroyed if there is unnecessary delay.

"We believe, therefore, that California should take a stand here tonight that will bring this contest to a swift, and, we hope, satisfactory conclusion—a stand, we hope, which will be promotive of party harmony—a stand taken with the utmost unselfishness, and, regardless of our own views of the situation—a stand prompted by the fact that our belief in Democracy is such that when any man comes into this convention with the popular will behind to the extent of almost 700 votes——

(Long interruption.)

"I want to thank the galleries for the compliment they have paid me, and this convention wants to know, for the guidance of future Democratic conventions, whether or not this is the kind of hospitality that Chicago accords to its guests.

Indicative of Sentiment.

"I intend to say what I propose to say here tonight without regard to what the galleries or anybody else thinks.

"As I was saying when this demonstration began, my friends, whenever a man comes into this convention with 700 votes in his favor, I take it as indicative of the public sentiment of the country for that candidate, and, as I believe in Democracy and the rule of the majority, and the two-thirds rule which makes it very difficult in Democratic conventions to nominate any man, I say that when any man is within reach of the two-thirds that are necessary to nominate him, he is entitled to the nomination, and California proposes to do her share to see that the popular will is respected.

"We came here for the great Texan, John N. Garner. We have lost not one whit of the love and respect in which we held that great statesman. He is worthy of the highest place that you could give him, but he hasn't as many votes as Mr. Roosevelt and I want to say that Mr. Garner himself is in accord with the position I take here tonight.

Acting for Best Interests.

"The great State of Texas and the great State of California are acting in accordance with what we believe to be best, first for America and next for the Democratic party, and I want to create no wounds. I had a very ineffectual part in the wounds that were created against my wish in 1924.

"I should like to see Democrats fight Republicans and not Democrats, and if this party is worthy of the respect and confidence of the American people, it will conduct itself in such a way that when its decision is finally announced about these candidates we can go forth to the American people with confidence that our decision represents the will of these delegates, even though all of them may not believe that the course we take is all right.

"I have never seen any Democratic convention which agreed unanimously, except when everybody else except the successful man had been licked, that that was the man who ought to be named President of the United States.

New Jersey Drops 50 From Its State Police

Trenton, N. J., July 1 (A.P.).—The New Jersey State police brought to national prominence by the Lindbergh kidnaping, had a budget trimming today.

Thirty-four troopers and sixteen "civilian" employes were dropped from the pay roll and twelve substations closed. The department must cut enough corners to accommodate a $200,000 reduction in its allotment for the year.

Three Cheers Are Urged For Convention Organists

By JOHN J. DALY

WHEN the noise of battle has subsided, when the last convention call has sounded, the delegates calling it a day, when the favorite sons and the favored daughters have climbed on the bandwagon and gone home, some one ought to stand up and say a good word for the organists—the party organists who found all the lost chords at the two major political conventions.

Though no hymns were sung at either convention, the impromptu parades were made livelier by the strains of a monster organ played by organists whose names never got in the newspapers. They were versatile musicians, too, these organists, whose fingers slipped lightly over the keys, playing at one moment, "The Sidewalks of New York" and at the next, "Out Where the Tall Corn Grows."

NO soft-pedaling for these organists. They did not pussyfoot with the nether pedals when the wet demonstrators called for "How Dry I Am;" nor again, when the drys asked for "The Battle Hymn of the Republic."

When a favorite son from any community called for the calliopean concert of his particular Commonwealth the organ boomed out with "California, Here I Come," or "Maryland, My Maryland," or "Carry Me Back—And Make It Snappy—to Ole Virginny." No sectionalism, no narrow provincialism, cramped the organists. They played "Dixie" with their left hands and "Yankee Doodle" with the right, ribald drinking songs like "Bud, Bud Weiser's a Friend of Mine," for the wets, and "The Brewers' Big Horses Can't Run Over Me" for the drys.

ROOSEVELT IS NOMINATED ON SESSION'S FOURTH BALLOT

As soon as the nomination had been made, the next business—nominating a Vice President—became the dominant topic. The plan of the Roosevelt leaders is to meet at 1 p. m. tomorrow to nominate Garner.

The ticket will go to the country on the first out-and-out wet platform of any party in the dozen years that the eighteenth amendment has been in effect. In line with Roosevelt's personal stand, repeal of prohibition is made the pledge of the party as against the Republican platform that promises submission of an alternative amendment that would retain the Federal police power over the States for control of liquor. In addition, the Democrats go for immediate modification of the Volstead act to allow beer and wine.

The platform adopted this week also opposes cancellation of the war debts and advocates a "competitive tariff for revenue," a sound currency and a balanced budget.

U. S. Aid to State Relief.

The document calls for Federal aid to the States for unemployment relief when State funds become exhausted, a refinancing of the Nation's farm debt at low interest and control of crop surpluses, and a cut of $1,000,000,000 in the cost of Government.

The break that put Roosevelt across came late in the afternoon, after the convention had tried through three fruitless ballots to agree at a tempestuous session that dragged and stormed from 9 last night until after 9 this morning. It was but a matter of less than an hour before the night session.

As the worn-out delegates congregated in the stadium for this fervently climactic session, however, the word of the trend spread quickly and there was no doubt of the outcome from the moment that Chairman Walsh tried to bring order out of the confusion.

Only Two Precedents.

Only twice in party history has the party failed to put a candidate who attained a simple majority in one ballot across that difficult two-thirds hurdle. The first time was back in 1844, with Martin Van Buren the loser, and the second was Champ Clark, in 1912. Just as those two storm-beset conventions wrote themselves into an important place in party history, so did the twelve-hour session that opened with fun-making and closed with angry shouts at 9:10 this morning.

It was in a setting worthy of an epic, to the accompaniment of marching and cheering, booing, hissing and laughter and catnapping, mixing in challenge and denial, and the shrill call of the roll of the States and the incessant drone of whispering.

While the praises of the rivals as voiced in nominating speeches yet were warm, the convention at last reached its first try to nominate at 4:27 a. m. James A. Farley, the Roosevelt manager, had bluntly insisted on staying through "until breakfast, if necessary," and the Rooseveltians ruthlessly beat down an attempt to adjourn without voting.

Walsh's Job Arduous.

Not so long after, when two ballots had been taken giving them 666 on the first and only 10 more on the second, they tried to push an adjournment through; but a mob-sounding shout of "No" shook the dawn-lit stadium, and the third roll call was ordered by the sharp-speaking chairman, Senator Walsh, of Montana.

His was not an easy task, and he was not an easy taskmaster. Time and again delegates from Minnesota, Pennsylvania, Michigan, and the District of Columbia, as well as elsewhere, disputed the report of those votes, demanded and got time-killing polls of the delegations, raised points of technicality or halted proceedings with an insistence that the sergeant at arms forcibly undertake to make unruly portions of the audience and galleries behave and sit down.

Time and again, too, Walsh listened, then answered quietly, or spoke cuttingly if he deemed it required.

Tempers were tried within delegations when polls were called for and obtained, there being much misunderstanding as to the alternate positions in case of absence of a delegate. This led repeatedly to conflicts bordering on fist fights, but intermission fell like a blessing before feelings were that frazzled.

Cheers for Walker.

During most of the State polls, shirt-sleeved and sleepy-eyed crowds of delegates munched sandwiches on walks through the halls, strolled around the floor, or stretched out on chairs to sleep. But not so when John F. Curry, the Tammany leader, reported he was unable to give the New York vote—because he had been unable to take a complete poll—thereby making each of those in the 94 votes proclaim his choice openly.

All attention then. In a side room off the floor, Alfred E. Smith had just arrived—but he stayed away from the convention eye, talking things over with his friends in seclusion. He didn't vote himself, but his alternate cried "Smith."

Mayor "Jimmy" Walker had gone home to bed, but on a hurry call dressed and rushed to the floor, arriving in time to say he, too, was for Smith. For the first time in hours, much of the lethargic audience broke into cheers as the mayor bowed in his neat brown suit, replaced his hat and made off.

The Tammanyites from Curry down went as one for Smith then, the tally showing 65½ for "The Happy Warrior" and 28½ for Roosevelt. But on the successive ballots the Smith strength dwindled to Roosevelt's benefit.

Withdrawal of Murray.

The first candidate to withdraw entirely was Gov. William H. Murray of Oklahoma, who had the 22 of his State on the first, and drew a hearty laugh as he paid the compliment of giving them to Will Rogers, of Claremore, Okla., on the second. The humorist who had clowned to the joy of all in the earlier Murray parade, has had votes in previous conventions.

Missouri broke away from former Senator Reed even before the first ballot was completed, the first real crack, giving 12 of its 36 to Roosevelt and a few more subsequently. On the third ballot, Murray split the Oklahoma vote between Reed and Garner. He intimated some might go later to Harry F. Byrd.

Virginia and Maryland stayed loyally with Byrd and Gov. Albert F. Ritchie, respectively, for the beginning ballots. Ohio broke the merest fraction from Gov. George White for Roosevelt.

Rockefeller, Sr., Goes To His Summer Home

New York, July 1 (A.P.).—John D. Rockefeller, sr., returned quietly to his summer home at Kyk Uit, in Pocantico Hills, today, making the trip from his Lakewood, N. J., estate through the Holland tunnel in order to avoid ferrying across the Hudson River.

It was the first time the aged financier, who a week from today will celebrate his ninety-third birthday, had used the tunnel in recent years. He had avoided it because of fear the air pressure in the tunnel might injure his eardrums.

GIORDANO EXECUTED AFTER 3 REPRIEVES

First Admits Making Up "Confession" in Connection With Baby Killing.

Ossining, N. Y., July 1 (A.P.).—Thrice snatched from the rim of death, Frank Giordano and Dominic Odierno were electrocuted in Sing Sing Prison tonight for the slaying of an obscure beer runner.

Giordano, member of the late Vincent Coll's gang, had won three reprieves—two by Gov. Roosevelt and one by Warden Lewis E. Lawes—on his guarantee to shed light on New York underworld killings, and Odierno was reprieved with him. Giordano "confessed" last night that he was implicated in the Harlem baby killing and repudiated his statement today.

Giordano, 32, entered the death chamber first and was near hysterics. "I'm innocent of the whole thing—they framed me, father," he told Father John P. McCaffrey, who walked with him to the chair. He was pronounced dead at 11:05.

Lawes Not Present.

Odierno followed a few minutes later and was comparatively calm. He made no statement and was pronounced dead at 11:11 p. m. Lawes, who refused the prisoners another special dinner, was not present for the execution.

Cowed in the face of death, Giordano today admitted falsely "confessing" participation in the Harlem baby killing in the hope of escaping the electric chair.

Giordano, once asquitted of the murder of 5-year-old Michael Vengalli, made his hoax confession last night as Lawes made final preparations to execute him for killing a rival mobsman.

Today, faced by five members of the Bronx homicide squad and by acting District Attorney Sylvester Ryan, he repudiated that confession.

Trick Worked Before.

The trick had worked twice before. Gov. Roosevelt twice added a week to Giordano's life when he promised to give information about unsolved killings.

It worked last night, too. Lawes, for the first time in Sing Sing's history, granted a condemned man a 24-hour respite.

All of his statements—the one telling Lawes he drove the car in which Vincent Coll and "Fats" McCarthy sat while spraying a street filled with children with bullets and earlier ones giving information about other killings—all were "lies," Giordano told Ryan and the detectives. Lawes said the delayed execution would be carried out tonight.

Bingham Seeks to Legalize Beer With Democratic Aid

Sees Repeal Plank As Assurance of Success As He Renews Fight in Senate; Will Press Measure As Loan Bill Rider.

(Associated Press.)

Legislation to legalize beer was brought before the Senate yesterday, with its sponsors claiming enough votes to pass it in view of the Democratic party's stand for immediate modification of the Volstead act.

The beer proposal was presented by Senator Bingham (Republican), Connecticut, as conferees on the gigantic unemployment relief bill neared an agreement which leaders believed would permit adjournment of Congress by the end of next week.

Senator Bingham offered his bill to legalize 3.2 per cent beer as a rider to the administration-sponsored home loan discount bill which the Senate took up for debate.

The Connecticut Republican told newspapermen he believed 51 senators would vote for the measure.

As an amendment to the home loan bill, the beer measure was in a favorable position for consideration, because administration leaders were pressing for a vote on the former, which constitutes the last item of President Hoover's reconstruction program.

Senator Watson, the Republican leader, called up for debate the home loan bill, which would authorize the creation of a system of banks to discount home mortgages and is designed to put new life into the home construction industry.

Senator Bingham, in offering his beer amendment, told the Senate he would ask that consideration be delayed until the Democrats return from Chicago.

"Thanks to the Democratic platform," he said, "modification now seems possible."

Later, off the floor, he recalled that his amendment to legalize and tax beer had obtained 31 votes earlier in the session. Pointing out that most of them were Republican votes, Senator Bingham said:

"Since the adoption by the Democratic convention of a plank calling for immediate modification of the Volstead act, I now hope to receive enough Democratic support to help pass this bill, even though it is in the form of a rider."

When Senator Watson called up the home loan discount bill in the Senate, Senator Borah (Republican), Idaho, sought to substitute the Glass proposal for the Goldsborough dollar stabilization bill.

Senator Watson, however, told Senator Borah he believed the Glass bill, designed to give the circulating privilege to $1,000,000,000 in United States bonds, thus increasing the currency, could be taken up before adjournment next week.

Later during debate on the home loan bill, Senator Borah said Congress before adjourning should "allow the individual citizens to have more money and currency."

"I personally am in favor of that," Senator Watson replied.

Senator Borah insisted that Congress had so far found no way to reach the individual citizen, and said the Reconstruction Corporation had only aided the banks, to which Senator Watson conditionally agreed.

Senator Borah asked for assurance that the home loan bill would not work out the same way.

"If you want to help the little fellow in a real way," Senator Watson replied, "you can't do it more effectively than in this way, to permit him to retain his home."

Senator Couzens (Republican), of Michigan, contended that the home loan bill would not benefit the small home owner.

Both houses of Congress agreed during the day to recess over the Fourth of July week-end, from last night until Tuesday, when it is hoped the relief conferees will be ready to report.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

THE MODERN PRIZE FIGHT.

"The Battle of the Century"
Went on as thousands came
To see the titans struggle
For a fortune and for fame.

Both boys rushed swinging at the bell,
And Battling Joe McGeer
Ran into Kid McGoofel's fist
And spun upon his ear.

"The Battler" laughed a sickly laugh
And hardly did he rise
Before "The Kid" then floored him with
A blow between the eyes.

He took a count of nine before
He struggled to his feet,
And as he reeled around he was

"The Battler's" face ran red with blood,
All gory was his chin;
"Kid Whoozisz" backed him to the ropes
And knocked him down again.

"The Kid," alert and out to kill,
Kept ever on his toes,
And when "The Battler" struggled up
He socked him on the nose.

"The Battler" swayed around the ring,
Then once again he fell,
But he was saved a knockout by
The ringing of the bell.

A minute's rest was far too brief
To clear his muddled mind,
And as he groped about the ring
He seemed both dazed and blind.

"The Kid" then nailed him on the cheek,
A vicious deadly crack;
He fell into a fight fan's lap—
The fight fan threw him back.

"The Battler" lasted out the round,
His features dripping red;
"Don't worry," said his manager,
"For you're far out ahead!"

They threw cold water on his neck
And kept him in the fight;
"The Kid" then floored him with a left—
Then floored him with a right!

"The Battler" didn't have a thing—
His eyes were black and blue,
And as he looked upon his foe
He fancied he saw two.

He tried to hit the middle one
When two foes grew to three,
But missed the group by seven feet
And hit the referee!

"That's it!" his seconds cried in glee—
They were a keen-eyed bunch;
"That's it! Go in and show the crowd
That you have got the punch!"

"The Battler" paused to clear his brain
And then "The Kid" drew back
And landed on his kidney with
A most terrific whack.

He also smacked him on the mouth
And just below the heart;
He socked him in the middle 'til
He seemed to fall apart.

For fifteen rounds the slaughter raged
And not a single blow
Was landed by "The Battler," for
He was too dumb and slow.

At last the battle ended; it
Was just a formal thing
To wait and hear the judges then
Proclaim the boxing king.

* * * *

A hush . . . and the announcer's voice
Proclaimed in accents clear,
"The WINNAH and new champeen, boys,
Is BATTLING JOE McGEER!"

What the minds of some politicians need in making such rapid changes on the prohibition question is a zipper.

THREE MORE MONEY BILLS GO TO HOOVER

Congress Continues Slicing as $2,885,000,000 Deficit Is Announced.

By ROBERT C. ALBRIGHT.

Congress chiseled away yesterday at a $2,885,000,000 national deficit, taking final action on all but two of the departmental supply bills and bringing savings under budget appropriations estimates to approximately $153,000,000.

Final action next week on War and Agriculture supply bills is expected to bring the cuts below budget figures to about $185,000,000. Added to $150,000,000 claimed for the economy bill, Congress may boast a saving of $335,000,000 over and above a hoped for billion dollars from the revenue act.

Failure to break conference deadlocks on War and Agriculture bills yesterday left those two departments without funds for the first four days of the new fiscal year. The Senate will not meet again until Tuesday.

Five Billion Expended.

Although requisitions were said to be piling up without money to meet them, the delay is not expected to occasion anything of an emergency nature. Pay day, it was noted, is still two weeks off.

Secretary of the Treasury Mills announced the deficit the largest in this country's peace-time history. Receipts for the year ended Thursday reached $2,121,000,000, he said, while expenditures mounted to $5,006,000,000.

"The Federal finances for the fiscal year just closed reflect the effect of the unprecedented depression upon both the revenues and the outlays of the Government," was his comment.

In a final drive to push all supply bills through without the necessity of continuing resolutions, both houses yesterday completed action on three more of the eleven appropriaiton measures, speeding them to the White House for signature.

These were the $1,056,000,000 Post-office-Treasury bill, trimmed $26,000,000 below the budget; the $112,000,000 State, Justice, Commerce and Labor measure, cut $17,000,000, and the $22,000,000 second deficiency bill, increased over the $16,000,000 budget figures.

Following passage of the huge Postoffice-Treasury measure, Senator Oddie (Republican), Nevada, chairman of the subcommittee in charge, said few Government workers would lose their jobs because of that bill.

Funds for salaries were spared in the pruning and will be affected only by provisions of the economy bill, said Chairman Addie.

Department heads throughout the city yesterday struggled with provisions of the economy measure, awaiting specific interpretations from the Comptroller General. The Navy Department placed 45,600 civilian workers on a five-day week, while the Labor Department debated doing the same.

Sick Leave Sought.

President Hoover was called on to grant sick leave to workers in navy yards, arsenals, the Government Printing Office and the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, in a letter from Gertrude M. McNally, secretary-treasurer of the National Federation of Federal Employes.

She commended Mr. Hoover for executive orders extending the service of a number of employes who have reached the retirement age, continuing government travel regulations and extending sick leave of absence for Government workers.

"We wish to bring to your attention the fact that a large group of employes do not, under present law, receive sick leave," she said. "We commend these employes to your consideration, particularly in view of the fact that most of them are working an eight-hour day on mechanical work that requires much physical strain."

How cuts in the nine appropriation bills that have passed Congress and the two to be forced through next week will affect personnel, is a matter for each department head to work out independently.

Rigorous curtailment of workers employed was averted when the Senate abandoned its policy of cutting 10 per cent below H. use appropriation figures. Only the $45,000,000 Interior Department bill was enacted into law with the 10 per cent slash.

Cutting each item to the bone, the House claimed a saving under budget figures of $162,000,000 on all supply bills to pass through its hands. The Senate applied the pruning knife with even more vigor. As a result, if a fair compromise is reached on differences in the war and agriculture measures, reductions under budget figures will approximate a $185,000,000 total, or $513,000,000 under last year's appropriations.

Over the War Department bill, House and Senate conferees are split on House insistence on retirement of 2,000 Army officers. Agriculture conferees are divided over the Senate $1,450,000 provision for fighting the grasshopper pest. A settlement is expected Tuesday or Wednesday.

U. S. Employes Are Rushing To Jobs as Law Ends Leave

Many Consular, Army and Navy Officers Unable to Reach Posts in Time; Interpretation of New Statute to Be Sought.

(Associated Press.)

Their play cut short by the new Federal economy bill which suspends regular leaves with pay for this fiscal year and provides an enforced furlough of one month without pay, many Government employes now on vacation are rushing to their jobs.

In this country and abroad the move back to work is going on and various departments are making every effort to reach absent employes.

The effectiveness today of the enforced furlough plan caught hundreds of Army and Navy officers, as well as officials of the State and other departments, away on vacations.

Cecil M. P. Cross, American consul at Cape Town, South Africa, and Arthur Garrels, American consul general at Tokyo, are in the United States on leave and can not get back to their posts within a month. They are typical of diplomatic employes, naval and Army officers serving abroad who have accumulated their annual leaves for the purpose of making extended visits in this country.

The economy act provides: "All rights now conferred or authorized to be conferred by law upon any officer or employe to receive annual leave of absence with pay are hereby suspended during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1933."

Pending an interpretation of this provision, the War Department has instructed all commanding officers in this country as well as abroad to deny the privilege of leave to all officers unless they understand and accept the possibility of losing their pay in case they seek to make use of leaves accumulated from past years.

The War Department, in the past, permitted leaves to be accumulated for four years, that is, four months in all with pay.

REPARATIONS PLAN PUT UP TO GERMANY

Issue Is Linked With War Debts in Proposal of Five Creditor Powers.

Lausanne, Switzerland, July 1 (A.P.).—A reparations formula, softly phrased to avoid stirring up American opposition, but none the less firmly linking together the problems of reparations and war debts, was submitted by five creditor powers tonight to the German delegation.

The next move was up to Chancellor Franz von Papen, of Germany. German sources were responsible for a report the chancellor had informed Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald, of Great Britain, the program outlined in the formula was not acceptable to his government.

The formula is a miniature Young plan containing no figures and no safeguarding clause which would protect the European creditor nations in the event the United States refused to scale down debts. The figures and the safeguarding clause will be filled in later.

Authorities of the reparations conference explained that the relationship between the debts owed to America and reparations had been diplomatically phrased in the formula. It was understood a plan of allocating certain sums to the United States had been altered to avoid offending the Washington Government.

The core of the scheme would be the issuance of bonds backed by Germany, the proceeds of which would be used to assist in reconstructing Europe and to safeguard nations owing debts to the United States in the event the American Government refused to revise those debts.

The formula establishes the method of issuing the bonds, gauges Germany's capacity to pay, determines the interest rate on the bonds, sets forth how the proceeds would be used for European reconstruction, and describes the conditions under which they might be used to pay the United States.

The five powers—Great Britain, France, Italy, Japan and Belgium—plan to push this program through, appending to the formula either the acceptance or the refusal of Germany.

In well-informed quarters this action was taken to mean that the five powers had virtually decided to state that reparations problems can not be solved without the help of the United States.

CURTIS TRIAL JURY TO GET CASE TODAY

Surprise Move by Defense Brings Testimony to Abrupt Close.

Flemington, N. J., July 1 (A.P.).—With a swift right-about in strategy, the defense in the John Hughes Curtis trial rested its case abruptly this afternoon less than an hour after beginning it.

Curtis himself, whose veracity has been consistently attacked throughout his trial on a charge of obstructing justice in the Lindbergh case, was not put on the stand.

Neither was Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, Betty Gow, the baby's nurse, nor the various police officers subpenaed by the defense and expected to be subjected to virulent attacks by Curtis' lawyers about the defendant's alleged "persecution" to win from him his famous hoax confession.

Only Two Witnesses.

The surprise move came after a last-minute huddle by defense lawyers. Lloyd Fisher, who has conducted most of the cross-examinations, earlier had said Col. H. Norman Schwarzkopf, superintendent of the New Jersey State police, would be their first witness and Curtis their second.

Schwarzkopf walked up to the stand, was excused while a document was being located, and never got back. Two character witnesses from Virginia, Bruce Carney, of Churchill, and Dr. Frank D. Wilson, of Norfolk, testified a few minutes each as the only defense witnesses.

Fisher explained he did not call Curtis because of the "indefinite nature" of the indictment and because the boatbuilder on the stand would have to face Harry Stout, veteran attorney whom the defense vainly sought to oust from the prosecution staff at the beginning of the trial. Court observers interpreted this as a move by Fisher to leave the way open for an appeal should Curtis be convicted.

Goes to Jury Today.

The case will go to the jury in the morning, Judge Adam O. Robbins announced after allotting an hour to each side for summations.

Col. Lindbergh, who has remained at the prosecution counsel table throughout the five days of the trial, sat through the harrowing description by Harry Stout of the finding of the murdered baby's body and of the flier's later identification of it in a Trenton morgue. His expression did not change.

The testimony of inspector Harry Walsh, principal witness of the day, gave the crowded court room its first picture of the scene in the Sourland Mountain home of the Lindberghs a few days after the gruesome finding of the kidnaped baby's body, when Curtis faced Col. Lindbergh and admitted, Walsh testified, he had lied to the flier.

It came after a checker game Walsh played with Curtis, he related. They had gone outside and chatted of Curtis' "wife and kiddies," and the inspector had urged:

"If you haven't told the truth, tell Lindbergh. He can't hang you for it."

Curtis still insisted all his fantastic story about dealings with a desperate kidnaping band was true, Walsh said, except that he had never seen any of the ransom bills paid by Dr. John F. (Jafsie) Condon to the supposed kidnapers in a Bronx cemetery as he previously had claimed.

Admission by Curtis.

So the two went inside, the testimony ran, and Curtis admitted to Col. Lindbergh he had not seen the bills.

"Why all these lies?" Walsh said Lindbergh asked shortly. "Here's another lie. Why don't you tell the truth?"

Lindbergh then wheeled and walked out of the room "in a disgusted manner," Walsh said.

The inspector said he then talked to Curtis some more, urging him to make a clean breast of the whole thing. He said Curtis suddenly jumped from his chair, said "bring me a typewriter" and tapped out his hoax confession, which was introduced into the record of his trial.

"He broke down and cried when he finished it," Walsh testified.

The witness insisted he understood Curtis' treatment by police was "of the highest," though he said he was away much of the time while the stories were being checked. He did admit Curtis might have been put in the cellar of the Lindbergh home to sleep.

"If he was it was no hardship," he said, "I slept in the cellar. He's no better than I am."

THE SATURDAY FOOD AND HOME ECONOMICS PAGE

Appearing Each Week in The Washington Post

FOOD PAGE POPULAR WITH POST READERS

The food editor's mail is crowded nowadays with suggestions for tasty food suitable for hot weather fickle appetites.

Judging from the communications the homemaker is faced with this problem and is eager not only to solve it for herself but to pass on to other women the information and hints she receives along this line.

Dear Editor: I received this morning my beautiful "Prize Book," and I thank you ever so much for it, as I think it quite interesting and very instructive. And I think the effort worth while.

I am very much interested in all of the recipes you print each week, and I think you are making advances in the work. I hope all of the readers of The Washington Post get as much pleasure out of this column as I do. MRS. PHILLIPS.

1734 Lanier place northwest.

Dear Editor: During the spring months I submitted recipes on several occasions and for several received book prizes and for same very much appreciate them. Because I have not sent any recently isn't because I have lost interest for I haven't and turn to that page first each Saturday. Now that New Center Market, Sanitary and Piggly Wiggly stores as well as the others that advertise on this page have so many good things to make summer salads, jams, &c., I could not refrain longer sending in more recipes.

New Center Market will supply your fruits for "chilled diced fruit" for twelve.

2 cups diced fresh pineapple
2 cups diced peaches
2 cups diced pears
1 cup seeded white cherries
1 cup red cherries
4 tablespoons lemon juice
1 cup sugar
2 cups fruit juices (from canned fruit), Sanitary

Mix and chill ingredients. Serve in glass cups and garnish with fresh strawberries (or any of your favorite berries) which have been dipped in confectioner's sugar.

Vegetable Salad Combination.

These are three-layer sandwiches, using either Schneider's Purina sliced wheat bread or whole wheat bread. Spread grated raw carrot and diced celery, seasoned with salt and moistened with mayonnaise (A. & P.) and a little lemon juice, between the first two layers; lettuce, chopped cucumber and chopped almonds (Schneider's) with mayonnaise between the top layers. Garnish with a small whole tomato stuffed with cream cheese.

Yankee Specials.

Mash 1 cup baked beans and mix with 1 tablespoon chili sauce and 1 tablespoon mayonnaise (Kraft at A. & P.). Spread in a thick layer on slices of lightly buttered white or whole wheat bread (Schneider's), add shredded lettuce and cover with slices of buttered bread. Cut in half for serving and garnish with pickled crabapples.

MRS. LILLIAN RUDE.

Tilghman, Talbot County, Md.

Dear Editor: These hot summer days demand some cooling refreshments. Try these and I'm sure you will find them delicious and refreshing. To those who have electric refrigerators the making of "We Three" will require little effort. To those less fortunate freeze it in the cool of the morning in your old-fashioned ice cream freezer, then pack it, until you are so hot you don't know what to do, and then eat it.

We Three.

3 large bananas
3 juicy lemons
3 juicy oranges
3 cups of water
4 cups of sugar (Kidwell's).

Mash the bananas to a pulp. Squeeze the juice and pulp out of the oranges and lemons. Mix all the ingredients together and freeze. It will make about one quart when frozen.

The beauty of this recipe is that you can substitute any three fruits of like quality and use the same proportions. Try using 1 cup of sour cherries, 1 cup of strawberries and 1½ cups of peaches. You can make your own combinations, so as you use one mellow fruit, one tart and the third mild and juicy.

With this "We Three" what I choose to call "Marguerites" goes very well. It is easily made.

Marguerites.

The whites of 3 eggs
½ pound Krispy crackers
1 cup of sugar
2 tablespoons peanut butter

Beat the whites of three eggs until stiff (so that when you turn the bowl upside down the eggs do not fall out). Beat in the sugar and beat until it stands in peaks. Lay your crackers on some cookie tins, put one heaping teaspoon of the eggs and sugar on each cracker, and a bit of peanut butter in the center of each mound, then bake the crackers in a moderately hot oven until the egg whites remain solid. You may keep these fresh in a closed tin box. MRS. W. S. SWAN.

SANDWICH LOAF.
(Honorable Mention.)

A recipe made from ingredients purchased from the Sanitary and Piggly Wiggly Stores in my neighborhood. The sandwich loaf is very suitable for luncheon and bridge parties.

Two loaves bread, 1 whole wheat, 1 white; remove all crusts and slice horizontally into 4-5 slices about 1½ inches thick. Alternate colors and spread all slices with creamed butter. Spread alternately with potted ham, mixed with mayonnaise, and hard boiled eggs and mayonnaise mixed thoroughly, to which a little salt has been added. Press 4-5 slices together and ice with creamed cheese mixed to a soft consistency with cream. Garnish with olives and pickles. Use Pimento chees or Philadelphia cream cheese for icing. Use Underwood's potted ham, Gelfand's mayonnaise. Cut in strips and serve with Russian dressing or plain with a salad.

RECIPES NECESSARY FOR WEEK-END MENUS.

NOT much room for comment today, but may we say that we, here at the Institute, hope that both kiddies and grown-ups alike enjoy to the fullest this week-end, with its extra holiday? And remember, mother and dad, that a safe and sane Fourth will be the happiest in the long run! If there must be fireworks let them be at the community recreation center and let the operator be one who is familiar with the workings of skyrockets, pinwheels and such.

Fried Chicken.
(Southern Style)

1 small chicken
2 tablespoonfuls fat
½ cupful milk
Salt and pepper
Flour

Cut the chicken into four pieces and dip quickly into cold water. Sprinkle well with salt and pepper and roll in flour. Saute in fat until chicken is well browned. Drain, place on warm platter and keep hot while making gravy. Pour all but one tablespoonful of fat from pan, add 1 tablespoonful of flour, the milk and salt and pepper to taste. Pour over the chicken and serve garnished with parsley.

Dinner Rolls.

2 cupfuls scalded milk or boiling water
1 tablespoonful salt
1 tablespoonful sugar
1 tablespoonful butter or other shortening.
½ ounce yeast—dissolved in half cupful lukewarm water
6 to 6½ cupfuls flour

Put salt, sugar and butter in large mixing bowl, add the hot milk or water. When lukewarm add dissolved yeast and five cupfuls of flour. Mix well. Add remaining flour, mix and turn the dough out on a floured board and knead until soft and elastic. Put back into bowl, moisten, cover and let rise in a warm place until double in bulk. Cut down and toss on floured board. Cut in small, even pieces, knead and place in greased muffin tins and allow to rise almost to top of tins. Bake from twenty minutes to half hour in a moderately hot oven.

Vanilla Ice Cream.
(For mechanical refrigerator.)

1½ cupfuls thin cream—scalded
½ cupful sugar
1 cupful heavy cream
1½ teaspoonfuls vanilla

Scald the cream and add the sugar, stirring until the sugar is dissolved. Add the vanilla and chill thoroughly. Whip the cream and fold into it the thin cream mixture. Pour into refrigerator tray and allow to freeze to the mushy stage. Remove the mixture to a cold mixing bowl and beat with a rotary beater until light. Return to the tray and allow to finish freezing.

Hot Chocolate Sauce.

Melt one square of unsweetened chocolate in a saucepan. Add to it 1½ tablespoonfuls of butter and mix thoroughly. Add gradually a third cupful of boiling water and a cupful of granulated sugar. Bring to a boil and simmer for fifteen minutes. Flavor, if desired, with a teaspoonful of vanilla.

Answers to Readers.

Dear Miss Carey—My diet for six days has consisted of a glass of water for breakfast, a glass of grapefruit juice for lunch, and coffee and toast for dinner. I played tennis for two hours every one of these six days and exercised morning and evening. And, after all that lost only two measly pounds! I am 19 years old, weigh 138 pounds and am 5 feet 4 inches tall.

Anything you can do will be appreciated. M. B.

Well, you are in a bad way, aren't you, my dear. After such a drastic diet as the one you outline, and after such persistent daily exercise, you should be well on the way toward slimness, if not complete annihilation! There must be something wrong somewhere. Of one thing I am certain, you have more endurance than I. To get around at all on water, grapefruit juice, coffee and toast, and manage strenuous tennis at the same time, is more than I could ever do. Also, the monotony of such a diet would most certainly not be very conducive, I should think to the congeniality and real pleasure which proper eating calls forth.

Have you ever stopped to think that when we invite our friends to bridge or for an evening's entertainment, and we serve tea and cakes and appetizing refreshments, it isn't always just because our guests may be hungry? It is because of the age-old feeling of friendliness and companionship which encompasses those who share our hospitality. In our common liking for food as food, and because of its vital effect upon our spirits, camaraderie increases in leaps and bounds.

As for your own particular diet, suppose you let us have your name and address. We'll send you our folder to help reduce properly. After all, you've only lost 2 pounds as a result of your own efforts, and perhaps we can help you reach your goal. There is a very big chance that we may, you know; so let us hear from you soon.

CHERRY PIE RECIPE WINS AWARD OF $5

Mrs. William E. Scott Provides Formula for Delicious Confection.

Extolling or exalting cherry pie in words is rather an empty task. The merit of the pie is in the eating alone. This week's Post $5 recipe prize is for cherry pie.

The recipe was submitted by Mrs. William E. Scott, of 108 Jefferson avenue, Riverdale, Md. Try her formula and method which is described below.

1 quart Bing cherries (Sanitary)
1 cup sugar
2 level tablespoons Minute Tapioca
1¼ cups plain flour (Washington)
1 teaspoon salt
⅓ cup shortening
Cold water

Make plain paatry by blending shortening, salt and flour with a pastry mixer or a wire potato masher until like a coarse meal. Add just enough cold water to make a stiff dough. Handle as little and as lightly as possible. Roll out and line pie tin. Fill with pitted cherries and sugar and tapioca. Make narrow strips of remaining dough and make a lattice top on pie. Sprinkle entire pie lightly with sugar and bake in a hot (450 degrees) oven until brown. The tapioca takes up the juice and makes a thick, rich pie. However, if you like your cherry pie juicy, use only 1 level tablespoon of tapioca.

Market Meanderings

By MILDRED REED BUNDY

Markets Offer Tempting Foods for July Fourth Luncheon Baskets—Canned Meats Much Cheaper—Georgia and Carolina Peaches Here.

Numerous are the ways of celebrating the Fourth of July, as every one knows—nearly as numerous as the kinds of people who celebrate the holiday. But all the celebrations are much alike in one respect—they always include many firecrackers and much food. Although the food may seem incidental when the firecrackers are popping and the skyrockets are soaring, just let the lunch baskets get lost and much of the glory is gone from the Glorious Fourth.

Lunch boxes, the Meanderer ventures, hold a major share of America's food on July 4. That doesn't necessarily mean that the Fourth is one of the few days of the year when the cook is excused from heavy duty. But independence of the kitchen's tyranny should come on the national Independence Day. The food sellers of the country are so trained to the business of freeing the cook on July 4 that they plan for weeks ahead of the holiday to have bounteous supplies of prepared foods ready for consumption on the occasion.

Sixty prepared foods, in tins, jars, boxes and bottles, are on a special list printed this week for the housewife's attention, now ready in one set of chain stores. It is possible to choose from this list enough foods to serve amply for the week-end and holiday without it becoming necessary for the housewife to supply the usual cooked meals.

Of the 60 items mentioned on the grocery store's list, one of the most interesting is a can of boned chicken priced at 39 cents. If the housewife has not bought boned chicken since last summer, she may remember that this same can of chicken cost half as much again, or 59 cents a can. Similarly, a can of lunch tongue which slices admirably for sandwiches costs 15 cents this year, and was sold for 28 cents last summer. The best quality salmon, in a tall can, which sold for not less than 35 cents is now available at 20 cents. All through the long list of foods for picnics or for quick, easy meals at home, there are prices so low as to make it advisable to buy more than is needed now for the week-end and holiday. A shelf of such foods will be a joy to the one who plans meals all through the two or three hot months just ahead.

One of the tastiest spreads for picnic sandwiches is made of a mild cheese and shredded pineapple, selling for 50 cents a pound in a big downtown market. Another spread, combining cheese and minced pickles, is a favorite at the same price, as is the always popular pimiento cream cheese spread. Then, speaking of cheese associating with other foods to make sandwiches, that new cheese-and-ham mixture the Meanderer discovered recently in half-pound packages in the same market where the three items mentioned above are found, is a splendid choice for Fourth of July appetites.

Wandering along through the big food terminal in the Southwest part of Washington, where it is always fascinating to the Meanderer to see the food roll in and pile up in great walls for Washington's consumption, there is much to report. Watermelons, for instance, are important food news. All week carloads of the melons have been arriving, one dealer alone prophesying that he would have brought in 25 carloads by today. That means, since each car holds from 800 to 1,000 melons, that there will be no dearth of this refreshing summer food for our coming holiday. The quality of the melons is good, and the price is gradually decreasing, with an average size melon—that means one weighing about 28 pounds—selling for from 40 to 60 cents.

Tomatoes chose this acceptable time to come down to summer prices. The retail price of tomatoes today should be about 25 cents for 3 pounds, wholesale dealers estimated with the new low wholesale price as a basis.

The always-wanted Barnwell cantaloupes, from Barnwell, S. C., are now on the local market. Their flavor is considered by cantaloupe connoisseurs to be decidedly superior.

Lima beans are more plentiful and of better quality than they have been in several years, according to the judgment of one dealer in the big terminal market. Lima beans, he said, are subject to many blights. But this year the crop seems to be free of all signs of blight.

The annual trucking of peaches from Georgia and the Carolinas to Washington is under way. This week saw many bushels of fancy clingstone peaches from those Southern orchards come into the Capital's food markets. While the peaches sold in bushels for $3 this week, it is certain that that price will decrease almost immediately. Next week the freestone varieties are expected to arrive.

OUR DAILY FOOD

By COLONEL GOODBODY

HOW TO RAISE CHUCK STEAK TO THE PEERAGE.

YOU will remember the story of how a certain King of England, who was fond of steak, knighted the loin of beef, making it "Sir-Loin."

If you know how, you can turn out many of the low-cost cuts of beef as nobly.

Chuck steaks and flank steaks, chuck roast and the pieces we use for stews—neck, shank and so on, all these less tender and less expensive cuts can be made into attractive dishes if properly cooked.

There are three steps necessary to make these cuts tender—quick heat at first, moisture, and then slow cooking.

First, brown the meat in a small quantity of fat. Then reduce the temperature, add a small quantity of water and cover the meat tightly. Cook slowly until the meat is tender. The added water extracts some flavor from the meat, and makes good gravy. Sometimes tomatoes are used in place of water, to add flavor.

I think a good pot roast is one of the best examples of a less-tender cut made appetizing. A savory pot roast—the chuck, or round, or rump of beef—pot-roasted, served on a hot platter with buttered carrots and stuffed onions; is there anything better?

If you cook vegetables in the pot with the roast, remember to add them during the last hour of cooking, so they won't cook too long.

Now another good example of a less-tender cut made appetizing is stuffed flank steak; a flank steak, spread with a good bread-crumb stuffing, rolled up like a jelly roll, and tied securely with string.

Still another is broiled hamburg steak with onion rings. For this dish you fashion meat cakes of ground lean beef, ground suet, bread crumbs and seasonings. Wrap each cake with a piece of bacon. Then place each cake on a slice of onion in a baking dish, and broil.

As Theodore of the Ritz reminded us once, hot foods should always be brought to the table "r-red hot."

UNCLE IS FINED $10 FOR SWITCHING BOY

22 Forest Fires Recorded in Prince Georges in Year; Markers Placed.

Holding that information given by a Federal dry agent was sufficient cause to search an auto for liquor, United States Commissioner J. Frank Parran yesterday held L. S. Rohrer and Lester F. Duvall, of 225 R street northeast, for action of the Federal court in Baltimore. Attorneys for the two men asked that the evidence that they were carrying a can of alcohol be suppressed because the arresting agents did not have cause to think there was liquor in Rohrer's machine. Commissioner Parran also held Elwood Marshall, of Pamunkey, for a hearing, on a charge of manufacture and possession arising out of a raid on a still.

Ben Nicholson, of Queen Anne, was fined $10 in Marlboro police court yesterday for punishing his nephew, Marvin Dearstine, with a switch. The formal charge was assault and battery.

Three suits asking damages of $12,750 for the death of a man in an auto accident were settled yesterday shortly after they were filed in Marlboro circuit court. All the suits named John Marshall, jr., of 2405 Tracy place northwest, and his mother, Mrs. Rebecca P. Marshall, as defendants.

One of the claims for damages was filed by Mrs. Grace Alsop and her five children, who asked $9,000 for the death of Clarence Alsop, killed when his automobile was in a collision with Marshall's machine. A daughter, Doris, injured in the accident, asked $1,500, and Alsop's brother, Joseph, another victim, asked $2,250. The Alsops live at 546 Fourteenth street southeast.

Prince Georges County had 22 forest fires during 1931, standing third from the top of the list of Maryland counties. Bladensburg, Branchville and Berwyn Heights fire departments and Forest Wardens Wilbur Nash and Carl Frey were commended for their work on a fire near Beltsville last June in the annual report of the State department of forestry.

Bettering the old-fashioned mile post by ten, the State roads commission is installing markers every tenth of a mile along the Marlboro pike between the District line and the Crain highway. The markers, which are numbered with No. 1 at the District line, will make it easier to order repairs to the road, it is claimed.

Group Seeking Tax Cut Plans Meeting Tonight

A meeting of the rural group which has been petitioning the Montgomery County commissioners for a reduction in the tax rate will be held tonight at the residence of Carson W. Pope, the leader, at Redland. The meeting will begin at 8 p. m. A copy of the 1932 levy has been given the group by the Montgomery County commissioners, together with a statement showing why the commissioners do not feel it possible to reduce the tax rate any further.

The commissioners point out that the county has the lowest tax rate in Maryland and that the levy already has been signed.

Bonus Marcher's Dog Attacks 6-Year-Old Boy

Elwood Parker, 6 years old, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Parker, of 4701 West Virginia avenue, Bethesda, Md., was bitten on the shoulder last night by a police dog owned by a group of bonus marchers. The marchers had parked their truck on Wisconsin avenue and were resting while the dog ran loose.

The child was playing on the street when the dog attacked him. The marchers climbed into their truck and left the scene, taking the dog along. Washington and Montgomery County police are looking for the owner.

Less Offensive Smell Will Denature Alcohol

(Associated Press.)

The odor of overripe eggs has been removed from completely denatured alcohol.

After giving thought to numerous complaints, the Treasury said yesterday it had substituted a new petroleum product known as "calorite" to replace "aldehol" of the rank aroma. The Standard Oil Co. of California was given credit for assisting in the development of the new preparation.

Calorite exudes a less offensive odor, the department said. The alcohol is treated to prevent human consumption.

Charges of Nurse Denied by Hutton

Los Angeles, July 1 (A.P.).—The well-trained voice of David L. Hutton, singer husband of Aimee Semple McPherson, ran the emotional scale with "I do nots" and "No, sirs" today as he denied from the witness stand the charges of Myrtle St. Pierre, a nurse suing him for $200,000 for alleged breach of promise.

His testimony became a blanket denial of the nurse's charges that he forsook her to marry Mrs. McPherson.

He testified he attended a party at the home of Mrs. Van Anthony Norbury, where he met the Pasadena nurse January 16, 1931.

He acknowledged the nurse gave him a treatment for influenza, but denied he was in a room with her alone. He explained that Miss St. Pierre pleaded with him for a photograph of himself and "like all artists players and singers I gave her one."

Hutton's rotund form shook with laughter as his attorney asked him if he kissed Miss St. Pierre's knee at dinner.

"I never kissed her knee in my life."

ALEXANDRIA VOTES $150,000 BOND ISSUE

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU.
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 823.

In spite of the fact that the representative of The Post had been informed by the office of the city manager and by a member of the city council that the meeting of the council held Thursday was to be a "closed" session, from which the public and representatives of the press would be excluded and which could not legally transact any business, the meeting was, in fact, a "special" meeting, at which the bond issue of $150,000, previously proposed, was approved and a resolution adopted authorizing the city manager to negotiate with bond dealers and others for the sale of the bonds and report to the council the result.

Mayor Edmund F. Ticer stated last night that regular legal notices of the special meeting had been sent out to the members of the council, but the city manager's office evidently was not informed, and one member of the council, who is also a member of the press, apparently depended upon the alleged erroneous information given out by the city manager's office, and passed on this information to the representative of The Post.

The city manager was also directed to retain the firm of Reed, Hoyt & Washburn, bond attorneys of New York City, to pass upon the legality of the bonds and to furnish such other service as may be necessary in the matter.

The present bonded indebtedness of the city, according to Councilman Michael T. Dwyer, is $2,350,500. The last bond issue of $750,000 was dated January 1, 1930, these bonds being sold a short time prior to the date of issue to Louis Smoot, of Washington.

Montgomery Gain In Building Shown

Montgomery County showed an increase in building in the first six months of 1932, according to a report by J. Fred Imirie and Martin Iverson, county building inspectors.

The report shows 218 permits issued for construction estimated at $824,985, of which about 90 per cent was new homes of an average cost of $5,000.

The county figures do not include Takoma Park and Kensington, which are incorporated towns and maintain their own building inspectors. Takoma Park authorized approximately $75,000 in new building and Kensington issued permits for several new structures.

Fire Engines to Parade At Kensington Carnival

The Kensington Volunteer Fire Department is holding a carnival nightly at the carnival grounds in Kensington. Carnival attractions and dancing are features of the program.

The carnival will be featured Monday by a parade of county fire engines and civic groups and a hook-up contest, starting at 3 p. m.

Sixteen automobile accidents were reported and twelve persons were injured.

The detective bureau, in charge of Detective Sergt. Edgar Sims and Detective James Bayliss, reported property to the value of $1,161.48 was stolen in the month, and $828.11 recovered. The police also recovered property stolen out of town to the value of $1,130.

ROOSEVELT VS. HOOVER.

Franklin D. Roosevelt springs into the arena as the choice of the Democratic party to challenge Herbert Hoover. The champion of Democracy had fairly earned the title before it was confirmed to him by delivery of the votes controlled by John N. Garner. Whether or not this delivery was made upon condition that the vice presidential nomination should be delivered to Mr. Garner will be determined today.

Gov. Roosevelt has made a good record as chief executive of New York State. He is a man of good antecedents, clean life, and attractive personality. His way upward was facilitated by friendship with Alfred E. Smith, but for some reason not yet disclosed this friendship was broken, and former Gov. Smith is now a bitter enemy of the nominee. How much this feeling will affect Gov. Smith and his followers during the campaign remains to be seen. It is not in Al Smith's nature to be anything but a Democrat, but it is also a part of his nature to be outspoken in his likes and dislikes. Tammany Hall, also, dislikes Gov. Roosevelt, but it can not dislike the platform upon which he stands, the chief plank of which calls for what Tammany thirstily craves—immediate restoration of the liquor traffic.

Gov. Roosevelt in this campaign represents the elements of disaffection throughout the country. The Democratic convention has resounded with expressions of this disaffection in its varied phases—protests against the country's condition, protests against the administration policies in dealing with the depression, protests against prohibition, protests against the tariff, and many other protests. Aside from the protesting role which a party must assume against its rival in office, the Democratic party rests heavily upon the hope that it will be swept to victory on a wave of popular discontent. It hopes to convince the people that the Republican party and President Hoover are responsible for their ills, and that prosperity can be attained by throwing all Republicans out.

It is easy for a national convention to deceive itself as to the real attitude of the majority of the people in a situation like this. Extremists are the loudest speakers always, and patient efforts to mend matters make no noise. If the people hold President Hoover and the Republican party responsible for hard times the Democratic national convention has not deceived itself, and it does well to go to bold extremes in appealing for power. But if the people believe that the whole world is out of joint, and that President Hoover is meeting the emergency as well as he can, then the Democratic national convention has made a mistake in trying to use the depression as a political asset. A similar mistake was made by the Democratic party in 1864, when a Republican President was held to be responsible for prolonging the Civil War. The people stood by the Captain.

The Democratic convention believes that its demand for repeal of the eighteenth amendment and the immediate increase of the alcoholic content of liquor meets with favor by the majority of the people, and that this question will be a paramount issue in the campaign. Since the Republican party favors an expression by the people on the question of repeal, no issue arises on that phase of the liquor problem. Whether the people are more concerned with the liquor question than with their economic difficulties is to be doubted, because the getting of bread is compulsory. If it should appear that one candidate is engrossed with the getting of beer while the other is engaged in the getting of bread, a real issue will arise.

Gov. Roosevelt's address today will command universal attention. The nation is about to take the measure of the man.

JOBS FOR BONUS SEEKERS.

Gen. Hines' move to secure jobs for veterans of the bonus army encamped in Washington is the most constructive action that has been taken to reorient these men in the economic life of the country. One of the duties of the Veterans' Administration is to find work for jobless and needy veterans. Its work along this line can be intensified without additional expense. The American Legion has already done an excellent piece of work in placing jobless veterans. If the Veterans' Administration and the legion cooperate in their efforts they should be able to accomplish a great deal.

Congress is attempting to provide transportation home for the bonus marchers and rations while they are en route. But many of the veterans are not enthusiastic about that plan because, they say, their situation will not be improved by returning home. They have no work wherever they go. If Gen. Hines and his organization are successful in creating jobs, the incentive for the men to return will be doubled.

Ever since the migration of veterans to Washington began the public has shown its sympathy toward them. Many an outfit has started out a few thousand miles from Washington without any resources whatever and has arrived here with considerable cash in its possession. The public has been extremely liberal in aiding the men to come here. Now it is time for the public to manifest its generosity in another way. Far more relief would be afforded by giving a veteran a job, even though temporarily, than by furnishing him with means to waste in traveling to Washington.

Let public sympathy be turned to the creation of jobs. Veterans now facing disease and starvation in Washington can not logically remain here if the hope of obtaining work awaits at home. Those veterans who persist in staying here, when work is made available to them, will soon lose all public sympathy and be forced to evacuate. It behooves the bonus army as well as the public to cooperate with Gen. Hines in this drive for jobs.

A CHILD OF THE TARIFF.

It is of more than passing interest to note that Texas, in these days of depression, has acquired a new industry. An egg-drying plant has been established at Fort Worth as a direct result of the protection allowed that industry by the Smoot-Hawley tariff. Dried and powdered eggs are an important ingredient in cake and in certain special flour used for making waffles and doughnuts. The industry began to develop in the United States as early as 1900, but was soon killed by competition from China.

The Democratic tariff of 1913 allowed almost no protection to the egg preserving industry, and Chinese merchants supplied practically all of the American demand. The duty was raised substantially in the Republican tariff of 1922, and on some classes of dried eggs additional protection was afforded by the 1930 act. In spite of the votes which Texas Democrats recorded against the Smoot-Hawley tariff, it gives that State a new industry in this critical period.

There is a market in the United States for 10,000,000 pounds of egg powder. To meet this demand 36,000,000 dozen eggs are required. There is not the slightest reason why this industry should not be carried on within this country for the benefit of American farmers and workingmen. Eggs are being produced in surplus quantities. Millions of men are idle. Under those circumstances why should American consumers use Chinese eggs preserved by coolies working for a few cents per day? The new Texas industry will give immediate employment to 200 men and absorb the entire egg surplus of that State. More than 1,000 jobs will be created if the industry expands to take care of all the domestic demand for egg powder.

Here is a direct method of farm relief. The farmer finds a new outlet for a commodity that is produced in surplus quantities. Egg drying is not a great industry, but its successful establishment under the protective policy illustrates how the tariff is of direct benefit to the farmer. Yet the Democrats in Texas who stand on their party's platform, favoring "a competitive tariff for revenue", will be pledged to destroy this industry and all others like it.

AMERICAN JOURNEYINGS.

Americans are confirmed travelers, both at home and abroad. A recent compilation of mileage covered in this country by various kinds of passenger conveyances shows some astonishing totals. During the thirty years between 1890 and 1920 passenger travel by rail increased from 10 billion passenger miles to nearly 50 billions. The more luxurious Pullman travel at the same time expanded from 2 billions to 12 billions. Rail travel reached its greatest volume in 1920, falling off 50 per cent in the next ten years.

Electric railways, which recorded 50 billion passenger miles in 1925, decreased to 35 billions last year. Buses got a large number of the electric line passengers. Starting about eleven years ago with a million passenger miles, buses in 1931 registered ten billions. The private automobile, however, explains what has caused the great decline in rail patronage. As far back as 1918 the total passenger mileage of private motor cars was about 40 billions. By 1925 the figures had grown to 200 billions and in 1930 to more than 400 billions.

Last year registered a decline in the mileage of the private car, but it was less than 3 per cent. The record 1930 mileage was sufficient to have carried every individual resident of the United States from New York to San Francisco, with allowance for several side trips. The showing that combined railroad and private motor travel increased from 120 billion passenger miles in 1920 to 440 billion in 1930 leads one commentator to wonder what the people were doing with all that travel time only a decade or so ago.

An unexpected feature of the schedule under consideration is that buses have apparently reached the peak of their opposition to rail travel. The use of school buses has grown, but there is a declining output of heavy chassis such as are used for buses engaged in inter-city and long-distance passenger business. The cheap excursion and week-end rates of the railroads have cut into bus patronage, though the family can still travel more cheaply in the old car than by train. This year will see some decline in private car travel, but the automobile is no longer regarded as a luxury, and economies will be made in many other ways before its pleasures are forfeited.

COURTING SHY DOLLARS.

At the close of its convention in Washington the National Retail Credit Association adopted a resolution urging all retail merchants to work for a maximum distribution of goods at the lowest possible cost to the consumer. This policy is to be the retailer's contribution to the campaign against hard times. If merchants put the advice into practice it will undoubtedly have a stimulating effect on business.

The excess productive capacity which now exists in all industries can not be employed until the public begins buying once more in normal volume. Consequently, a return to better times is contingent upon revival of the public demand for goods that are not now being purchased. Nothing will be so powerful in cultivating that demand as low prices. Merchants have come to realize that their own interests lie in distribution of their goods on a large scale at the lowest prices consistent with good business policy.

For a time there was a tendency to hold up prices on the theory that stabilization could thus be maintained. Now it is recognized that the so-called stabilization of prices was one cause of hard times. Excessive credit expansion made it possible to sell vast quantities of goods without reducing prices. Production costs were steadily reduced because of increased efficiency and large-scale production, but the benefits of those economies were not generally passed on to the public. That is one foremost reason why production outran consumption and threw the whole economic system out of gear.

Merchants who are trying to correct this maladjustment are taking a broad view of the situation. It is to their interests to make buying attractive. Dollars will not forever remain in hiding when bargains are available.

Tammany's soliloquy: To beer, or not to beer; for with that beer we must swallow Roosevelt, too. Ah, there's the rub!

Jim Reed declares that the people should take care of the Government, which is flat treason to the Garner pork-barrel.

Al Smith and the dry South mustn't begin to quarrel now as to the best method of sharpening knives.

"Roosevelt and Garner" would make an ideal ticket—beer and pork.

SEARCHING FOR EDEN

From the New York Herald Tribune.

At all times when civilization has become too complex those dissatisfied with the prevailing conditions of life have sought escape in some distant community that seemed to promise a more congenial environment.

As a rule, there are five requirements for the modern Eden. First, it should be an island, for the isolation that insularity gives. It must have a mild climate, so that life in the open may always be agreeable. Simplicity of society is another requisite, and, above all, there should be no traces of industrialism; for a factory whistle or a time clock has no place in paradise. The natives of the place should be hospitable and tolerant of strangers and their ways. Finally, the cost of living should be low—probably a preponderant factor in these particular times.

Many, especially Englishmen, have found refuge from the trials of civilization and climate in Madeira and the Canaries. Of late Tahiti, in the South Seas, and Bali, in the Dutch East Indies, have attracted many of the discontented. One of our correspondents has made an appeal for the advantages of the Island of Dominica, in the West Indies; but at present the favorite Mecca of those out of sorts with things as they are is the Island of Mallorca, in the Mediterranean.

One of the Balearic group, off the east coast of Spain, it was famous in antiquity as the home of the slingers who fought in the army of Hannibal. For a brief spell in the eighteenth century it was held by the English, who were driven out by the French allies of Spain. It was on their way home that the English, disgruntled by their loss, stopped off at Gibraltar and took it out of spite from the unsuspecting Spaniards; but those foreigners who would make their home there now are little concerned with its history. For them it satisfies the specifications of Eden. It is surrounded by water and favored with a gentle climate. Its inhabitants are the kindly folk of whom Eleanor Mercein has written in her tales, and modernity has done little to alter their easy-going ways. Yet it has enough of the material paraphernalia of the outside world to insure the comfort of any but the most exigent. Finally, living is reported to be fabulously cheap, though with a tendency to rise since the influx of Americans set in.

It is this very popularity that tends to defeat the purpose of those who would seek such places as a refuge from disagreeable facts. The law of supply and demand soon begins to work, with the result that prices go up. The natives lose some of their idyllic disinterestedness under the spell of the newcomers' dollars. Life inevitably takes on a different tempo. If he wishes, one can even call up his broker in New York by long-distance telephone from Mallorca.

Straight Ahead.

POST HASTE.

In case you missed important news in the convention excitement: Congress didn't pass the relief bill, France and Germany still can't agree at Lausanne, and the Geneva disarmament myth is as good as a mile.

The old Cannon-ade was repulsed at Chicago by the grape-shot storm troops led by the Stein song.

Glad Tydings from Maryland! He did a good job for our handsome neighbor Governor, and will some day listen to a nominating speech about himself.

The Democrats may lose Bishop Cannon, but if they are not careful they will gain Dr. Butler.

Al Smith's "raddio" pronunciation was palpably and purposely perpetrated, but other unconscious assaults upon the king's English must have satisfied even big Bill Thompson.

Some way ought to be thought up during the next four years to convince national political conventions that the childish bedlams following nominating speeches never change a vote.

In the enthusiasm of the convention hall the overproduction of mechanized unction may seem real; to the millions of the radio audience today it is a silly and undignified proceeding in connection with a presidential nomination.

To limit nominating speeches to twenty minutes, secondings to five minutes, and permit pandemoniums to continue for an hour is stupid. If the big boys must play Indian, ten minutes is enough for the absurd exhibition.

McAdoo and Glass, two of the greatest Secretaries of the Treasury before Mellon, agreed on banking reforms before the Chicago convention just like the present and former Governors of New York were of one mind on the Presidency.

Part of the training of presidential candidates is to be able to listen to nominating speeches and appear as though they had never heard them before.

Next time it will be up to Jim Reed to show Missouri that while he is a persistent customer, he is not a Tennyson brook.

Yes, like the heat, you will just have to stand the sapients who knew all the time just what the convention would do.

MONEY AND VOTES.

He wasn't much of a man, but still
He did what weak men sometimes will,
He wooed and won a maiden fair
For whom he didn't really care.
Although no love for her he had
He knew she had a wealthy dad.

At first the father over kind
To please his daughter was inclined.
He'd grant her everything she asked
Until his purse was overtasked.
The husband, idling all through life
Still played the beggar to his wife.

He'd win her time and time again
To ask her dad for money when
Down deep within his heart he knew
No more the kindly man should do,
But fathers oft to daughters give
What they require themselves to live.

Said friends: "Have pity on the man!
Get out and do the best you can.
Already he is deep in debt,
Surely his own needs you forget."
And this the blunt reply he made:
"He'll see his daughter's bills are paid!"

How like the politician who
Chooses the voters' power to woo
And will not once his greed relax,
Remembering him who pays the tax.
Wedded to votes he scorns the ills

Another Letter From a Bald-Headed Dad to His Flapper Daughter.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

MY DEAR LOUISE: I have little patience with this modern theory that a date isn't a date if you happen to change your mind.

Yesterday your mother asked you and one of your chums to play nine holes of golf with her. You were eager to play and promptly accepted her invitation, for nothing more exciting appeared in prospect.

Now that was a date—a trade—a contract.

But on your way to the course you met a young gentleman who asked you and your chum to ride up to Simpsonville with him, and at once you vetoed golf for the greater thrill of a windy speed demonstration in a strip-down.

Of course your mother felt sat-upon, and I'm glad she didn't let you go. Even parents are people.

I don't mean to say that it is always wrong to break an engagement with some member of the family when it interferes with an unexpected pleasure. Your parents want you to enjoy life while you can, and usually are glad to step aside when better company offers.

But your right to break a date with members of your own family must depend on their willingness. It takes two to break a contract fairly. You wouldn't like it much if I made a date to take you to a show and changed my mind at the last minute.

That isn't the point, however. The thing I'm afraid of is the habit. If you make a practice of breaking dates with the family, you'll soon be breaking all dates that stand in the way of something better—and then your word won't be worth a lead nickel.

I know it's a common practice. Both boys and girls make dates with boredom for want of anything else to do and then break them without a twinge of conscience when a better offer comes.

But it's a rotten business. Nine times in ten they lie to cover their tracks, and after a while they lose all sense of obligation. I'd hate to sign a note for one of that breed.

You can't break your word and keep your character. People aren't made that way.

The only safe plan is to keep your engagement, no matter how much it hurts, and thus in sorrow learn to say "no" unless you are dead sure you want to say "yes." Love, DAD.

PRO AND CON

Early Political "Claims."

Kansas City Star.

The claiming season in politics has opened. It now is in order for the managers of the numerous candidates for party nominations to show their confidence in their entrants. It never would do for these managers to show any lack of confidence; such a showing would be news, indeed, and it would create vacancies in the managerial ranks. For the moment chief interest in advance claims relates to the Democratic nomination for the Presidency.

With Gov. Roosevelt far in advance of his rivals, it is not remarkable that his manager, James A. Farley, should predict his nomination, but Mr. Farley is not satisfied with mere triumph in the convention; he has Roosevelt nominated on the first ballot. Not that he claims two-thirds of the delegates at this time or expects to have them when the convention opens, but he assures us that before the result of the first ballot is announced, Missouri's delegation, pledged to former Senator James A. Reed, and the Illinois delegation, pledged to Senator J. Hamilton Lewis, will change from their respective favorite sons and put the New York governor over.

Maybe so. Such a thing might happen. But if we know anything about favorite sons, we believe that the minimum honor they are willing to accept, even if it should be the maximum possible for them to receive, is that they shall go into history as having received votes for the presidential nomination on at least one ballot.

How Arms Affect Debts.

Kansas City Star.

President Hoover has been careful to let it be known that his newly-announced program for the reduction of certain types of armaments and the abolition of others by international agreement is not linked with any offer on the part of the United States to reduce the European war debts. That is an honorable way to avoid any misunderstanding. Every European statesman must know by this time that, in the opinion of the American people, as well as of the American President, an extravagant debtor who continues to live beyond his means comes into a bankruptcy court with unclean hands.

Chicago Winners and Losers.

New York Sun.

This convention is the fifth that the Democratic party has held in Chicago. It was there that McClellan was named against Lincoln in 1864. Twenty years later Cleveland was nominated; he defeated Blaine by the narrow margin of 23,000 votes in the popular vote. Again in 1892 Cleveland was nominated there. He defeated Harrison, who had beaten him in 1888. Bryan was chosen in 1896; that was the last time previous to this year that the Democrats convened in Chicago. Cleveland's two nominations there were the only victories.

Chicago has been a luckier place for the Republicans. The convention this year was the eleventh out of twenty held since the organization of the party. Seven of the ten candidates nominated in Chicago prior to this year's convention were elected: Lincoln, Grant, Garfield, Harrison, Roosevelt, Taft and Harding. The losers named in Chicago were Blaine in 1884, Taft in 1912, Hughes in 1916.

Borah's Bolt.

Los Angeles Times.

Senator Borah will not support the nominee of his nominal party, because he is at odds with the prohibition plank adopted at Chicago. Since it is certain that he will not like the plank to be adopted by the Democrats any better and since he says he will not join any third party movement, it becomes apparent that the senior senator from Idaho has merely disfranchised himself.

He'll Come Home.

Philadelphia Bulletin.

This is about the time of a presidential year when Senator Borah always feels the urge to stray from the reservation. But he will get back in time for the election.

Or at the Ball Park.

Christian Science Monitor.

If Congress enacts into law its plan to close District of Columbia barber shops one day in each week, it is expected that the Washington tonsorialist may be driven to beard the congressman in his den.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Alfred Rosewood Explains How Earthquakes Occur and Says Scientific Truths Should Not Be Kept From the People.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In order to keep a scientific truth from being known, people are permitted to perish without warning in earthquake disasters. Are institutions supported by the state, and great foundations, morally justified in withholding information as to what causes stresses in the earth's stratified rocks?

The University of California knows, the Harvard University knows, and the Carnegie Institution knows that no quake is possible within thousands of miles without its impending stresses being clearly shown.

Saturn lined up with the moon on the 21st and the earth, Venus and Mercury on the 22d. It was the latter that caused the Mexican quake and tidal wave. Eight destructive quakes have occurred in unfailing chronological relation at the moon's quarters and his line-up with planets since the destructive full moon quake in Central America on May 20, 1932.

If Mexico gets over July 2 they should be safe for some time, but only an indicator can tell the correct time when stresses in the rock strata can not remain without a slip. At least 100,000 men, women and children have perished without warning in quake disasters since these facts were known, whereas, one-half the price of a few pictures of an eclipse would have saved thousands.

ALFRED ROSEWOOD.

Mr. Tilton Says Prohibition Is Not Outstanding Question of the Day. Repeal Will Not Cure the Depression.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Two working men sat beside me at the Republican National Convention. One said, "Wouldn't you think those New York boobs, with all us fellows out of work, could find something better to do than talk booze? Where does it get us?"

Mr. Mark Sullivan, commenting on the mental prostration of the Eastern capitalist, said he had been turned into a one-idea fanatic "holding with hot emotion that escape from the present conditions about prohibition is more important than the depression."

But can the depression be cured by mass mania over drink? Alas no! The fact is, this made-to-order mass mania has no cure for the depression. Europe has no prohibition, but her depression is even worse than ours. Furthermore, this mania has in it the seeds of civil dissension between East and West—already it bids fair to split the Republican party. It has in it something more dangerous, the seeds of social upheaval, because to get anywhere, it must submerge the soberer elements and bring to the surface the underworlds.

Good Health Habits, Good Food and Proper Nutrition Contrasted With Effects of Alcohol.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The best way to live longer and better is through correct nutrition, scientific cookery and good health habits.

Despite all the "Hoo-ray" on behalf of alcoholic beverage its tale and toll is ever the same. Its tale of shame, its trail of blood, its toll of dishonor, disease, disgrace and destruction is the same in all races of men.

To say that it is the abuse and not the use of alcoholic beverages which constitutes the harm thereof falls far short because it has been demonstrated that when one has had a drink or two of wine or beer he is incapacitated for driving an automobile or performing any other equally responsible task. A sufficient amount to give the participant thereof the least bit of a thrill or kick is a sufficient amount to give him an inaccurate judgment or an exaggerated idea of his abilities.

Outlawed by its own record, by the American people, and by present-day progress, alcohol as a beverage should be removed from the land.

JULIUS GILBERT WHITE.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: There were fewer railway passengers killed and injured in 1931 than in any other year since 1888 when complete records were first started. Forty persons were killed in 1931 and fifty in 1930. In 1922 the number of railway passengers killed was 200. Not only have fatalities decreased but the number of accidents has decreased.

This decrease in the accident rate is a result of safety methods adopted in 1923. Though the railroads have been hit hard by the present depression, they have not let up one iota in their safety policy. The continuance of this policy at a time of economic stress is costly and the railroads should be given their due credit for protecting their passengers against accident and death.

Suggests a Municipal Lodging House in Washington to Care for the Unemployed.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The other afternoon I was at the Central Union Mission in the line-up for the evening meal at 4:30 o'clock, and about 50 of the men were turned away. "That's all, no more, all out," was the ultimatum to these hungry men who had stood in line for more than two hours with the expectation of receiving a meal.

Later on I saw some of the men flopping in the parks. Surely the time has come for a municipal lodging house to be erected in Washington. Other cities have them, why not the National Capital? In the meantime these men are hungry and without a place to sleep through no fault of their own, as they are unable to obtain work.

DAN O'BRIEN.

MARION TALLEY WED SECRETLY TO PIANIST

New York, July 1 (A.P.).—Marion Talley, the Missouri girl whose meteor-like career as opera singer ended with abrupt retirement at 23 in 1929, is on a honeymoon with a German pianist, Michael Raucheisen. They were married secretly at White Plains, N. Y.

Details of the romance were not made known. Only last fall Miss Talley announced, as she sailed for Europe with her mother, Mrs. Helen Talley, and sister Florence, she "had no intention of getting married."

Raucheisen gave his age as 43, eighteen years the senior of his bride, when he applied for a marriage license, and requested it not be made public at once. The license noted his previous marriage and divorce. He gave his address as Berlin, Germany.

The Rev. Thomas F. Watkins officiated at the wedding in the First Presbyterian Church at White Plains. The bride's mother and sister were present. Her father is Charles M. Talley, Kansas City railroad telegrapher.

After the honeymoon it was reported the couple would return to the Talley home in Kansas City.

The singer was only 18 when she made her sensational debut as Gilda in "Rigoletto" at the Metropolitan here in 1926. A delegation of 200 Kansas City backers chartered a special train to come here. Speculators reported $40 bids for seats.

Although crowds acclaimed her and two performances added $39,000 to the Metropolitan coffers, the music critics praised only faintly, saying her voice was lovely, but untrained. Praises were fewer the following season, although the singer had successful concert tours. Miss Talley and her managers had a falling out with the Metropolitan management just before her retirement.

FOREIGN NEWS IN BRIEF

Geneva, July 1 (A.P.).—Harold Beresford Butler, deputy director of the international labor office of the League of Nations since 1920, was appointed director today to fill the place made vacant by the sudden death of Albert Thomas May 8. Mr. Thomas was a Frenchman. His successor is a Briton. The new director, who is 48 years old, was educated at Eton and Oxford. He served as secretary general of the international labor conference in Washington in 1919.

CONFEREES DECIDE HUGE U. S. AID PLAN

which about $200,000,000 would have been taken out of the appropriation bills already passed.

These will now be left in the regular governmental construction program, instead of being included under the relief program. The Garner proposal for an additional gasoline tax of one-fourth cent a gallon to finance the program was stricken out.

Provisions of the Garner bill regulating loans from the Reconstruction Corporation were adopted with certain restrictions.

The conferees agreed that the Reconstruction Corporation should be empowered to make loans from the $1,500,000,000 fund for agriculture, industry, commerce or unemployment, under the following restrictions:

That adequate security should be furnished.

That the money was not available elsewhere.

That the purpose was not to pay off debts.

No restriction was placed on the amount of the money that should be used to finance agricultural exports. The Senate bill placed a limitation of $40,000,000.

Senator Norbeck said the provisions of the bill would allow loans to Chicago and other cities for paying employes in the future but not for past debts.

The small business man would be eligible for loans, he said, but preference would be given to self-liquidating projects.

Members of the conference group agreed that the bill would place the Government in the general banking business to an extent. They were somewhat doubtful of the reception the bill would receive in the Senate, which voted to limit strictly the loans to self-liquidating projects of a public nature.

Final House action yesterday sent to President Hoover legislation releasing 45,000,000 bushels of wheat and 500,000 bales of cotton from Farm Board stores to the Red Cross for relief distribution.

Last winter 40,000,000 bushels of wheat were released. Recently John Barton Payne, head of the Red Cross, said this supply would be exhausted by the beginning of next winter.

$45,000,000 POSTAL PROGRAM IS URGED

(Associated Press.)

After two years of investigating postoffice leases, a Senate committee yesterday recommended immediate legislation to provide a $45,000,000 postal building program.

The report from the special Senate postoffice lease investigating committee was presented to the Senate by Chairman Blaine, of Wisconsin.

It recommended that Government-owned buildings be built to replace all quarters on which the Government is now paying more than $6,000 a year in rent and on which the contracts expire or can be cancelled by 1937.

The committee reported that the building program would actually be an economy for the Government and that the projects would be in the strictest sense "self-liquidating projects."

"It is conservatively estimated," the committee said, "that the savings that would accrue under Government ownership of these postal facilities would be more than one-third of the amount which otherwise would have to be paid as rent."

Under the present leasing policy, the committee said, the cost to the Government over a 20-year period would be $120,000,000 and the Government would have nothing at the end, while under the building program the cost would be less than $80,000,000.

The committee reported that on June 30, 1930, there were 6,525 postal leases with an aggregate annual rental of $16,541,324. Of these, 6,173, carrying rentals of $8,250,541, were said to be costing $6,000 annually or less.

There were a total of 353 leases carrying an annual rental of $8,290,763, costing more than $6,000, the report said.

It characterized the leasing policy as "wasteful, extravagant, unbusinesslike and uneconomical," and cited the St. Paul commercial station postoffice and the Quincy stations, Chicago, as examples.

Peiping, China, July 1 (A.P.).—Reports from Hankow to the United States Legation today indicated that the Rev. Arthur E. Nyhus and the Rev. D. W. Bert Nelson, another American missionary, since October, 1930.

The new captives, the report said, were taken away in a northerly direction, but their present location is not known.

ROOSEVELT VS. HOOVER.

Franklin D. Roosevelt springs into the arena as the choice of the Democratic party to challenge Herbert Hoover. The champion of Democracy had fairly earned the title before it was confirmed to him by delivery of the votes controlled by John N. Garner. Whether or not this delivery was made upon condition that the vice presidential nomination should be delivered to Mr. Garner will be determined today.

Gov. Roosevelt has made a good record as chief executive of New York State. He is a man of good antecedents, clean life, and attractive personality. His way upward was facilitated by friendship with Alfred E. Smith, but for some reason not yet disclosed this friendship was broken, and former Gov. Smith is now a bitter enemy of the nominee. How much this feeling will affect Gov. Smith and his followers during the campaign remains to be seen. It is not in Al Smith's nature to be anything but a Democrat, but it is also a part of his nature to be outspoken in his likes and dislikes. Tammany Hall, also, dislikes Gov. Roosevelt, but it can not dislike the platform upon which he stands, the chief plank of which calls for what Tammany thirstily craves—immediate restoration of the liquor traffic.

Gov. Roosevelt in this campaign represents the elements of disaffection throughout the country. The Democratic convention has resounded with expressions of this disaffection in its varied phases—protests against the country's condition, protests against the administration policies in dealing with the depression, protests against prohibition, protests against the tariff, and many other protests. Aside from the protesting role which a party must assume against its rival in office, the Democratic party rests heavily upon the hope that it will be swept to victory on a wave of popular discontent. It hopes to convince the people that the Republican party and President Hoover are responsible for their ills, and that prosperity can be attained by throwing all Republicans out.

It is easy for a national convention to deceive itself as to the real attitude of the majority of the people in a situation like this. Extremists are the loudest speakers always, and patient efforts to mend matters make no noise. If the people hold President Hoover and the Republican party responsible for hard times the Democratic national convention has not deceived itself, and it does well to go to bold extremes in appealing for power. But if the people believe that the whole world is out of joint, and that President Hoover is meeting the emergency as well as he can, then the Democratic national convention has made a mistake in trying to use the depression as a political asset. A similar mistake was made by the Democratic party in 1864, when a Republican President was held to be responsible for prolonging the Civil War. The people stood by the Captain.

The Democratic convention believes that its demand for repeal of the eighteenth amendment and the immediate increase of the alcoholic content of liquor meets with favor by the majority of the people, and that this question will be a paramount issue in the campaign. Since the Republican party favors an expression by the people on the question of repeal, no issue arises on that phase of the liquor problem. Whether the people are more concerned with the liquor question than with their economic difficulties is to be doubted, because the getting of bread is compulsory. If it should appear that one candidate is engrossed with the getting of beer while the other is engaged in the getting of bread, a real issue will arise.

Gov. Roosevelt's address today will command universal attention. The nation is about to take the measure of the man.

JOBS FOR BONUS SEEKERS.

Gen. Hines' move to secure jobs for veterans of the bonus army encamped in Washington is the most constructive action that has been taken to reorient these men in the economic life of the country. One of the duties of the Veterans' Administration is to find work for jobless and needy veterans. Its work along this line can be intensified without additional expense. The American Legion has already done an excellent piece of work in placing jobless veterans. If the Veterans' Administration and the legion cooperate in their efforts they should be able to accomplish a great deal.

Congress is attempting to provide transportation home for the bonus marchers and rations while they are en route. But many of the veterans are not enthusiastic about that plan because, they say, their situation will not be improved by returning home. They have no work wherever they go. If Gen. Hines and his organization are successful in creating jobs, the incentive for the men to return will be doubled.

Ever since the migration of veterans to Washington began the public has shown its sympathy toward them. Many an outfit has started out a few thousand miles from Washington without any resources whatever and has arrived here with considerable cash in its possession. The public has been extremely liberal in aiding the men to come here. Now it is time for the public to manifest its generosity in another way. Far more relief would be afforded by giving a veteran a job, even though temporarily, than by furnishing him with means to waste in traveling to Washington.

Let public sympathy be turned to the creation of jobs. Veterans now facing disease and starvation in Washington can not logically remain here if the hope of obtaining work awaits at home. Those veterans who persist in staying here, when work is made available to them, will soon lose all public sympathy and be forced to evacuate. It behooves the bonus army as well as the public to cooperate with Gen. Hines in this drive for jobs.

A CHILD OF THE TARIFF.

It is of more than passing interest to note that Texas, in these days of depression, has acquired a new industry. An egg-drying plant has been established at Fort Worth as a direct result of the protection allowed that industry by the Smoot-Hawley tariff. Dried and powdered eggs are an important ingredient in cake and in certain special flour used for making waffles and doughnuts. The industry began to develop in the United States as early as 1900, but was soon killed by competition from China.

The Democratic tariff of 1913 allowed almost no protection to the egg preserving industry, and Chinese merchants supplied practically all of the American demand. The duty was raised substantially in the Republican tariff of 1922, and on some classes of dried eggs additional protection was afforded by the 1930 act. In spite of the votes which Texas Democrats recorded against the Smoot-Hawley tariff, it gives that State a new industry in this critical period.

There is a market in the United States for 10,000,000 pounds of egg powder. To meet this demand 36,000,000 dozen eggs are required. There is not the slightest reason why this industry should not be carried on within this country for the benefit of American farmers and workingmen. Eggs are being produced in surplus quantities. Millions of men are idle. Under those circumstances why should American consumers use Chinese eggs preserved by coolies working for a few cents per day? The new Texas industry will give immediate employment to 200 men and absorb the entire egg surplus of that State. More than 1,000 jobs will be created if the industry expands to take care of all the domestic demand for egg powder.

Here is a direct method of farm relief. The farmer finds a new outlet for a commodity that is produced in surplus quantities. Egg drying is not a great industry, but its successful establishment under the protective policy illustrates how the tariff is of direct benefit to the farmer. Yet the Democrats in Texas who stand on their party's platform, favoring "a competitive tariff for revenue", will be pledged to destroy this industry and all others like it.

AMERICAN JOURNEYINGS.

Americans are confirmed travelers, both at home and abroad. A recent compilation of mileage covered in this country by various kinds of passenger conveyances shows some astonishing totals. During the thirty years between 1890 and 1920 passenger travel by rail increased from 10 billion passenger miles to nearly 50 billions. The more luxurious Pullman travel at the same time expanded from 2 billions to 12 billions. Rail travel reached its greatest volume in 1920, falling off 50 per cent in the next ten years.

Electric railways, which recorded 50 billion passenger miles in 1925, decreased to 35 billions last year. Buses got a large number of the electric line passengers. Starting about eleven years ago with a million passenger miles, buses in 1931 registered ten billions. The private automobile, however, explains what has caused the great decline in rail patronage. As far back as 1918 the total passenger mileage of private motor cars was about 40 billions. By 1925 the figures had grown to 200 billions and in 1930 to more than 400 billions.

Last year registered a decline in the mileage of the private car, but it was less than 3 per cent. The record 1930 mileage was sufficient to have carried every individual resident of the United States from New York to San Francisco, with allowance for several side trips. The showing that combined railroad and private motor travel increased from 120 billion passenger miles in 1920 to 440 billion in 1930 leads one commentator to wonder what the people were doing with all that travel time only a decade or so ago.

An unexpected feature of the schedule under consideration is that buses have apparently reached the peak of their opposition to rail travel. The use of school buses has grown, but there is a declining output of heavy chassis such as are used for buses engaged in inter-city and long-distance passenger business. The cheap excursion and week-end rates of the railroads have cut into bus patronage, though the family can still travel more cheaply in the old car than by train. This year will see some decline in private car travel, but the automobile is no longer regarded as a luxury, and economies will be made in many other ways before its pleasures are forfeited.

COURTING SHY DOLLARS.

At the close of its convention in Washington the National Retail Credit Association adopted a resolution urging all retail merchants to work for a maximum distribution of goods at the lowest possible cost to the consumer. This policy is to be the retailer's contribution to the campaign against hard times. If merchants put the advice into practice it will undoubtedly have a stimulating effect on business.

The excess productive capacity which now exists in all industries can not be employed until the public begins buying once more in normal volume. Consequently, a return to better times is contingent upon revival of the public demand for goods that are not now being purchased. Nothing will be so powerful in cultivating that demand as low prices. Merchants have come to realize that their own interests lie in distribution of their goods on a large scale at the lowest prices consistent with good business policy.

For a time there was a tendency to hold up prices on the theory that stabilization could thus be maintained. Now it is recognized that the so-called stabilization of prices was one cause of hard times. Excessive credit expansion made it possible to sell vast quantities of goods without reducing prices. Production costs were steadily reduced because of increased efficiency and large-scale production, but the benefits of those economies were not generally passed on to the public. That is one foremost reason why production outran consumption and threw the whole economic system out of gear.

Merchants who are trying to correct this maladjustment are taking a broad view of the situation. It is to their interests to make buying attractive. Dollars will not forever remain in hiding when bargains are available.

Tammany's soliloquy: To beer, or not to beer; for with that beer we must swallow Roosevelt, too. Ah, there's the rub!

Jim Reed declares that the people should take care of the Government, which is flat treason to the Garner pork-barrel.

Al Smith and the dry South mustn't begin to quarrel now as to the best method of sharpening knives.

From the New York Herald Tribune.

At all times when civilization has become too complex those dissatisfied with the prevailing conditions of life have sought escape in some distant community that seemed to promise a more congenial environment.

As a rule, there are five requirements for the modern Eden. First, it should be an island, for the isolation that insularity gives. It must have a mild climate, so that life in the open may always be agreeable. Simplicity of society is another requisite, and, above all, there should be no traces of industrialism; for a factory whistle or a time clock has no place in paradise. The natives of the place should be hospitable and tolerant of strangers and their ways. Finally, the cost of living should be low—probably a preponderant factor in these particular times.

Many, especially Englishmen, have found refuge from the trials of civilization and climate in Madeira and the Canaries. Of late Tahiti, in the South Seas, and Bali, in the Dutch East Indies, have attracted many of the discontented. One of our correspondents has made an appeal for the advantages of the Island of Dominica, in the West Indies; but at present the favorite Mecca of those out of sorts with things as they are is the Island of Mallorca, in the Mediterranean.

One of the Balearic group, off the east coast of Spain, it was famous in antiquity as the home of the slingers who fought in the army of Hannibal. For a brief spell in the eighteenth century it was held by the English, who were driven out by the French allies of Spain. It was on their way home that the English, disgruntled by their loss, stopped off at Gibraltar and took it out of spite from the unsuspecting Spaniards; but those foreigners who would make their home there now are little concerned with its history. For them it satisfies the specifications of Eden. It is surrounded by water and favored with a gentle climate. Its inhabitants are the kindly folk of whom Eleanor Mercein has written in her tales, and modernity has done little to alter their easy-going ways. Yet it has enough of the material paraphernalia of the outside world to insure the comfort of any but the most exigent. Finally, living is reported to be fabulously cheap, though with a tendency to rise since the influx of Americans set in.

It is this very popularity that tends to defeat the purpose of those who would seek such places as a refuge from disagreeable facts. The law of supply and demand soon begins to work, with the result that prices go up. The natives lose some of their idyllic disinterestedness under the spell of the newcomers' dollars. Life inevitably takes on a different tempo. If he wishes, one can even call up his broker in New York by long-distance telephone from Mallorca.

Straight Ahead.

POST HASTE.

In case you missed important news in the convention excitement: Congress didn't pass the relief bill, France and Germany still can't agree at Lausanne, and the Geneva disarmament myth is as good as a mile.

The old Cannon-ade was repulsed at Chicago by the grape-shot storm troops led by the Stein song.

Glad Tydings from Maryland! He did a good job for our handsome neighbor Governor, and will some day listen to a nominating speech about himself.

The Democrats may lose Bishop Cannon, but if they are not careful they will gain Dr. Butler.

Al Smith's "raddio" pronunciation was palpably and purposely perpetrated, but other unconscious assaults upon the king's English must have satisfied even big Bill Thompson.

Some way ought to be thought up during the next four years to convince national political conventions that the childish bedlams following nominating speeches never change a vote.

In the enthusiasm of the convention hall the overproduction of mechanized unction may seem real; to the millions of the radio audience today it is a silly and undignified proceeding in connection with a presidential nomination.

To limit nominating speeches to twenty minutes, secondings to five minutes, and permit pandemoniums to continue for an hour is stupid. If the big boys must play Indian, ten minutes is enough for the absurd exhibition.

McAdoo and Glass, two of the greatest Secretaries of the Treasury before Mellon, agreed on banking reforms before the Chicago convention just like the present and former Governors of New York were of one mind on the Presidency.

Part of the training of presidential candidates is to be able to listen to nominating speeches and appear as though they had never heard them before.

Next time it will be up to Jim Reed to show Missouri that while he is a persistent customer, he is not a Tennyson brook.

Yes, like the heat, you will just have to stand the sapients who knew all the time just what the convention would do.

MONEY AND VOTES.

He wasn't much of a man, but still
He did what weak men sometimes will,
He wooed and won a maiden fair
For whom he didn't really care.
Although no love for her he had
He knew she had a wealthy dad.

At first the father over kind
To please his daughter was inclined.
He'd grant her everything she asked
Until his purse was overtasked.
The husband, idling all through life
Still played the beggar to his wife.

He'd win her time and time again
To ask her dad for money when
Down deep within his heart he knew
No more the kindly man should do,
But fathers oft to daughters give
What they require themselves to live.

Said friends: "Have pity on the man!
Get out and do the best you can.
Already he is deep in debt,
Surely his own needs you forget."
And this the blunt reply he made:
"He'll see his daughter's bills are paid!"

How like the politician who
Chooses the voters' power to woo
And will not once his greed relax,
Remembering him who pays the tax.
Wedded to votes he scorns the ills

By ROBERT QUILLEN

MY DEAR LOUISE: I have little patience with this modern theory that a date isn't a date if you happen to change your mind.

Yesterday your mother asked you and one of your chums to play nine holes of golf with her. You were eager to play and promptly accepted her invitation, for nothing more exciting appeared in prospect.

Now that was a date—a trade—a contract.

But on your way to the course you met a young gentleman who asked you and your chum to ride up to Simpsonville with him, and at once you vetoed golf for the greater thrill of a windy speed demonstration in a strip-down.

Of course your mother felt sat-upon, and I'm glad she didn't let you go. Even parents are people.

I don't mean to say that it is always wrong to break an engagement with some member of the family when it interferes with an unexpected pleasure. Your parents want you to enjoy life while you can, and usually are glad to step aside when better company offers.

But your right to break a date with members of your own family must depend on their willingness. It takes two to break a contract fairly. You wouldn't like it much if I made a date to take you to a show and changed my mind at the last minute.

That isn't the point, however. The thing I'm afraid of is the habit. If you make a practice of breaking dates with the family, you'll soon be breaking all dates that stand in the way of something better—and then your word won't be worth a lead nickel.

I know it's a common practice. Both boys and girls make dates with boredom for want of anything else to do and then break them without a twinge of conscience when a better offer comes.

But it's a rotten business. Nine times in ten they lie to cover their tracks, and after a while they lose all sense of obligation. I'd hate to sign a note for one of that breed.

The only safe plan is to keep your engagement, no matter how much it hurts, and thus in sorrow learn to say "no" unless you are dead sure you want to say "yes." Love, DAD.

Kansas City Star.

The claiming season in politics has opened. It now is in order for the managers of the numerous candidates for party nominations to show their confidence in their entrants. It never would do for these managers to show any lack of confidence; such a showing would be news, indeed, and it would create vacancies in the managerial ranks. For the moment chief interest in advance claims relates to the Democratic nomination for the Presidency.

With Gov. Roosevelt far in advance of his rivals, it is not remarkable that his manager, James A. Farley, should predict his nomination, but Mr. Farley is not satisfied with mere triumph in the convention; he has Roosevelt nominated on the first ballot. Not that he claims two-thirds of the delegates at this time or expects to have them when the convention opens, but he assures us that before the result of the first ballot is announced, Missouri's delegation, pledged to former Senator James A. Reed, and the Illinois delegation, pledged to Senator J. Hamilton Lewis, will change from their respective favorite sons and put the New York governor over.

Maybe so. Such a thing might happen. But if we know anything about favorite sons, we believe that the minimum honor they are willing to accept, even if it should be the maximum possible for them to receive, is that they shall go into history as having received votes for the presidential nomination on at least one ballot.

How Arms Affect Debts.

Kansas City Star.

President Hoover has been careful to let it be known that his newly-announced program for the reduction of certain types of armaments and the abolition of others by international agreement is not linked with any offer on the part of the United States to reduce the European war debts. That is an honorable way to avoid any misunderstanding. Every European statesman must know by this time that, in the opinion of the American people, as well as of the American President, an extravagant debtor who continues to live beyond his means comes into a bankruptcy court with unclean hands.

Chicago Winners and Losers.

New York Sun.

This convention is the fifth that the Democratic party has held in Chicago. It was there that McClellan was named against Lincoln in 1864. Twenty years later Cleveland was nominated; he defeated Blaine by the narrow margin of 23,000 votes in the popular vote. Again in 1892 Cleveland was nominated there. He defeated Harrison, who had beaten him in 1888. Bryan was chosen in 1896; that was the last time previous to this year that the Democrats convened in Chicago. Cleveland's two nominations there were the only victories.

Chicago has been a luckier place for the Republicans. The convention this year was the eleventh out of twenty held since the organization of the party. Seven of the ten candidates nominated in Chicago prior to this year's convention were elected: Lincoln, Grant, Garfield, Harrison, Roosevelt, Taft and Harding. The losers named in Chicago were Blaine in 1884, Taft in 1912, Hughes in 1916.

Borah's Bolt.

Los Angeles Times.

Senator Borah will not support the nominee of his nominal party, because he is at odds with the prohibition plank adopted at Chicago. Since it is certain that he will not like the plank to be adopted by the Democrats any better and since he says he will not join any third party movement, it becomes apparent that the senior senator from Idaho has merely disfranchised himself.

He'll Come Home.

This is about the time of a presidential year when Senator Borah always feels the urge to stray from the reservation. But he will get back in time for the election.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Alfred Rosewood Explains How Earthquakes Occur and Says Scientific Truths Should Not Be Kept From the People.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In order to keep a scientific truth from being known, people are permitted to perish without warning in earthquake disasters. Are institutions supported by the state, and great foundations, morally justified in withholding information as to what causes stresses in the earth's stratified rocks?

The University of California knows, the Harvard University knows, and the Carnegie Institution knows that no quake is possible within thousands of miles without its impending stresses being clearly shown.

Saturn lined up with the moon on the 21st and the earth, Venus and Mercury on the 22d. It was the latter that caused the Mexican quake and tidal wave. Eight destructive quakes have occurred in unfailing chronological relation at the moon's quarters and his line-up with planets since the destructive full moon quake in Central America on May 20, 1932.

If Mexico gets over July 2 they should be safe for some time, but only an indicator can tell the correct time when stresses in the rock strata can not remain without a slip. At least 100,000 men, women and children have perished without warning in quake disasters since these facts were known, whereas, one-half the price of a few pictures of an eclipse would have saved thousands.

Mr. Tilton Says Prohibition Is Not Outstanding Question of the Day. Repeal Will Not Cure the Depression.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Two working men sat beside me at the Republican National Convention. One said, "Wouldn't you think those New York boobs, with all us fellows out of work, could find something better to do than talk booze? Where does it get us?"

Mr. Mark Sullivan, commenting on the mental prostration of the Eastern capitalist, said he had been turned into a one-idea fanatic "holding with hot emotion that escape from the present conditions about prohibition is more important than the depression."

But can the depression be cured by mass mania over drink? Alas no! The fact is, this made-to-order mass mania has no cure for the depression. Europe has no prohibition, but her depression is even worse than ours. Furthermore, this mania has in it the seeds of civil dissension between East and West—already it bids fair to split the Republican party. It has in it something more dangerous, the seeds of social upheaval, because to get anywhere, it must submerge the soberer elements and bring to the surface the underworlds.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The best way to live longer and better is through correct nutrition, scientific cookery and good health habits.

Despite all the "Hoo-ray" on behalf of alcoholic beverage its tale and toll is ever the same. Its tale of shame, its trail of blood, its toll of dishonor, disease, disgrace and destruction is the same in all races of men.

To say that it is the abuse and not the use of alcoholic beverages which constitutes the harm thereof falls far short because it has been demonstrated that when one has had a drink or two of wine or beer he is incapacitated for driving an automobile or performing any other equally responsible task. A sufficient amount to give the participant thereof the least bit of a thrill or kick is a sufficient amount to give him an inaccurate judgment or an exaggerated idea of his abilities.

Outlawed by its own record, by the American people, and by present-day progress, alcohol as a beverage should be removed from the land.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: There were fewer railway passengers killed and injured in 1931 than in any other year since 1888 when complete records were first started. Forty persons were killed in 1931 and fifty in 1930. In 1922 the number of railway passengers killed was 200. Not only have fatalities decreased but the number of accidents has decreased.

This decrease in the accident rate is a result of safety methods adopted in 1923. Though the railroads have been hit hard by the present depression, they have not let up one iota in their safety policy. The continuance of this policy at a time of economic stress is costly and the railroads should be given their due credit for protecting their passengers against accident and death.

Suggests a Municipal Lodging House in Washington to Care for the Unemployed.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The other afternoon I was at the Central Union Mission in the line-up for the evening meal at 4:30 o'clock, and about 50 of the men were turned away. "That's all, no more, all out," was the ultimatum to these hungry men who had stood in line for more than two hours with the expectation of receiving a meal.

Later on I saw some of the men flopping in the parks. Surely the time has come for a municipal lodging house to be erected in Washington. Other cities have them, why not the National Capital? In the meantime these men are hungry and without a place to sleep through no fault of their own, as they are unable to obtain work.

MARION TALLEY WED SECRETLY TO PIANIST

New York, July 1 (A.P.).—Marion Talley, the Missouri girl whose meteor-like career as opera singer ended with abrupt retirement at 23 in 1929, is on a honeymoon with a German pianist, Michael Raucheisen. They were married secretly at White Plains, N. Y.

Details of the romance were not made known. Only last fall Miss Talley announced, as she sailed for Europe with her mother, Mrs. Helen Talley, and sister Florence, she "had no intention of getting married."

Raucheisen gave his age as 43, eighteen years the senior of his bride, when he applied for a marriage license, and requested it not be made public at once. The license noted his previous marriage and divorce. He gave his address as Berlin, Germany.

The Rev. Thomas F. Watkins officiated at the wedding in the First Presbyterian Church at White Plains. The bride's mother and sister were present. Her father is Charles M. Talley, Kansas City railroad telegrapher.

After the honeymoon it was reported the couple would return to the Talley home in Kansas City.

The singer was only 18 when she made her sensational debut as Gilda in "Rigoletto" at the Metropolitan here in 1926. A delegation of 200 Kansas City backers chartered a special train to come here. Speculators reported $40 bids for seats.

Although crowds acclaimed her and two performances added $39,000 to the Metropolitan coffers, the music critics praised only faintly, saying her voice was lovely, but untrained. Praises were fewer the following season, although the singer had successful concert tours. Miss Talley and her managers had a falling out with the Metropolitan management just before her retirement.

CONFEREES DECIDE HUGE U. S. AID PLAN

which about $200,000,000 would have been taken out of the appropriation bills already passed.

These will now be left in the regular governmental construction program, instead of being included under the relief program. The Garner proposal for an additional gasoline tax of one-fourth cent a gallon to finance the program was stricken out.

Provisions of the Garner bill regulating loans from the Reconstruction Corporation were adopted with certain restrictions.

The conferees agreed that the Reconstruction Corporation should be empowered to make loans from the $1,500,000,000 fund for agriculture, industry, commerce or unemployment, under the following restrictions:

That adequate security should be furnished.

That the money was not available elsewhere.

That the purpose was not to pay off debts.

No restriction was placed on the amount of the money that should be used to finance agricultural exports. The Senate bill placed a limitation of $40,000,000.

Senator Norbeck said the provisions of the bill would allow loans to Chicago and other cities for paying employes in the future but not for past debts.

The small business man would be eligible for loans, he said, but preference would be given to self-liquidating projects.

Members of the conference group agreed that the bill would place the Government in the general banking business to an extent. They were somewhat doubtful of the reception the bill would receive in the Senate, which voted to limit strictly the loans to self-liquidating projects of a public nature.

Final House action yesterday sent to President Hoover legislation releasing 45,000,000 bushels of wheat and 500,000 bales of cotton from Farm Board stores to the Red Cross for relief distribution.

Last winter 40,000,000 bushels of wheat were released. Recently John Barton Payne, head of the Red Cross, said this supply would be exhausted by the beginning of next winter.

$45,000,000 POSTAL PROGRAM IS URGED

(Associated Press.)

After two years of investigating postoffice leases, a Senate committee yesterday recommended immediate legislation to provide a $45,000,000 postal building program.

The report from the special Senate postoffice lease investigating committee was presented to the Senate by Chairman Blaine, of Wisconsin.

It recommended that Government-owned buildings be built to replace all quarters on which the Government is now paying more than $6,000 a year in rent and on which the contracts expire or can be cancelled by 1937.

The committee reported that the building program would actually be an economy for the Government and that the projects would be in the strictest sense "self-liquidating projects."

"It is conservatively estimated," the committee said, "that the savings that would accrue under Government ownership of these postal facilities would be more than one-third of the amount which otherwise would have to be paid as rent."

Under the present leasing policy, the committee said, the cost to the Government over a 20-year period would be $120,000,000 and the Government would have nothing at the end, while under the building program the cost would be less than $80,000,000.

The committee reported that on June 30, 1930, there were 6,525 postal leases with an aggregate annual rental of $16,541,324. Of these, 6,173, carrying rentals of $8,250,561, were said to be costing $6,000 annually or less.

There were a total of 353 leases carrying an annual rental of $8,290,763, costing more than $6,000, the report said.

It characterized the leasing policy as "wasteful, extravagant, unbusinesslike and uneconomical," and cited the St. Paul commercial station postoffice and the Quincy stations, Chicago, as examples.

The new captives, the report said, were taken away in a northerly direction, but their present location is not known.

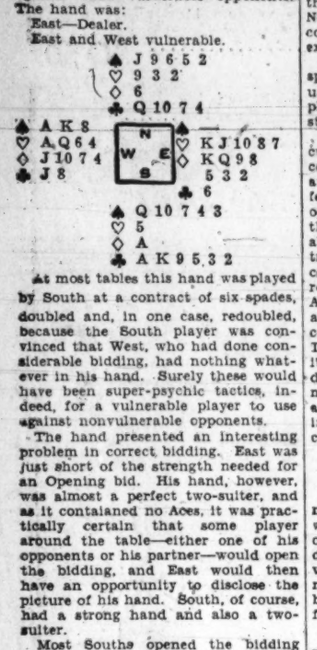
BIDDING FOR A SACRIFICE.

DEFENSE bidding is one of the most interesting phases of Contract. The principle governing it is that you should elect to take a penalty, provided the penalty you incur is less than you would suffer if you permitted your opponents to play it at their contract.

A hand played in a Duplicate Bridge tournament, in which a number of the strongest players in New York City participated, afforded opportunities for unusual defensive tactics by the North and South players against their vulnerable opponents. The hand was:

East—Dealer.
East and West vulnerable.



At most tables this hand was played by South at a contract of six spades, doubled and, in one case, redoubled, because the South player was convinced that West, who had done considerable bidding, had nothing whatever in his hand. Surely these would have been super-psychic tactics, indeed, for a vulnerable player to use against nonvulnerable opponents.

The hand presented an interesting problem in correct bidding. East was just short of the strength needed for an Opening bid. His hand, however, was almost a perfect two-suiter, and as it contained no Aces, it was practically certain that some player around the table—either one of his opponents or his partner—would open the bidding, and East would then have an opportunity to disclose the picture of his hand. South, of course, had a strong hand and also a two-suiter.

Most Souths opened the bidding with one club. The choice between a club and a spade was fairly close, but a spade was probably more correct. West, in all cases, doubled, holding 3½ honor-tricks and being able to support either diamonds, hearts or spades. North passed, and East must perforce give a Jump response to the Takeout Double. Thus, over one club, East's proper response was two hearts. Probably the only reason why three hearts should not have been bid was that East wished an opportunity to disclose the two-suited nature of his hand before the bidding went too high. South, not vulnerable, would then have bid two spades, and West, who held 5½ playing-tricks in support of East's Jump response to the Double, should have bid three hearts. This course of bidding was followed at most tables, and North defended with three spades, and East bid four diamonds. South again defended with four spades, and West, knowing that his hand fit almost perfectly with that of his partner, bid five hearts. North then passed, and East, lacking control of the first round of any suit except spades, also passed.

South, defensively, now bid five spades. The crux of the defensive situation had now been reached. Most players with the West hand, on the strong bidding, now bid six hearts.

South was now faced with a difficult defensive problem. Should he count on his club Ace to take a trick and defeat the Slam, or should he defend by a bid of six spades? My opinion is that he should have passed the six heart bid. East and West in all their bidding had not shown control of the club suit. It was almost certain that they did control the first round of the spade suit. The diamond Ace was a marked winner, and thus apparently East and West's Slam contract should have been defeated. The bid of five spades, carrying with it only a penalty of 100 points, if doubled, was a splendid defensive measure. The bid of six spades was a failure to take account of all the inferences that could be drawn from correct bidding.

TODAY'S POINTER.

A knowledge of the law of symmetry, the underlying principle of which is that unusual distribution of one hand will find like unusual distribution in another, is an invaluable guide to a player in determining whether to accept a penalty by overbidding or to play for the defeat of the opposing player.

Clever Fingers makes a telephone book cover!

NEW YORK, July 1.—Member the telephone hidies I told you about a couple or three weeks ago? Well, we almost got buried under the letters asking for the leaflets telling how to hide the telephone in something other than a doll's skirt! So that just decided me to make a leaflet telling you how to make telephone book covers. That's something I'll bet you have had a secret yearning for all of your life! Not to mention what a gift it would make for a man—nor the convenience, nor anything like that. I think just to say that you can send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for a leaflet that will tell you how to make decorative and useful covers for your telephone book or books will be enough. Personally, I can't live without telephone book covers—and I had to for some time, those that could be bought being such luxurious, predepression prices. No more! We have telephone book covers all over the place, now—even one for the year's almanac.

And now the very lady who launched tennis shorts has turned fickle—and says she will not wear them this year! In fact, she admits that they are not practical—let alone the fact that they shocked so many people—something that she had not bargained for.

Ye who tennis with any degree of seriousness must make the practical be your first consideration in costume. But the charming French lady who discussed the for and against of tennis shorts went on to say that one need not sacrifice all chic to the practical! Just choose something practical in the way of cut and material—and then wear whatever you wish in the way of colorful accessories—any that do not interfere with your playing, of course.

The Beauty Sorceress.

Summer time is beauty guarding time! Two things especially. The facial for keeping the natural moisture in your face and preventing wrinkles which come with dryness, and the hand care for the same reason.

The lovely lady who simply can't wear rubber gloves at night can take an hour off during the day, put skin food generously on the backs of her hands, put on her rubber gloves and lie down and read. Or lie and take a facial at the same time, as I do. I love the effect of egg facials, even if they are uncomfortable! They take about an hour, and at the end of that hour one has hands and face of a velvety texture, which lasts until the next beauty hour. But do it!

The high straight collar, which we sometimes hear called the Medici collar, is back in style for fall. Particularly when on a coat, and developed in a flat fur. The higher and straighter the better, according to the leading couturieres.

Immediately one wonders what to do with the back of one's hat—immediately, too, I remind you that the latest fall hats are to be high in the back, showing much chignon or curls. Remember? So you can see what might happen to the high coat collar. I, for one, like it very much.

Have you any more ideas for leaflets you would like me to make for you? When you send your stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post for the leaflet of summer nightgown designs send a suggestion, will you? I am so pressed for eye-jeers!

Au revoir.

How to Be Beautiful

By ELSIE PIERCE

Answering Readers' Questions.

DEAR Miss Pierce: "I think you give wonderful advice. I wonder if you could help me. I have very oily hair—it gets oily in less than a week. I had a permanent, but it didn't seem to help." W.

Shampoo your hair once a week and between shampoos use a good astringent tonic. Make sure that your diet does not contain too many oils, starches, sweets and fatty foods. Occasionally you might give yourself a dry shampoo. Sprinkle corn meal or orris root on the hair, allow to remain for a half hour then brush every bit of it out of the hair. It will remove much of the oil, lint and dust. My bulletin on "dry shampoos" may be had for a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Dear Elsie Pierce: "What can one do for broken veins in the upper limb? I've massaged mine 50 times each day for two years and they are just as they were in the beginning. They look bad in a bathing suit."

L. L. C.

Physicians are treating broken veins and varicose veins by several different methods, each of which is credited with its measure of success. Massages, bandaging, and injections have all been known to help. The last is the newest method, I believe. Consult your physician. In addition to the treatment he will give you, he will probably urge you to rest your feet for at least an hour each day, sitting back in a chair and placing your feet on a chair or ottoman on a level with your hips or slightly higher. This helps to draw the blood out of the broken veins and make them less conspicuous. Cold showers, cold applications and massaging with ice would be beneficial to improve circulation for varicose veins.

Dear Miss Pierce: "Do you advocate sun glasses for the beach and are the cheap glasses harmful? Please answer in your column." H. N. J.

I do advocate sun glasses as the sun glare on the water is a strain. But get goggles that are not too dark. Personally, I use a medium smoke shade for motoring and aviators use a special shade called smoke-green which is recommended by the U. S. Army. A smoke colored hue or amethyst is to be recommended rather than amber. It would be best for you to consult your optometrist about even your sun glasses because eyes are so delicate and so easily abused and glasses even for temporary beach or motoring wear should be suited to the individual for whom they are intended. While those ordinarily marketed would not be harmful (providing the glass is well polished and without streaks or specks as otherwise the visual effect would be blurred)—a glass prescribed for you would be better and not much more expensive.

Wives of Tomorrow

By FRANCES M'DONALD

About Hands and Things.

DEAR FRANCES McDONALD: You published a letter in this column about a seemingly wealthy girl who had married a poor man and was writing to you for advice. I wish I could remember what the signature was, but this I remember, she seemed to be much concerned over her work-a-day hands and the question if she should leave her husband and return to her parents—to save her hands!

You gave her splendid advice and I shouted "three cheers" when you told her "she'd be bored to tears" at home!

When any one asks for advice I am reminded of the man who named his boat Advice so no one would take it. However—whether this particular girl takes your advice I do not know, but there are a few things she could be told that may stir something within her. Since she is using her imagination so vividly in being a "servant in the house" and an abused one at that, she might just as well use it for a prettier picture. Why can't she make believe this very day is one of her other days when she dressed with exceeding care to be her best, when she greeted the boy who then warned her—there would be a job worth doing. Let her forget the unpleasant thoughts of things that seem real and get busy to go with flying feet and a flashing smile to greet the loved one who comes home at the end of day. She will know again the thrill of those other days—if she must have thrills for happiness.

It's the "hands," though, that keep me thinking—if only she would look at those hands and give thanks that they can serve—yes, and keep soft and pretty, even while serving—perhaps I keep thinking of hands because about the same time I read her letter, I received one from a 16-year-old boy who does not walk—does not hold a pen, but struggles through a letter, cheerfully, using one finger to type with. Yet he can write lines such as these: "Across the street from our house a cherry tree is in blossom. I love nature. It is no wonder the ancients worshiped nature, but I often wonder why civilized people fail to worship Him who made it all!"

And folks waste valuable time looking at roughened hands! Repining! Hurting their loved ones, planning betrayals! God gives you wisdom and understanding, Frances MacDonald. Yours is a wonderful work! And may you be blest for your help to others.

ANN.

Thank you, dear Ann! And thank the wonderful boy! Do you suppose he would like to write to our column? We would love to have some of his impression. For most of us are buried so deep beneath the things that do not matter. Our spirits have almost ceased to even pant for breath and have just given up the struggle. "Hands"—and a myriad other things have crowded out thoughts. We herd in darkened subways while the sun sinks in the crimson glory of one more day added to "yesterday's 7,000 years." What are we? Why are we here? Who was that loved one we laid away to rest? What did we ever know about his hopes and fears and heart-breaks? Why are we unkind? Why bitter? Unforgiving? Why cast down? Why "troubled about many things?" Why not at peace with life, one with all the beauty that surrounds us—wrapt in the universal love?

Life is a brief beautiful thing—so swiftly over. Why do we desecrate it? The cherry tree in blossom. The boy voicing his reverence. Beauty. The beauty of life—while we wallow in—things. Come again, Ann, and bring the boy!

How to Keep Well

By DR. W. A. EVANS

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to hygiene and prevention of disease will be answered in this column. Personal replies will be made to inquiries, under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Dr. Evans will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual disease.

HOW TO BE HAPPY.

EVERYTHING that makes life worth while depends on mental as well as physical health. Prevention, as distinguished from cure, is now accepted in physical health. We must apply prevention to mental disorders, both major and minor. That is the next step.

Dr. W. H. Burnham lays down what he calls six minimum essentials for a wholesome personality.

The first is what he calls wholeness. A person, to have a wholesome personality and to be contented and happy in life, must be for what he is for with all his body, mind and soul. He must get pleasure and satisfaction out of every situation that he finds himself in. If he is thrown into surroundings that do not suit him he must have patience enough to find persons and things there that he can be fond of, and charity and forgiveness enough to accept the remainder with grace. It will help us to understand what is meant by wholeness of personality to think of it as the opposite of dementia precox and split personality. The man with wholeness of personality does not get his pleasures from day dreaming.

The second essential is a task or work in which one can find pleasure and joy. A man who gets joy out of his work is not apt to be harmed by taking his work home with him at night. Failing to get a vacation may make him all the happier. The mind that is fully occupied with the task in hand is not liable to be torn by the cross currents of harmful emotions.

A third essential is objectivity, or ability to value and weigh oneself without prejudice for or against—to measure oneself just as others are measured—neither with too much ego nor with an inferiority complex.

The fourth is persistence—the desire to stay by those things that we undertake; to see them through. The first time we do a thing the newness of it causes some difficulty, friction and lost motion. After we have done it a few times the processes run in grooves. We watch a powerful engine easily carrying its load and we feel that somehow its work is a pleasure—a thing to be gloried in. It gives us a feeling of pleasure to watch the ease and complacency with which the engine does its job. There is something of the same quality in the reaction of personality when the job in hand is being accomplished without lost motion, friction, or waste.

The fifth essential is that the person should be a member of a group in which each individual has freedom of opinion, but in which he finds happiness in such exercise of his freedom as will make up for the good of the group instead of bringing discord and partisan clashing.

The sixth is based on a recognition of growth and evolution in the mind and the emotions. The body changes its characteristics as it grows. So does the mind. The interests natural to a boy are unnatural when found in a man. To be infantile, puerile, or adolescent in one's mental reactions and emotions after maturity has been reached is unwholesome, at least.

STRANGE HEARING.

F. M. writes: I believe I have the craziest hearing of any person living. This is what I can hear: The noise of a street car; the echo of a firecracker; the barking of our dog; if I put my ear close to the radio I can hear everything. I can't hear a telephone ring, even though I put my ear close to it; the birds sing when a person talks to me. I have been this way for almost ten years.

REPLY.

My guess is that an ear specialist, carefully examining your ears and analyzing your hearing, would be able to tell you what kind of deafness you have and what type of hearing device would aid you.

Advice on Gardening

By JANE LESLIE KIFT

ANSWERS TO INQUIRIES.

PLEASE tell me how often to water newly planted evergreens. I have planted five trees of varying height, which were rather costly and I can not afford to replace them if they die. MRS. CHARLES T. L.

Give each plant, after sundown, three buckets of water. You can water them with a hose, but when watered in this manner they rarely get enough moisture.

My asters are being eaten with tarnish bugs. What do you suggest?

MADGE C. W.

The tarnish plant bug that punctures the growing tips of asters can be kept in check with a tobacco spray or by dusting with air-slacked lime. Spraying the seedlings with Bordeaux mixture on the under sides of the leaves will act as a preventive of rust.

My golden glow and nasturtiums are covered with aphis. What shall I do to permanently rid my garden of these pests? MRS. PAUL W. D.

Constant spraying with nicotine solution (any available preparation will answer the purpose) will control and usually eradicate these pests. However, one spraying will have little effect on aphis. It is a case of constant warfare.

When may I lift and divide a row of bearded irises? Also some Japaneses irises? ELECTRA J. F.

You can do this work any time between July 20 and September 1. Japanese irises need dividing only about once in three years. Do this work after the plants are through flowering. Lift the crowns carefully and separate them with a sharp knife. They should be set deeper than the bearded kinds.

MRS. F. S. P.

I want a blooming plant or ordinary varieties of delphiniums next season. When shall I sow the seed?

ELISIE D. R.

Sow the seed as soon as it is ripe, but if you want plants from which to grow prize-winning spikes, you had better obtain divisions of a selected strain of plants.

Please tell me what to do for peony plants that show a tendency to suffer from bud blast. I mean preventive treatment, for it is too late to do anything about this year's blooms.

MRS. CHARLES F. W.

What Today Means

"CANCER."

IF July 2 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9:15 a. m. to 11 a. m., from 4 p. m. to 5:45 p. m. and from 9 p. m. to 10:45 p. m. The least advantageous are from noon to 2:10 p. m. and from 6:15 p. m. to 7:50 p. m.

According to the planetary aspects, nothing of a startling or surprising nature will occur on July 2, although the signs are favorable for everything connected with outdoor recreation. In the evening a languid but contented atmosphere will prevail, and harmony will be in evidence.

Health, not too robust in infancy, will seriously affect the character and disposition of the child born on this July 2. Its natural resiliency will compensate later on, however, for any drawbacks caused by lack of youthful vigor. Although querulous in disposition, its bark will be worse than its bite, and it will prove to be capable of sincere affection without gush.

If you were born on July 2, you are very complacent and come very near to being an opportunist. You, although superficially quick and intelligent, are not a very deep thinker, nor are you, in any sense of the word, original or creative. On the other hand you are quick to adopt others' methods, and show great ingenuity in adapting them to your own particular needs. You abstain from voicing opinions of your own, and find it more convenient—and sometimes profitable—to function as an echo of what others think and say.

The future has for you settled rewards, and, once you have them in your possession, you have the gumption to hang on to them. You rather expect others to make sacrifices on your behalf. You, however, are not made of the material of martyrs, and make very few sacrifices to others. If a woman, you, while seemingly yielding to others, always will have your own way. The process will be both subtle and hidden; the results, however, will be evident. You will not hesitate to use your charm and attractiveness to secure what you want, and your victim will think that his or her way is "winning out" until it is too late to recede. Both men and women born on this day are diplomatic—not in a shirt sleeve manner—and pertinacious, although never aggressively so. They are not fighters for, but in, a cause. Their temperaments are serene.

Loans to Families Of Idle Proposed

Associated Press.)

A bill to create a $3,000,000,000 Federal Corporation to extend credit to unemployed heads of families up to $500 each was introduced yesterday in both branches of Congress. It was offered in the Senate by Costigan (Democrat), Colorado, and in the House by LaGuardia (Republican), New York.

The coroporation would be similar to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation in its set up. It would have $500,000,000 capital and authority to issue $2,500,000,000 debentures.

Credit would be given heads of families for purchase of "necessary goods and services" for six months. The money would be repayable in ten years and draw interest graduated from 1 to 4 per cent.

Ethelbert Stewart Quits Department of Labor Under New Bill.

In Government service since 1887, Ethelbert Stewart, commissioner of labor statistics of the Department of Labor, was retired yesterday under the provisions of the economy bill.

Mr. Stewart was regarded as one of the foremost statisticians in the country and was frequently consulted by other branches of the service. He attained the position, from which he was retired, in 1913. During the World War he was the director of the investigation and inspection service of the War Labor Emergence Administration.

He had been granted several extensions of service in the Government, but he was not included among those whose service was extended by President Hoover to escape retirement under the economy provisions.

Produce Company Loses $300 in Cash to Thieves

Entrance was gained to the store by forcing a window in the rear of the warehouse. Olin James, of Mount Rainier, Md., mangaer of the concern, discovered the burglary when he opened the office for work.

Device Perfected to Aid Ships in Avoiding Shoals

Coast and Geodetic Survey Announces "Fathometer," Automatic Depth Finder, Makes Four Accurate Recordings Per Minute.

A seven-league boot stride toward establishment of safety at sea is believed to have been made with announcement by the Coast and Geodetic Survey yesterday of perfection of the "fathometer," an automatic depth finder that warns of hidden shoals while a vessel is proceeding at full speed.

Tests have proved the instrument to be of great value in averting grounding of ships during fogs. The primary intention in development of the device was for the purpose of providing additional navigational aid during heavy weather.

Dr. Herbert Grove, of the survey bureau, is the designer of the fathometer. Officials have been experimenting with the instrument for more than a year. During that time they have received several reports from masters of ships that the device has saved their craft from going aground.

The fathometer takes soundings at the rate of four per second, a rate almost incredible heretofore. This frequent information keeps the skipper of a ship constantly advised of the depth of water.

The time it takes for sound to travel from the hull of a vessel to the bottom of the sea and back again is the basic principle of the fathometer. Sound travels through sea water at the rate of 4,800 feet per second. Thus if a full second elapses before the "echo" returns to the keel, the reckoning is that the depth of the water is 2,400 feet.

Kansas Publication Barred From Mails

The June 25 issue of the American Freeman, published in Girard, Kans., by E. Haldeman-Julius, was barred from the mails and all copies therein destroyed under a decision yesterday by postal authorities who invoked a section of the postal regulations forbidding handling of any matter advocating treason, insurrection or forcible resistance to any law of the United States.

Objection to the publication was said to have been brought about by an editorial which asserted, in effect, that the forefathers of the Nation would, if placed in the present position of unemployed, have "taken down their flintlocks and enforced their rights."

A first-page editorial containing unsupported charges against President Hoover and accusing him of seeking "the destruction of the Freeman" did not cause the ban on the publication, Postoffice Solicitor Donnelly said yesterday. Mr. Haldeman-Julius is said to contend that his articles only were critical in plain words.

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible:

"Who shall ascend into the hill of the Lord? or who shall stand in his holy place? He that hath clean hands, and a pure heart; who hath not lifted up his soul unto vanity, nor sworn deceitfully. He shall receive the blessing from the Lord, and righteousness from the God of his salvation." (Psalms 24:3-4,5.)

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science Text Book, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Not materially, but spiritually, we know Him as divine Mind, as Life, Truth, and Love. We shall obey and adore in proportion as we apprehend the divine nature and love Him understandingly, warring no more over the corporeality, but rejoicing in the affluence of our God. Religion will then be of the heart and not of the head." (page 140.)

Baptists at Chevy Chase Plan Communion Service

A communion meditation, "The Heights of Calvary," will be given at the Chevy Chase Baptist Church at the morning service tomorrow by the pastor, the Rev. Edward O. Clark. The ordinance of the Lord's Supper will be observed and new members welcomed into the church fellowship. A story-sermon for children will be given.

In the evening at 7 o'clock the church unites with the other Protestant Churches in an open-air vesper service on the lawn of the Episcopal Church at Chevy Chase Circle. The Rev. Edward G. Latch of the First M. E. Church will preach the sermon.

The Vacation Bible School, sponsored by the Chevy Chase Churches, is already in session, meeting every week-day morning from 9 to 12 in the Baptist Church. The school combines handwork, recreation and religious instruction in a way suitable for children of all ages. The registration will close July 8.

THE NEW CINEMA OFFERINGS

PALACE

By NELSON B. BELL.

At least, the locale of the story is palpably Chicago and its central character a youth with a heavy Italian dialect and a jagged scar on his cheek who shoots his way up from the betrayed trust of bodyguard to a South Side beer baron to the position of overlord of all Chicago's racketeers—until the law closes in on him and evens the score with his life, just as it did with "Little Caesar's."

Precisely how accurately this explosive celluloid may visualize a Capone biography, it is difficult to say. There need be no hesitancy, however, in declaring that it dramatizes in most brutal and lurid fashion all of the major gangster crimes laid at the door of Chicago's underworld—not omitting a vivid shadowgraph of the St. Valentine's massacre of seven beer runners in a North Side garage.

"Scarface" is peculiarly paradoxical. It embodies almost as much gunnery as the Battle of the Marne, abounds in the shocking spectacle of wholesale murder and in bold strokes etches a career predicated wholly upon defiance of the law, yet it is interesting, fascinating, absorbing entertainment throughout its length for those with a stomach for strong meat.

It is admirably discreet in not glorifying the criminal nor flaunting the police, and, from time to time, indulges in a few brief but pointed indictments of the Federal Government for not having taken steps long ago to curb the practices which it so boldly depicts.

In the title role, Paul Muni, one of the most brilliant young character actors in America, offers an extraordinary performance. Never for an instant does he falter in his appointed task of breathing the breath of life into the figure of a killer that to most of us has been purely legendary.

Osgood Perkins, as the weakling leader; George Raft, Tony Camonte's bodyguard; Vincent Barnett, as his secretary who could neither read nor write, and Ann Dvorak and Karen Morley, as "Scarface" Tony's sister and reluctant "moll," render exceedingly able support. C. Henry Gordon, Boris Karloff, identifiable as "Buga" Moran; Purnell Pratt, Tully Marshall and Edwin Maxwell are also importantly cast and do uniformly excellent work.

A two-reel comedy, "Strictly Unreliable," starring ZaSu Pitts and Thelma Todd, and the Hearst Metrotone News are the only supplementaries of a feature you won't shake off for days!

LOEW'S FOX

"UNASHAMED." Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picturization of an original story by Bayard Veiller, featuring Helen Twelvetrees and Robert Young. Directed by Harry Beaumont. Reviewed Friday night by Don B. Reed.

Based upon a recent case in the news, "Unashamed" deals with the story of a brother and sister. Loving each other dearly, they are torn asunder by the girl's love for a rotter. The brother kills his sister's lover and is faced with death in the electric chair, largely because the sister has testified that he murdered in cold blood. Then the defense lawyer, working on the sister's love, convinces her that to save her brother, she must, by her testimony, blast her own character. This she does to the satisfaction of a jury which quickly frees the brother.

Helen Twelvetrees comes through with another sparkling performance as Joan Ogden, the sister, while Robert Young steps up another notch with a well-done part, as Dick Ogden. However, a veteran of the screen ties the principals for first honors. Lewis Stone as the defense attorney has a meaty role of which he makes the most.

Cardini grabbed most of the honors in a stage revue called "Hell's Belles." The magician is inimitable and the audience ate up his stuff. The McCann Sisters sang well but might have scored a little better with improved costuming. The Stone Veron foursome, an adagio team of three men and one woman, closes the bill.

Vaughn de Leath, radio star, is the added attraction and she was forced to do several encores. Her songs, both straight and in imitation of other featured air artists, were excellent.

Phil Lampkin's overture, "An American Fantasy," by Victor Herbert, with scenic effects and a vocal chorus, won a fine reception. "Choo Choo," an Our Gang comedy, which is a scream, and the Fox Movietone News complete the bill.

COLUMBIA

"FAST COMPANIONS." Universal picturization of a story by Gerald Beaumont and Charles Bovure, featuring Tom Brown, James Gleason, Mickey Rooney and Andy Devine. Directed by Kurt Neumann. Reviewed Friday evening by W. A. Whitney.

Racing fans will go overboard for this latest addition to the lore of the turf, but those others who have already seen a horse-race picture will recognize in "Fast Companions" nothing more than the traditional story.

Marty Black, a jockey and owner of his own horse, to get a new start and more cash from the yokelry, following a near-expose of purposeful losing, arrives in a small town where he soon falls in love with the boarding-house keeper. Marty's pal later comes in to complete the work when, lo, and behold, Marty goes straight. But—he does enter the race and, after losing the lead by a comfortable margin, shows a burst of speed and crashes through a winner.

As is easily seen, there is nothing here but the routine story. In the role of Midge, a gamin who was an "orphan before I was born," Mickey Rooney steals the picture. As the lad of the streets who is befriended by Marty, Mickey does a swell, real he-boy piece of [illegible] that is easily the best of the s[illegible].

The title characters are played by Tom Brown, as Marty; James Gleason, as Silk Henley, Marty's side partner, and Andy Devine, as the ever-chewing Information Kid. Maureen O'Sullivan furnishes the other half of the love interest and is a charming, though somewhat unbelievable, boarding-house keeper.

"Honeymoon Heaven," a release in the Port o' Call series of travelogues by Deane H. Dickason, is an exquisite account of the beauties—scenic and otherwise—of Hawaii. Eddie Lambert and Hazel Howell are seen again in "Dancing Daddies," a marital comedy of the usual sort. "Whales Everywhere," a Krazy Kid Kartune, and a release of the Paramount News are the remaining short subjects.

EARLE

"WEEK-END MARRIAGE." First National picturization of the novel by Faith Baldwin, adapted to the screen by Sheridan Gibney, featuring Loretta Young and Norman Foster, with George Brent, Vivienne Osborne, Aline MacMahon and Roscoe Karns. Directed by Thornton Freeland. Reviewed Friday afternoon.

By NELSON B. BELL.

Except that the tale has been considerably in excess of twice told, this is a workmanlike, thoroughgoing and rather handsomely done domestic drama of a young couple who couldn't make a go of married life so long as both held office jobs and the wife prospered more than the husband. The same basic idea that Faith Baldwin wove into this story of Lola and Ken, you will recall, was also employed as the foundation of "Up Pops the Devil."

There is, of course, the blonde temptress who steps into the bride's place when she accompanies the boss to St. Louis to straighten out the Midwest branch office, and the doctor can not see why the wife must be admitted to the sick room when Ken is at the brink, but Lola teaches us all a splendid lesson in self-abjurement by renouncing everything for which she has been striving, tossing up the job and coming back to make a home for her comparatively no-good very-little-helpmate, nevertheless.

The piece is intelligently and believeably acted and directed—save for the long interview with Ken when he is supposed to be at the crisis of desperate illness—and will prove acceptably entertaining if novelty or the unusual is not a prerequisite to enjoyment.

Loretta Young and Norman Foster give a good account of themselves—as they usually do—as the young married couple; Aline MacMahon is a meddling and mildly amusing sister-in-law and Vivienne Osborne the domestic threat.

A long list of "names" will be found in supporting roles, among them George Brent, J. Farrell MacDonald, Grant Mitchell, Roscoe Karns, and Wilfred Lucas.

Miss Maxine Doyle, in some striking new costumes, introduces two stage acts of more than ordinary interest and two others that are pleasantly adiverting. Jack Mulhall preponderantly "assisted" by Emmett Flynn, is seen in "When Johnny Comes Marching Home," a bucolic dialogue that permits Mr. Flynn to do all the work and Mr. Mulhall to garner all the applause! The other hit—and an even greater one—is scored by George Dewey Washington, Negro barytone, whose splendid voice always assures him an enthusiastic welcome.

METROPOLITAN

By NELSON B. BELL.

This is not, as many might have supposed, the complete and revealing story of Hollywood. It is, rather, the story of one young woman who by a quaint betrayal of the ambition seething in her breast to become so great that her footprints would be sought to be perpetuated in the concrete leading into the sacred portals of the Chinese Theater, in Hollywood, enlisted the interest of a newspaper chatter writer who finally got her a break.

The break took the form of a film and voice test and led at once to a maze of intrigue, petty politics, licentious love, suicide and scandal. The moral of the whole thing seems to be to avoid the appearance of evil. For Gertie Smith, who became Greta Swan, was a good girl—but just a little dumb. She invariably picked the wrong people to advance her career, in spite of Jimmy Reed's swell advice as to precisely what she should do and when and why. Except that it finally cemented the honest love Jimmy felt for the gal, the whole business was pretty disastrous.

Genevieve Tobin, venturing a step beyond the sophisticated performance she contributed to Ernst Lubitsch's "One Hour With You," with Maurice Chevalier and Jeanette MacDonald, goes in for skimpy bathing costumes, clandestine rendezvous with predatory directors and other symbols of the gay life in this mildly diverting play which falls so disappointingly short of its possibilities as a document truly expository of the inside workings of the film capital. Hers is a good average journeyman piece of characterization, but by no means her best.

Pat O'Brien, as the movie columnist, offers one of his typically crisp portrayals and Lucien Prival who, next to Erich Von Stroheim, can be the most sinister of the villains, is a venomous sensualist thinly veneered with "artistry."

The auxiliary attractions are Vincent Lopez and his orchestra in "Those Blues," marred by poor lighting and photography; "What an Idea!" a genuinely clever musical revue, executed with novelty and imagination, and the Paramount Sound News.

"Hollywood Speaks," if you wish, but has nothing much to say.

RKO-KEITH'S

"BRING 'EM BACK ALIVE." RKO-Radio's release of Van Beuren Pictures Corporation picturization of Frank Buck's book of the same name, with running comment by the author. Filmed in the Federated Malay States under the direction of Clyde E. Elliott.

For a few days longer that belligerent black leopard will prowl around pugnaciously through the Malaysian jungles, the gaunt and hungry tiger will stalk such potential provender as unwarily strolls his way and the slithering 30 feet of regal python will entwine divers and sundry of its land and water enemies in a crushing and deadly embrace.

One by one, these ominous denizens of the tropical wilds will fall unwilling victim to the skill and cunning of Frank Buck who, by sheer courage and dexterity, traps the wildest of the wild animals without injury to himself or them and never fails to "Bring 'em Back Alive."

Which is to say that the sensationally thrilling picturization of Mr. Buck's printed narrative of his adventures sacking, boxing and crating savage beasts for exhibition in zoos, circuses and private collections, is being continued at the RKO-Keith theater over the Fourth of July and through Tuesday for the benefit of the crowds that are daily flocking to see one of the most extraordinary animal pictures ever offered the public.

In the fights between the natural enemies of the jungle the film finds its major climaxes—the battle between the python and the tiger being a classic or primitive and relentless, although not deadly, combat—but, apart from these intervals of furious action the picture is notable for the fidelity of its reflection of primal life, the comic interludes contributed by some of the camp's domesticated pets and Mr. Buck's running comment. It is all worth any amusement seeker's interested attention.

ABOUT THE SHOWSHOPS

With NELSON B. BELL

AT last it comes out!

I mean the identity of that very excellent "bit" player in pictures who attracted considerable attention as the gigolo of a society dowager with Carole Lombard and Chester Morris in "Sinners in the Sun," and a little later also was noticed in the much smaller part of Jill Esmond's unwelcome suitor aboard that liner in "Is My Face Red?" in which Ricardo Cortez and Helen Twelvetrees were starred.

This so-glib young man, it seems, is Anderson Lawlor, one who is getting on in Hollywood. You will discover him this week in a part of considerable consequence with Genevieve Tobin and Pat O'Brien in "Hollywood Speaks," at the Metropolitan—that of Joe Hammond, the assistant director. But with all the expanded opportunity he is not so effective as he was in that one brief scene in "Sinners in the Sun." Well, that's the way it goes sometimes.

And speaking of bits, as we were, if you remember, two paragraphs above, it is a most disconcerting thing for a devotee of the so-called legitimate theater to happen upon Grant Mitchell playing so obscure and inconsequential a role as that of the doctor in "Week-End Marriage," at the Earle. The character only appears in one brief sequence and has only a few meager lines to speak—enough, however, to bring back vivid recollections of the splendid work this capable actor did in "The Tailor-Made Man," not so long ago that there are not still people living who can remember it!

Frank La Falce, in charge of advertising and publicity for the local Warner Brothers theaters, leaves Washington today for a fortnight's vacation in New York. William C. Ewing, on his way back from his, passing him at the District line to take up the grind. Well, anyhow, it's a paragraph on a hot night!

Emmett Flynn, who does most of the heavy work in "When Johnny Comes Marching Home," with Jack Mulhall at the Earle, unfortunately mars what would otherwise be a very elegant performance by dragging in a few jests that could stand a trip to the cleaners were they not so timeworn that they might better be dropped from the act entirely, instead.

Mr. Flynn's impersonation of the ancient villager is an extremely clever bit of miming that does not need to be bolstered with smut—and how I hate that word!—nor yet vulgarity by implication.

And now all they have to do is dig up enough "forgotten men" to elect him!

This Morning with Shirley L. Povich

A FORETASTE of America's chances to reclaim the Davis Cup that France carried back across the seas in 1927 and has held since in uninterrupted conquest of the rest of the world's tennis forces will be served this morning, Eastern standard time, on the famous center court at Wimbledon.

Ellsworth Vines, spearhead of the United States' invasion of Europe, faces Henry (Bunny) Austin, of England, today in the finals of the tournament for the Wimbledon singles crown, which is more emblematic of the world's individual championship than any other single honor.

Austin is the lad who last year throttled America's hopes of surviving the challenge round for the right to meet France in the finals. He disposed of both Frank Shields and Sidney Wood in the singles tests that clinched England's triumph, and today he meets in Vines America's newest and supreme threat.

The Vines-Austin match this morning will be a forerunner of the United States-British embroglio which is scheduled later in the month, the winner earning the right to engage France in the finals match. Should Austin maintain his supremacy over America's singles players, then the hopes of the United States will be dimmed, indeed.

America's chances have already received a stunning set-back in the defeat of the doubles team of John Van Ryn and Wilmer Allison by the veteran French campaigners, Brugnon and Borotra.

Van Ryn and Allison, who have to their credit two victories over France's doubles team and a triumph in the zone finals with England last year, have been regarded as the best doubles pair in the world, but their defeat in three straight sets yesterday by the Frenchmen has cast a pall of doubt over their continued dominance of this phase of play.

◆

Mrs. Moody Wimbledon Champion

Routs Helen Jacobs, 6—3, 6—1 to Win Title 5th Time.

Allison and Van Ryn Upset; Vines Plays Austin Today.

WIMBLEDON, England, July 1 (A.P.). — Mrs. Helen Wills Moody gave convincing proof again today that there is no woman in the world who can stand against her on a tennis court as she swept over Helen Jacobs, her fellow Californian, 6—3, 6—1, to win her fifth Wimbledon singles title.

Playing well within herself, Mrs. Moody held the mastery throughout over the player ranked second to her in the United States and fourth in the world. The straight-set victory kept intact Mrs. Moody's record of not losing a set in major competition over the last two years.

Semifinal matches also were played in three of the other four divisions, with the United States losing out in one but gaining final brackets in the other two. Ellsworth Vines, jr., the American champion, already is in the finals of men's singles and will play H. W. (Sunny) Austin, of England, for the title tomorrow.

Allison-Van Ryn Bow In Upset.

The one American defeat, that of Wilmer Allison and John Van Ryn by Jean Borotra and Jacques Brugnon, of France, was more unexpected than were the three American victories.

Playing before the former Kings of Portugal and Spain and a gallery which filled the stands around the famous center court to capacity, Borotra regained his old-time form and with Brugnon steady as a rock, they never gave the Americans a chance. The result was a blow to British tennis critics, who had made Allison and Van Ryn favorites to regain the title they won in 1929 and 1930.

Elizabeth Ryan, American woman living in London, was a principal in the other two American victories, pairing with Helen Jacobs to defeat Lolette Payot, of Switzerland, and Miss M. A. Thomas, of England, 6—1, 6—2, in women's doubles and winning with Enrique Maier, of Spain, in mixed doubles from Henri Cochet and Mrs. Eileen Bennett Whittingstall, 7—5, 3—6, 6—1.

CAVALRY 7-5 VICTOR AT POLO

Defeat 16th Artillery in Tourney, 7-5, by Last-Period Rally.

By RICHARD S. TENNYSON.

THIRD CAVALRY YELLOWS gave Sixteenth Field Artillery a four-goal handicap yesterday in an Argentine Polo Cup tourney game on the Potomac Park oval and then had a most difficult time in winning, 7 to 5. The winners scored twice in the final period to break a 5-to-5 deadlock.

Third Cavalry reduced Artillery's handicap advantage by 2 in the opening period on goals by Smith and Truscott. Smith scored first by tapping the ball about 3 yards over the goal line and Truscott converted one of two foul shots into a marker.

Smith again scored from the mouth of the Artillery goal in the second period after the two teams scrambled there a half minute or more. Noble added the equalizing goal in the third with a slow roller that barely rolled over the line, but in a few minutes Thomson put Artillery in the lead again on a goal from the throw-in. Noble did some fancy dribbling to tie the score again in the fourth.

Teams Battle Desperately.

The fifth period was filled with action. Both teams fought desperately for the lead with the laurels being about even. The goals were tried several times, but in every instance the shots were wide or blocked by defending players.

The sixth was also crowded with thrills. Lieut Watson, of Artillery, pulled a "Prince of Wales" in this chukker when he was thrown from his horse into the Cavalry camp. He was unhurt physically, although it was apparent that he would have preferred taking the spill on his own side of the field.

Capt. Smith made a neat pass to Capt. Truscott to put Cavalry in the lead midway the period and Bennett added one more near the close of the match on a shot from a scrimmage.

Today, Third Cavalry Greens will play the War Department Blues at 3 o'clock on the Potomac Park field.

Lt. Robinson Retains Net Honors

Forsakes Back Court Game to Rally After Opening Set.

By BOB CONSIDINE.

LIEUT. STANLEY K. ROBINSON, who helps propel your Uncle Samuel's one-seater fighting planes through the peace-time ozone, retained the tennis championship of the Army yesterday at the Army-Navy Country Club, trimming Maj. Robert C. Van Vliet, three times champion in years gone by, 2—6, 6—3, 13—11, 6—2.

The H. C. Sheridan Trophy, which stands as high as the champion himself, goes to California again, if the Army can dispatch a Boeing bomber to lift it. The presentation was made by Gen. Allen, the match refereed by Tom Mangan and ten Army officers, and the gallery amounted to several hundred, including Gen. Robert C. Van Vliet, the 75-year-old father of the defeated finalist—and still a good player—H. C Sheridan and Abner Y. Leech, whose trophy will bring the Army and Navy netmen together on the sixteenth of the month.

Interest of Gallery Is Held.

Yesterday's was not always good tennis, but the numberless comebacks and the closeness of the games, particularly in the third set, kept the interest of the gallery. Both men have played better. Van Vliet was the first to steady down and romped through the first set, 6—2, pushed along by Robinson's inability to catch his shots on the sweet spot of his racquet.

Robinson forsook his erratic backcourt game at the start of the second set, and it was there that he eventually won the match, for this forced Van Vliet to stay in the back of the court more than was healthy for him and elevated his clean placements high enough above his errors subsequently to win the match. His volleying tactics drew first blood when he tied up the score at 2—2, 3—3 and then cracked Van Vliet's delivery to lead 4—3 and sweep home to win the second set.

The third set possessed every element of tennis, good, bad, indifferent and brilliant; game comebacks and leads frittered away like a hand of confetti in a wind tunnel. Robinson held four set points, during this long battle of services. He led 40—30 with games at 9—8, and advantage his during the same game and 40—30 at 7—6. Robinson himself was in hot water twice, once particularly at 5—6 against him and 15—30, when he uncorked three beautiful backhand passing shots, hit with great bravery and vigor, all of them going for clean placements.

Then at times they would hold their services on four delivered balls, the receiver being unable to place one near the court. Robinson was continuing to rush the net and his heated play finally was awarded when he finally cracked Van Vliet for 13—11, ending the set with a forehand passing shot that looked good.

The 10-minute rest did wonders for Robinson. He started out by hitting them on the nose, blasting the ball freely for the first time during the match. He was at 4—1 in eight minutes and got home easily against the tiring but always willing Van Vliet. Robinson's last shot was a running forehand drive delivered while six feet off to the side of the court.

The doubles final will be played his morning at 9:30 o'clock, with yesterday's finalists teamed up against the combination of Maj. James A. Dorst and Lieut. Johnnie Helms.

RED SOX TRIP YANKEES IN SLUGFEST

BOSTON, July 1 (A.P.).—The Red Sox cut loose today with a hitherto unsuspected batting attack that netted fifteen hits, including six doubles and three triples, off four New York pitchers and defeated the league-leading Yankees, 11 to 6.

The Sox drove George Pipgras to cover with five runs in the first two innings but Bob Kline was unable to hold the lead and the Yanks tied the score in the fifth.

So Washington did Know The Difference

July Clearance at GROSNER'S
1325 F STREET

We're very happy! For a while we thought that the world had lost its sense of balance. Men were falling for "Price" without paying the least bit of attention to what "price" bought.

Grosner July clearance prices are low...very low... especially when you consider the high quality of GROSNER merchandise.

We pointed that out to the people of Washington. We told them there WAS a difference in merchandise...and did they take what we said seriously? If you were here the past few days we don't have to tell you!

From the $29.75 suit which you can now buy for $19.75, to the finest suits Kuppenheimer makes, which are now down to $34.75 (they were $50 and $65)... there is a saving on every suit in the house, even down to $18.75 for fine Tropicals.

Now take furnishings...you remember those fine shirts which you used to buy for $1.65—they're now $1.15. $1.50 ties can be bought for 95c, while the $1 ones are 65c. $1 hose are 65c and we're only asking 65c for $1 and $1.50 underwear.

Need a new straw?...if so, get it now—or if you prefer a Panama—$7.50 and $10 ones are now $4.95 ...AND THAT'S THE WAY IT GOES—ALL THROUGH THE STORE.

Gerald D. Grosner.

LONG SHOTS PARADE TO VICTORIES AT ARLINGTON PARK

Feature Won By Waylayer At 33-1

ARLINGTON PARK, July 1 (A.P.).—Walter J. Salmon's Waylayer, victor in the $2,500 added Shoreland Stakes, and a list of other long shots gave the favorite players a bad headache at Arlington Park today.

Waylayer, ridden by Charlie Allen, got up to beat C. V. Whitney's Fall Apple by a head, with Prince Tokalon third, and paid off at the handsome price of $68.34 for $2, running the mile in 1:36.

Red Roamer was the first of the long shots, copping the opening race and paying $17.26 to win. Soothing took the second event, and $2 straight tickets were redeemed at $27.76, with Roman Holiday following up in the third, paying $23.28. Willis Sharpe Kilmer's Sunmelus was good for only $5.56 in the fourth, but Minton paid $71.08 to place and $22.34 to show.

After Waylayer had conquered in the fifth, Jean La Fitte outfooted a good band and rewarded his backers with $26.56. Night Vintage added another long price in the seventh, paying $16.50.

AT THE POST

with Bill Bennings

DEAR AL: ARLINGTON PARK, CHICAGO, JULY 1.

All that cheering you heard over the radio last night was not for Bill Bennings. However, yours truly is back in the driver's seat, rarin' to go. Haven't even looked at a horse for more than a week and expect to get a brand-new grip on the winners. Mike gave me the low down on some of the tough races and I believe he has discovered some paying propositions. I'll pass them along when they appear in the entries. Understand that horses I've been naming at other tracks stepped down regularly while I was away. Expect some good word from other courses starting tomorrow. BILL.

FIRST RACE—The Mereworth Stud seems to have a strong hand in this test for 2-year-olds. PROJECTILE and SNAPLOCK are the youngsters. The first named is the most-liked by the stable, but the latter has run some good races. RED WHISK and CROWNING GLORY appear to be the ones to beat.

SECOND RACE—BRIGHT BIRD hasn't any particular business beating this kind of a field—that is, on the cold figures. However, this one is a running collection of horseflesh on occasions, and I have my reasons for believing the speed dial will be turned on today. VOLTA GREEN and CAMP BOSS for the rest of the purse.

THIRD RACE—KNIGHT'S CALL is at top form and will be a mighty tough one to defeat. SNOBFUL is the sleeper in this race. Loves the mile and gets in with only 102 pounds. TOTEM to take the show.

FOURTH RACE — POLYDORUS seems to have a lock on this purse. This one was never better. If there's an upset, I look to FINITE to be the cause. The speedy fellow is weighted, however. EPITHET for the show end.

FIFTH RACE—I expect EVENING to take the measure of TOP FLIGHT in this test. Both appear to be in excellent condition, and I foresee a great stretch battle. CANRON has all the earmarks of a possible surprise.

SIXTH RACE—PEACE LADY has been doing well since I woke her up some time back, and I see no reason that she can't step home ahead of this field. EVELYN F. and CALOME for the remainder.

SEVENTH RACE—ULTRAMARINE has a habit of popping up. This looks like a good spot. PREFER and WATERPORT to battle it out for the place money.

Star 3-Year-Olds Battle at Latonia

Osculator and Stepenfetchit Clash in $10,000 Derby Today.

Latonia, Ky., July 1 (A.P.).—Osculator and Stepenfetchit meet in the fiftieth running of the $10,000 added Latonia Derby tomorrow, with a chance to prove which is best when Osculator has no mud in which to paddle.

Five were named today to start in Latonia's banner event of the current meeting, but the race, nevertheless, was looked upon as between Osculator and Stepenfetchit alone.

On the record, Osculator was favored slightly. The W. R. Coe entry was second in the American Derby, glorying in the muddy track that day, even though Gusto, an outsider, slipped in first. Disliking conditions, Mrs. J. H. Whitney's Stepenfetchit wound up among the also rans. Osculator, too, was second in the Belmont and the Withers. The rival pulled in third in the Kentucky Derby and second in the Chesapeake Stakes to make matters more even.

Garibaldi, Grobmeier Battle Next Thursday

Gino Garibaldi, who won perhaps the most sensational wrestling match staged here in the last ten years Thursday night when he handed Rudy Dusek a lacing, will meet Fred Grobmeier, Washington's perennial own, next Thursday night at the ball park.

Garibaldi's rough and ready tactics, which are backed up by a sound wrestling science, are believed to be potent enough to beat Grobmeier, who has lost only three matches in months and months of campaigning, two of them to Londos and the other to Strangler Lewis.

Congress Heights Nine Seeks Revenge for 32-to-10 Defeat

Dixie Pigs Will Drop to Tie for Section Lead If Underdogs Avenge 1931 Drubbing in Battle Tomorrow.

By LEWIS F. ATCHISON.

JUST about a year ago the Dixie Pigs startled the sandlot world by winning a baseball game with the Congress Heights team in the Capital City League, sponsored by The Post. Not that the victory was anything to write home about, for the Dixies were heavy favories to win the flag, which they eventually did, and Congress Heights was weakened by the loss of several of its most valuable players. The thing that started tongues wagging, however, was the final score, 32-10.

Congress Heights had not hoped to win the game, but it went into battle determined to make its foe fight for every inch of ground and hold the Dixies to a low score. They did fight, but their strength was not capable of checking the powerful suburbanites, who hit everything that came close to the plate and well nigh wore themselves out running the bases. "Huck" Stahl, "Fee" Collier, Eddie Dove and all of the other masters of swat joined in the kill. It was a great day for the Dixie Pigs.

A year has passed, but to the members of the Congress Heights it seems only yesterday that they lost that memorable game. Tomorrow they clash with these Dixie Pigs, who have identically the same team that administered that thrashing to the Heightsmen. Tomorrow, the latter can avenge its score in full measure and with interest. A defeat for the Dixies will throw them into a tie with Ciro's Villagers for the league leadership which now belongs solely to the Dixies.

Manager Ralph Gilbert will have his full strength available for duty in the big game. He has the veteran "Pete" Ingram, Carl Wahler and Hal Brown to handle the mound assignment. He himself will play first base. Porter, Robertson, and Fred Wahler complete the infield. Tom Sweeney, Sugrue, and Farley, a slugger who is rapidly coming to the fore, will patrol the outer pastures.

Hugh Waldrop, Dixie Pig pilot, plans to rely on his old reliables, Dove, Stahl, Watts and Radtke in the infield; Clapper, Roberts and Joseph in the outfield; "Fee" Collier behind the plate, and either "Lefty" Jones, or one of the two Adair brothers on the mound, will comprise the team.

South. California Qualifies 16 Men

Wycoff, Eastman, Record Star; Kelly, of G. U., Enters 2 Finals.

Edwards Stadium, Berkeley, Calif., July 1 (A.P.).—Southern California's powerful track and field team, seeking its fifth intercollegiate A. A. A. A. title, sounded a challenge to the field when it qualified a majority of athletes in trials today. Trials and some semifinals of the fifty-sixth annual national classic saw the defending champion team place sixteen entrants for tomorrow's finals.

Stanford, runner-up last year, trailed in second place by qualifying nine performers while Pennsylvania led the Eastern contingent by moving four men into tomorrow's events. Qualifying three athletes each were Michigan, Yale, Cornell and California.

Big Ben Eastman, of Stanford; Frank Wykoff, of Southern California, and Eugene Record, of Harvard, shared individual honors as double winners.

Eastman, unofficial world record holder in the quarter and half mile and 800-meter runs loafed through the quarter-mile in 48.5 seconds, and followed it up by heading his trial in the 880 in 1 minute 57.4 seconds.

Al Kelly, of Georgetown U., qualified in both the 100 and 880 yard events. Bradley, another Hilltop athlete, was outside the fold when he was fourth in a 220-yard hurdle heat. Kelly was third in both trials.

Insect Nines Play Two Games Today

Orioles Meet Nye House, Phoenix Plays Hundleys in League Contests.

The defending champion and the dark horse of the flag chase in the insect division of The Post's Capital City League clash this morning at 11 o'clock on the Hoover Playground diamond. Washington Orioles, the champions, and Nye House are the contenders. It is one of two games listed today. Phoenix plays the Ben Hundleys at the same hour on the Rosedale Playground diamond.

The vicinity of Second and N streets southwest, where the Hoover Field is located, will be the scene of real action. The Orioles hung the crepe on the Phoenix Nine in the league inaugural last week, and the Nye House took a fall out of the Hawks. Both teams rank among the leaders in their class, and it may be that the outcome will be decided solely on the breaks of the fray.

The Ben Hundleys make their bow before Capital City League fans in their engagement with the Phoenix sluggers at Rosedale Playground. Little is known of the Tire Dealers, who hail from the vicinity of Fourteenth street and Park road northwest. In their rivals they will meet a newly organized team of Northeast youngsters with a penchant for playing major league baseball. The game promises to produce its share of thrills.

Playground Net Team Faces Sherwood Forest

A team of playground tennis players will meet the Sherwood Forest Tennis Club Monday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock at Sherwood Forest. The Sherwood Team is led by the Sherfy twins, who were members of the 1932 George Washington University Team.

Anthony Latona, Happy Jacob, Harry Lomax, Fred Scheele and several others will be on the playground team. In all, six singles and three doubles matches will be played.

Hyattsville is one up in the series, having won a 7-to-5 decision in the opening tilt. Peffer and Belt will form the Hiser battery, while Hoffman and Fitzgerald will work for Mount Rainier. Hoffman, who recently hurled a no-hit, no-run game, pitched for the Hiser outfit last season. The game will be played at 3 p. m. at Riverdale.

HOWELL AND FISCHER IN FINALS

HOT SPRINGS, Va., July 1 (A.P.).—Billy Howell, Washington and Lee's captain, and Johnny Fischer, a lanky, serious faced youngster from Michigan, today earned the right to play for the national intercollegiate golf crown with semifinal victories over John Parker and Sidney Noyes, both of Yale.

Scoring two under par for 32 holes of the match, Howell defeated Parker 5 and 4 while Fischer removed Yale's other hope with a 4 and 3 decision over methodical Noyes.

The fall of the Yale golfers broke a monopoly the East held on the title for two seasons through the play of George Dunlap, of Princeton, and gave the Midwest its third opportunity in as many years to win its first intercollegiate championship.

Shattering the Cascades course competitive record by one stroke in the morning round with a 70, ruled unofficial because of a short conceded putt on the fourteenth, Howell went to lunch six up on Parker, but the Easterner, in all kinds of trouble during the morning, shot subpar golf in the afternoon and managed to gain back one.

Noyes got off to a fine start and a two-hole lead through the first four holes, but the long fifth, his jinx hole through the entire tournament, cost him seven and he was one down at the turn. Both played raggedly coming in with Fischer picking up a hole and finishing the round in 77 strokes to Noyes' 80.

Howell plays Fischer over the 36-hole route starting at 9:30 o'clock tomorrow morning.

Desjardins in Diving Exhibition on Sunday

Pete Desjardins, Olympic diving champion and holder of ten national A. A. U. titles off the high and low boards, will give his first local exhibition Sunday at Wardman Park Hotel Pool, at which he is now professional, in conjunction with a series of amateur diving and swimming aces of the District.

Onalene Lawrence, District A. A. U. high board champion, and John Broaddus, men's A. A. U. champion, are among the divers who will perform. Miss Lawrence is being coached by Desjardins to compete in the Olympic tryouts July 13 in New York, and will confine her exhibition to dives which are called for by Olympic specifications.

American Legion Nines In 3 Games Tomorrow

The schedule of American Legion series games for tomorrow and Monday was announced yesterday by Daniel H. Pratt, athletic director. Three games are listed tomorrow. George Washington Post plays a double-header, clashing with Spengler at 11 a. m. and Stuart Walcott at 3 p. m. The game between Lincoln and Bunker Hill Posts at 1 o'clock rounds out tomorrow's schedule.

Lincoln Post will engage Stuart Walcott Monday at 1 p. m. The second and final contest on the card for the day brings together the Spengler and Bunker Hill teams.

Dyer Equals World's Record at 100 Meters

Long Beach, Calif., July 1 (U.P.).—Hector Dyer, of the Los Angeles Athletic Club, equaled the world 100-meter record of 10.4 seconds today in winning a preliminary heat at the start of the Far West Olympic tryouts here.

Dyer's victory gave him a chance to compete in the final Olympic tryouts at Palo Alto, July 15 and 16, along with Don Plumb, Tustin, Calif., who was second in the heat.

Radio Dial Flashes

By ROBERT D. HEINL

THE broadcasting of conventions has been got down to a fine science, but a weak spot remains. The chain announcers talk far too much. This is particularly true at critical points and on occasion of great demonstrations. Then, too, none of these announcers—Ted Husing, Wallace Butterworth, and Charles Lyon—has shown any familiarity with politics, making the listeners' lot still harder.

Before we had parabolic and lapel microphones it was necessary for the announcer to explain what was going on, since the type of microphone then in use could not pick up voices from the floor. Now nearly every word spoken on the convention floor may be heard plainly by the radio audience and an excited announcer becomes an annoyance, adding confusion which would have been avoided if he kept still.

Why these announcers feel that they have to talk continuously to fill in the time is not clear. And why do the chain announcers have to become so excited and overplay the actual happenings, as they did in the Sharkey-Schmeling fight and as they frequently have done during the convention? What if newspaper writers became excited and blurbed all over the place because they are writing about a tremendous event?

This is not a recommendation that the announcers leave protracted dead spots on the air, but it would be far better for announcers to adopt the technique of Messrs. Wile, Hard, Lawrence and Kaltenborn, who only talk when they really have something to say, when it is necessary to identify progress, and they are as brief about it as possible.

THE National Broadcasting Co. has broken its long-established rule and now permits the mention of prices during the daytime hours. The first to take advantage of this change of policy was Col. Goodbody, who now gives prices during the "Our Daily Food" program.

The entrance of the network into the direct selling field has been looked for since it began allowing the stations which it owns, including WRC, to give prices on local daytime programs. It is not the intention of the network to allow direct sales talks after 6 p. m. The Columbia Broadcasting System has given no indication that it intends to remove its restriction against the mention of the price of an article.

Inaugurating a two-month season of evening symphonic broadcasts, the complete broadcast of the Lewisohn Stadium concert, held in the outdoor auditorium of the College of the City of New York, will be transmitted over a nationwide Columbia network (WMAL, 7:30 to 9 o'clock) tonight. Willem van Hoogstraten, the Dutch conductor, will direct the orchestra of the New York Philharmonic Society during the broadcast.

The feature of the presentation will be Van Hoogstraten's reading of Tschaikovsky's "Symphony No. 4 in F Minor."

In sharp contrast with the somber tone of the first half of the concert the selections to be heard after the intermission are characterized by gayety and lightness. They are Nicolai's Overture to "The Merry Wives of Windsor," ballet music from Delibes' "Sylvia," three Slavonic dances by Dvorak, and Strauss' "Tales from the Vienna Woods."

The musical career of George Olsen, whose music will be heard during the Lucky Strike Dance Hour tonight (WRC, 9 o'clock), started at the University of Michigan when he painted a broomstick with the university colors and became the first collegiate drum major. Bert Lahr will supply foolishness in contrast to Olsen's music tonight.

"NOW that the season is upon us," Capt. S. C. Hooper, director of naval communications, advises, "all radio stations in the 'hurricane' belt should use 'the Great A. & P. system' (the anticipation and prevention system) to insure that there will be no interruption to communications resulting from material failures in the event of a hurricane striking their stations.

An all-Chopin program will be played by Mme. Lolita Cabrera Gainsborg, pianist, during her recital this afternoon (WRC, 3:30 o'clock).

Gene and Glenn—"Jake and Lena"—heard every morning over WRC at 8 o'clock, will shortly leave the air for a two-month vacation.

STOCK PRICES RALLY IN HOLIDAY COVERING

Leading Issues Stage Gains Up to 2 Points; Steel Joins Advance.

New York, July 1 (A.P.).—Stocks did their best to make the Fourth glorious today. In its last session until next Tuesday the market climbed almost steadily higher, finishing with larger gains than had been seen in a fortnight. They ranged from a fraction to about two points for leading issues.

Preholiday shorts covering probably had much to do with the upturn.

Net advances of 1 to 2 points appeared in U. S. Steel, American Can, American Telephone, Santa Fe, Union Pacific, Public Service of New Jersey, Du Pont, Allied Chemical, American Tobacco B and Consolidated Gas. U. S. Steel preferred rallied 3½. Procter & Gamble also acted better. Transactions totaled 605,836 shares.

The London market set a sturdy example, for security prices were strong there, and reports said the huge conversion undertaking had been well received.

At Washington it was announced that the national deficit, entering the second half of the year, was nearly $2,900,000,000. Meanwhile, relief bill conferees adjusted their measure in a manner which should ease immediate demands on Government financing.

Weekly mercantile reviews reported improvement in retail trade, due mostly to seasonable weather.

(Associated Press.)

London.—After excited dealings in gilt-edged securities caused by the adjustment to the conversion scheme, a big business was transacted resulting in substantial net gains. Australian and Indian loans were higher. Industrials, foreign issues and American shares participated in the upward movement and the market closed strong.

Paris—Trading on the bourse was less optimistic because of the delay of the Lausanne negotiations and difficulties in the budgetary situation revealed by the government's bill. The opening was irregular, but rentes were firm and foreign shares made slight gains. The close was irregular.

$11,000,000 Voted To Illinois Central

I. C. C. Approves Loan to Pay Interest and Obligations.

(Associated Press.)

The Interstate Commerce Commission yesterday approved a Reconstruction Corporation loan of $11,000,000 to the Illinois Central Railroad Co. The money is to be used to meet interest payments of $7,466,000 and other obligations aggregating $3,534,000.

The commission disclosed that the Illinois Central has paid $384,399 into the Railroad Credit Corporation which is distributing to needy railroads income derived from freight rate increases put into effect in January.

The Illinois Central asked the Railroad Credit Corporation for $7,466,000 to meet its interest payments, but the commission said it understands that this loan could not be granted because of the sizable amount and the demands upon the funds of the corporation to meet the needs of other carriers.

Globe-Wernicke Named In Suit for Receivers

Cincinnati, July 1 (A.P.).—Appointment of a receiver for the Globe-Wernicke Co., a pioneer manufacturer of office equipment, was asked in United States District Court here today. Suit for appointment of the receiver was brought by J. T. Hatfield, Covington, Ky., who described himself as holder of interest coupons on 7 per cent convertible promissory notes of the company, due today, and on which he asserted, payment was refused.

His interest approximates $3,150. The coupons are part of authorized promissory notes amounting to $1,500,000 of which $1,262,000 is outstanding. Hatfield asserted he was informed that no funds were available for meeting the notes, that interest on them previously had been suspended, and that the company was unable to meet maturing obligations approximating $500,000.

Stock Exchange Puts Salary Cut Into Effect

New York, July 1 (A.P.).—The New York Stock Exchange today put into effect a 10 per cent cut in the salaries of officers and employes of the exchange, numbering about 1,300. A similar cut will be taken also by approximately 1,000 employes of the exchange's subsidiary corporations.

This is the second 10 per cent reduction for exchange employes; the first took effect last October. It is understood the new scale establishes a minimum wage of $15 a week for unmarried employes and $30 for those who are married.

National Electric Faces Petition on Bankruptcy

New York, July 1 (A.P.).—An involuntary petition in bankruptcy was filed in Federal Court today against the National Electric Power Co., a $600,000,000 insull concern with offices at 57 William street.

The business of the company, as stated in the petition, is that of holding stock in utility companies and the management and control of those companies. The petitions were Ellen D. Cholerton, with a claim of $300; Louis D. Merry, $1,000, and George W. Boland, $3,000.

The petition alleged that while insolvent the alleged bankrupt concern transferred moneys amounting to $3,000,000 to various bank creditors with intent to prefer them over other creditors.

WHEAT HOLD PRICES IN DELIVERIES RUSH

Corn Slumps to New Low Since 1897; Estimate of Crop Issued.

Chicago, July 1 (A.P.).—Much larger deliveries than expected on Chicago July contracts gave a heavy undertone to the wheat market today, together with bearish unofficial spring crop estimates.

Winter wheat estimates were bullish enough, but they were offset by the spring crop figures. Total deliveries here today on July wheat contracts were 6,024,000 bushels, an amount which necessitated unlooked-for liquidation that at times spread to other months than July.

With preholiday evening-up active, however, wheat rallied at the last, closing nervous at the same as yesterday's finish to ½ lower; corn, ¾ off to ⅜ up; oats, varying from ⅛ decline to ¼ advance, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 10 cents.

Jarred by the huge deliveries on July wheat contracts, all grain slid down to near low record levels, with July corn reaching the bottommost price since 1897. Private crop estimates as to corn were construed as decidedly bearish, indicating that the United States 1932 yield of corn would be the third largest ever known, 3,050,000,000 bushels.

Today's monthly private crop estimates indicated that the United States would have around 325,000,000 bushels of wheat available for export in the 1932-33 season.

BUSINESS OF NATION IS PASSED IN REVIEW

Experts Indicate Upswing Is Not Expected in Last Two Quarters.

Special to The Washington Post.

New York, July 1.—Current indications of the trend in various divisions of industry and trade are summarized by the Standard Statistics Co., of New York, from its July 1 resume of the outlook for important lines, as follows:

ADVERTISING — Aggregate magazine advertising to July 1 was 26.5 per cent below the similar period of 1931. Newspaper lineage is off about 20 per cent.

AGGRICULTURAL MACHINERY—With grain prices at new low levels, demand for farm equipment remains severely restricted and collections are poor.

AIRCRAFT—Manufacturing is at a low level. The transportation division is still expanding, but profits are unsatisfactory.

AUTOMOBILES—Production in the first six months of the year was 45 per cent under the 1931 period. Full 1932 output is now estimated at 1,600,000 units, or 35 per cent under 1931.

AUTOMOBILE PARTS—The showing of individual concerns will be influenced to some extent by the volume of Ford business allotted them, as Ford's requirements for the second half year are likely to be increased over the first six months.

Outlook in Building.

BUILDING—Stabilization near prevailing low levels is about the best that can be expected during the rest of the year.

CHEMICALS—Price structures in most divisions of the trade still display more firmness than those in the majority of other industries.

ELECTRICAL EQUIPMENT—Material improvement in sales and profits is unlikely during the next six months.

FOOD PRODUCTS—Earnings of makers of package foods, dairy products, chewing gum and special bakery products will be only moderately lower than in 1931.

MACHINERY—While orders appear to be at least temporarily stabilizing, there is no assurance that there will be any improvement during the near term.

MEDICINES—Returns for the industry as a whole were relatively well maintained at a level only about 20 per cent below that of 1931.

Office Equipment Sales.

OFFICE EQUIPMENT—Little, if any, improvement in sales volume is expected in the second half of the year.

PAPER—Profits declined close to 90 per cent in the first half of the year.

PETROLEUM — Current evidence points to further gradual improvement in the general oil situation during the remainder of 1932.

RETAIL TRADE—Chain stores are making the best showing but results in only a few exceptional instances will approach those of last year.

SUGAR—Although prices recently scored a sharp advance they are still well below those of a year ago.

TOBACCO—Demand for cigarettes was off about 15 per cent in the first half of the year. Cigar consumption is off 20 per cent.

UTILITIES—Little improvement in revenues of electric utilities may be looked for until recovery is definitely under way. Manufactured gas sales remain relatively stable. Telephone revenues will show a downward trend for the rest of the year. Telegraph and cable profits will remain small or non-existent.

Tobacco Growers Told Nations Menace Trade

Virginia Beach, Va., July 1 (A.P.).—A warning that other countries were producing an increasing volume of leaf tobacco to compete with the American foreign trade, was sounded today by A. B. Carrington, of Danville, Va., in presenting his annual report as president to the Tobacco Association of the United States.

Mr. Carrington said there had been a material decrease in exports from the United States in 1931 as compared to the preceding year. He said fewer cigarettes and tobacco products generally were manufactured in this country last year than in 1930, and that retaliatory tariffs of other countries threatened the American foreign market.

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS —By John Hix

JOHN McGRAW, when he played with Baltimore before the foul ball penalty was ordered, had the uncanny ability to foul off almost any ball delivered. He could lay them low along the outside of the baselines, where fielders were unable to catch them. This practice, which was used with less success by many batters, was followed to wear out the opposing pitcher.

In a game at Baltimore, he fouled 24 of Pitcher Jimmy Callahan's deliveries, and then batted out a clean single. Baseball rules were changed 30 years ago to make a foul count as a strike, unless, of course, the batter has two strikes already.

The albatross, giant bird of the sea, has a wingspread so great that it can soar motionless for hours and, naturalists say, sleep while in the air. The "wandering albatross," the most common species known, measures up to 17 feet from tip to tip when its wings are outstretched. It can follow a ship for days without ever alighting.

Its ability to sleep on the wing and the superstitution that sailors have associated with this bird have caught the fancy of many writers. The ill fortune that is supposed to follow those who kill it is the theme of Coleridge's "The Ancient Mariner." Charles G. Leland, in "Perseverando," says:

"Thou sailest wide to other lands,
E'en sleeping on the wing."

Any reader wanting further proof of anything depicted here should address the author, care of The Washington Post, and inclose a stamped and self-addressed envelope for reply. JOHN HIX.

MANAGER OF STORE IS DECLARED SUICIDE

Carl Schuermann Is Found at Gas Stove; Wife and Two Children Survive.

A certificate of suicide was issued yesterday by Acting Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald in the death of Carl C. Schuermann, 41, of 3525 Davenport street, manager of the M. Brooks Co. women's clothing store at 1109 G street northwest, who was found dead early yesterday morning in the kitchen of his apartment.

The fire rescue squad, summoned by his wife, Mrs. Josephine Schuermann, who found him slumped in a chair in front of the stove with gas flowing from the burners, worked over him for more than half an hour, but were unable to revive him. He was pronounced dead by Dr. James Vanderbeck, of Emergency Hospital.

Mrs. Schuermann found a note written on the back of an envelope asking her to call a doctor, notify the coroner, and do everything possible to avoid publicity, according to police.

According to Mrs. Schuermann, her husband had been notified that he would be transferred to another store and his salary reduced, but this order was later rescinded and he was told to remain at the G street store at the same salary.

She was unable to say when her husband came home Thursday night, as he remained late at the store, or whether he had retired or not. A 15-year-old daughter, a high school student, spent the night with a friend, but their 4-year-old son was at home at the time of the suicide.

Auto Fractures Arm Of Baltimore Man

William H. Hopkins, a member of the bonus army from Baltimore, was struck and knocked down by an automobile last night at Third street and Pennsylvania avenue northwest. He is in Casualty Hospital with a possible fracture of the left arm.

Police said the machine which struck him was operated by Allan J. Robertson, of Bolling Field. The accident was termed unavoidable.

NEW LICENSE BILL SIGNED BY HOOVER

Fees for Taxi Operation Are Increased From $9 to $25 Per Year.

The District license bill, which increases the number of vocations requiring licenses and makes requirements for issuance more rigid in certain cases, was signed yesterday by President Hoover after Corporation Counsel William W. Bride spent the day rushing the measure through its final stages so that the new tax on taxicabs might become effective at once. The old taxi licenses expired Thursday.

Under the new act the license fees for taxicab operation are considerably increased and may result in diminishing the number of operators. The initial tax is raised from $9 to $25 a year for each cab, and the fee for a character license is increased from 50 cents to $5.

Systematic records are required of all employment agencies by the new act. Each such licensee must keep a register and record the name of every applicant, the date, the amount of fee received and the names of those given jobs. Each applicant must also be given a receipt stating the amount of fee paid, the date and the purpose for which it was paid.

Bonus Army to Stage Demonstration Today

A protest demonstration against adjournment of Congress before veterans' relief legislation is passed was ordered held today at the Capitol by Walter W. Waters, commander in chief of the bonus expeditionary forces.

No permit had been issued for the demonstration at a late hour last night, but Waters was confident that the necessary permit would be granted, and ordered the men to move on the Capitol in small groups at 9 o'clock this morning.

A parade of the 12,000 ragged veterans is scheduled for July 4, with Waters and his aids insisting that they be allowed to march from the Capitol to the White House, and not in the reverse order as they did in their earlier parade.

The blonde leader of the forces, estimated there will be 20,000 men on the Capitol plaza today, although the balloting in the recent election showed slightly more than 3,000 veterans in the several encampments.

Orders were issued yesterday to the heads of the various camps to have their men start in nonparading groups shortly before 9 o'clock this morning. At the Capitol Waters will make a speech of protest against the adjournment of Congress until the bonus bill is passed.

Neither the House nor the Senate will be in session today, having recessed until noon on Tuesday. Although the legislators will not see the demonstration, Waters says, they will learn of it through newspapers.

A conference will be sought shortly by representatives of the veterans with Franklin D. Roosevelt, the Democratic presidential nominee. Harold B. Foulkrod, legislative adviser to the veterans, who returned last night from Chicago, said: "The hope of the veterans for the bonus rests with Roosevelt."

Gradual diminution of the food supply continued to worry police. Waters claims there is enough foodstuffs on hand to last over the week-end. Truckloads of food continued to arrive, but not in sufficient number to assure satisfaction of appetites. Some of the men are complaining, while others are just determined to stay here to seek the bonus.

Whether there is an epidemic of dysentery in the camp will be known today when John E. Noble, bacteriologist of the health department, will make known the result of his tests on three suspected cases of epidemic dysentery. No serious illnesses were reported at Gallinger Hospital yesterday.

More than 200 bonus marchers appeared at the Veterans Bureau yesterday to obtain 50 per cent loans on their adjusted service certificates. A bill, permitting them to obtain such loans immediately and not requiring a wait of two years was passed by the Senate Thursday. It has not yet passed the House. Consequently, the men were unable to secure the loans.

A move to find jobs for the veterans has been started by Veterans Administrator Frank T. Hines, who requested managers of the regional offices of the Veterans' Administration to survey their respective fields with a view to finding employment for the bonus marchers.

Representative Lonergan (Democrat), of Connecticut, made public in the House yesterday a letter from Chairman Payne of the American Red Cross, which said:

"We have given to the former service men camping in Washington all the flour and cracked wheat they have requested, and will continue to do so as requests come in."

PRIVATE AID FUNDS HELD STILL NEEDED

Belief that provision by Congress of $350,000 for relief in the District has created an impression there is no longer any need for private funds, was expressed yesterday by the Rev. John O'Grady, head of the board of directors of the Catholic Charities. He said he believed the import of the appropriation was that private funds were expected.

The Catholic Charities expended $6,399.23 in June, the report showed, as against $3,916.30 for the same month last year. It was stated that despite the increase, the sum this year was not nearly adequate to care for the 626 families under the group's supervision.

Dr. O'Grady said "the relief provided by the public fund will depend largely on the manner in which it is administered. It is to be hoped it will be administered in an efficient and economical manner."

PHARMACY BUILDING PROJECT IS STARTED

The Lincoln Memorial has made necessary a revision of all the landscape within the sphere of its influence, Dr. Charles Moore, chairman of the Fine Arts Commission, said yesterday at the ground-breaking ceremony for the new national headquarters of the American Pharmaceutical Association.

Allotment of space for building purposes on the western end of Constitution avenue, so that the architecture would be a fitting background for the memorial, was an important consideration, he said. The commission embraced the opportunity to occupy the space in close proximity to the Lincoln Memorial with a building significant and important to human welfare, he told the group who assembled to break the ground for the $500,000 structure at Twenty-third and Constitution avenue.

Of the five spaces available for buildings, all but one have been assigned and Dr. Moore said that the space would be a fitting site for the Bureau of Education. "There is apprehension lest it be used as a monumental approach to a group of modernistic buildings to the north," he said, protesting the possibility.

Dr. Harry A. Fowler, president of the District Medical Society, stressed the importance of the new institution, as a closer tie between the interrelated professions of pharmacy and medicine. Walter D. Adams, president of the Pharmaceutical Association, said that the building would foster a closer relationship of members of the profession. Sir Henry S. Wellcome, of England, honorary president of the association, who was introduced to the audience as an important contributor to the profession, praised the efforts of American pharmacists.

BALLOU WILL WORK ON FURLOUGH PLANS

Dr. Simon Will Continue as Board of Education Head Until Fall.

The Board of Education yesterday authorized Superintendent of Schools F. W. Ballou to work out a plan of operation for the economy act's furlough pay-cut, after deciding that school heads should come under the 8 1-3 per cent pay cut as well as teachers who are laid off during the two summer months.

Dr. Abram Simon was continued temporarily in office by the board as its president, pending a full meeting of the body next September, despite his announced intention of withdrawing from the office.

The action of the board with regard to Dr. Simon came after Dr. J. Hayden Johnson moved that the present officers continue because of the absence from the reorganization meeting of three members. Mrs. Henry Grattan Doyle will continue as vice president.

Dr. Simon agreed to continue with the understanding that he would not stand for reelection when a vote is taken. He will continue as a member of the board, however, he said.

The board went on record as favoring the granting of a furlough to any of the school officers who might prefer it to a pay cut. It adopted a specific order authorizing its president to "arrange for any necessary exemption of officers and employes from the provision of the section of the act which provides a furlough."

Girl Is Overcome as Heat Hits 98; Relief Promised

Relief from the high temperatures which yesterday prostrated one person was promised in the Weather Bureau's forecast for today and tomorrow.

Today will be cooler and Sunday's temperature will be moderate, according to the forecaster.

Yesterday the Pennsylvania avenue kiosk thermometer registered 98 degrees at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. Then it dropped steadily until it reached 82 at 10 o'clock.

The only casualty of the weather was Miriam Retta McKee, 14, who collapsed at her home at 2722 Tenth street northeast. The Fire Rescue Squad revived her. Her condition was not serious.
